ONE LITTLE WORD.

One little word may pierce the heart With sorrow keener than a knife. And best of friends may quickly part With feelings of such bitter strife.

One little word may kindness show When all the world seems dark and dreat And tears of deepest anguish flow, One little word may often cheer.

The weary with a heavy load: A pleasant smile, a gentle touch, Smooth places in the roughest road. One little word may tempests calm, When raging fierce within the breast, A kindly word may fall like balm

One little word may help so much.

And angry feelings soothe to rest. One little word may be too late Before fond hopes are buried low, And often it may seal the fate Of many lives for weal or woe. -Alice Dale Abell, in Good Housekeeping.

Burying the Dead.

Loss of Life About St. Louis Will Probably Reach Eight Hundred.—Estimates of Dead and Dying. Miles of Funeral Processions, With Overloa Hearses, Racing to and From the City's Cemeteries With Bereaved Mourners.-Floods Follow the Tornado.—The Aggregate Losses Will Reach About Fifteen Million Dollars, With Half as Much More in

It is possible now to form an approximate estimate of the great loss of life, probably aggregating 800, and the tremendous loss to property occasioned by Wednesday's tornado throughout Missouri, appalling. From many small places and sparsely-settled districts the outside world has yet received no tidings whatever since the storm, but there can be no doubt that in those localities also the loss to property and crops is heavy. Up to a late hour Sunday the death roll ran thus:

Richfield, Mo... Rushville, Ia... New Baden, Ill. Jefferson City, Ind... Harmony, Ill. Brinker Station, Ia.

The financial loss in St. Louis proper will be, approximately, $15,000,000, nearly one-fifth of which is residence property. Among the structures destroyed in whole or in part were 45 churches, 26 public schools and 35 steamboats, besides heavy damage inflicted on many hospitals and other public institutions, to say nothing of the destruction of hundreds of commercial establishments and a thousand or more

In East St. Louis the loss inflicted on railways and their allied interests, on grain elevators, factories, business houses and residences is conservatively estimated at from $6,000,000 to $7,000,000.

Another cause of loss and distress that follows the cyclone is the flood in the Mississippi, which, it is estimated, may result in over a million dollars damage.

Then on Friday night another cyclone, accompanied by a cloudburst, struck Seneca, Mo., wrecking a number of buildings and causing a loss of twenty lives and starting floods that did great damage. At Neosho, Mo., three bodies were found lodged in driftwood, but are unidentified.

RISING OUT OF THE RUINS. St. Louis, Mo., May 30.—This city has at last partially recovered her equilibrium. Business was resumed to-day and the streets are somewhat cleared for traffic. As the hours pass bodies continue to be received at the morgue. A majority of the victims have been identified. Still there are many at the dead house whose names remain unknown. Twelve have already been buried in the Potters' Field whose identity will never be revealed. They were males, and presented the appearance of levee laborers when found. All the dead women and children have been identified, claimed by relatives and buried. As the ruin is complete and St. Louis is acting slowly towards removing the debris, it may be weeks before all the killed are recovered. St. Louis will at once make active preparation toward rebuilding handsomer residences and more imposing business houses will take the place of the wrecked ones. New debts will be created, private capital will have chances of investment and thousands of laborers given employment. Rents have already been raised.

Ex-Governor Francis said to a reporter to-day that he expected to see $30,000,000 expended in buildings during the year.

The police force, the physicians and the citizens of St. Louis have done great work, but up to the present time it has taken all their efforts to care for the injured and the dying. The demand for immediate relief has been so great that no thought could be given to hundreds of men and women who have called at the Morgue and the police headquarters has been besieged by relatives eager to identify the dead.

THE MORGUE A CHARNEL HOUSE. The Morgue is a veritable charnel house. filled with the mangled bodies of men and women. All of the dead are laid on top of pine boxes and partially covered with ice in order to preserve them as long as possi-ble. When one is identified a sheet is spread over the corpse and if practicable the remains are at once removed to some home or to an undertaking establishment.

One hundred and twenty-eight victims of Wednesday's horror were laid to rest Saturday in the cemeteries of this city and East St. Louis. The total of interments would have been larger but for the fact that the facilities of the undertaking establishments were inadequate to the sudden and pressing requirements of the situa-

Horses did treble and quadruple duty, the hearses being driven at breakneck speed from the cemeteries to the devastated district as rapidly as their loads had been deposited at the door of the vault or by the side of the grave.

In several instances a single hearse bore three caskets, one containing the remains of an adult, and the others those of little ones. At the grave the religious services were abbreviated and addresses of eulogy or condolence were dispensed with.

LONG LINES OF FUNERALS.

There are funerals on all sides. Hardly a street or block was there which did not have one or more persons who were claimed as victims by the storm, and many of them were buried yesterday in order to prevent rapid decomposition.

The business portion of the city is prac- 1-15-3m.

tically untouched, and a person alighting from a train at the Union Station and going to any of the well known hotels down town or in the west end, would not perceive that the city had been visited by a

Though the Eads bridge was damaged trains are passing over it now. All the big buildings except the Merchants' Exchange, which was unroofed, escaped unscathed.

Offers of assistance and messages of condolence continue to pour in from cities all over the country. The sympathy of the United States is aroused.

Instead of a rush to take advantage of charity, those having the matter in hand are pleased to note strong and widespread disposition among the people in the path of the storm to help themselves. It was a sturdy, self-reliant population which the tornado ravaged, and only in cases of dire need will the funds be drawn upon. Among 10,000 families sorely stricken there will be only a few hundreds that must be helped.

CLEARING UP THE RUINS.

Of the seven thousand houses injured, it is estimated that 1000 have been totally ruined. They are of brick, and the majority residences. Estimating the rubbish at 200,000,000 pounds which must be moved, it is thought that the last of it cannot be carted away for three months. Then the question arises where will it be dumped. Twenty thousand laborers are at work and have been for twenty-four hours. Still there is no perceptible signs of improvement.

LOADED TROLLEY CAR DISAPPEARS. There are in the Missouri river at this nour many floating corpses. It is expected that scores of bodies will be picked up between here and New Orleans for a month to come. When the tornado struck the city there were probably a hundred persons on the Eads bridge, The escape of Illinois and Indiana, and the aggregate is some who were blown into the river was marvelous.

Daniel McCarthy says he was lifted from his feet and blown into the water a hundred yards away. But he was uninjured and being an expert swimmer, had no difficulty in reaching shore. He says the air and water around were filled with shrieks and screams.

There was an electric street car crossing the bridge laden with passengers. It has never been heard of, nor was there a soul saved to tell the story.

At 2 o'clock this morning two floaters were picked up at the foot of Destrahan street, which are supposed to be members of the wrecked boat crews.

A family of four lived at No. 716 Barry street on Wednesday morning. When the tornado had passed, there was but one survivor. Mrs. Matilda Rux, aged 56 years; her daughters, Jennie, 17 years, and Mary, 16 years, and John Lablien aged 49 years, occupied the dwelling. As the blast seized the house and partly lifted it, Mary sprang for the door. The others started to follow, but the roof fell and crushed them to death. The surviving daughter stood on the street, wringing her hands, frantic with grief, and refused to be led away.

MISSING FROM THE CITY HOSPITAL

Dr. Starkloff, Health Commissioner and chief of the Hospital service in this city, was this morning forced to the conclusion that the deaths at the City Hospital are far beyond first estimates. He reluctantly stated that 50 patients of the hospital are not accounted for. Dr. Sutter, superintendent of the hospital, says that a number of patients fled to the commons about the place and there is a hope that many of the 50 missing from the hospital will be found among the charitable people of the vicinity.

REV. FATHER HEAD DEAD. Shortly after midnight Rev. Father J. J.

Sixth and La Salle streets, died of the injuries requived by falling timbers in the disaster on Wednesday night. Father Head and his sister were sitting in the parochial residence when the roof of the church was blown onto the house. A falling timber struck the pastor's head, and he was otherwise injured. He failed to rally.

DIED FROM GRIEF. Roy Claypool, son of Mrs. Daniel Claypool, who, with her two children, was killed by the storm, died at the Children's Hospital on Friday night. Young Clay-pool was not injured by the storm, but had been placed in the hospital Thursday to be treated for an ailment. When he that his mother and two sisters had been killed the little fellow began to grieve. It caused his death.

MECHANICS BADLY NEEDED. All along the path of the storm to-day boys distributed long lists of houses, flats and rooms to be had at the same rentals that prevailed before this new demand was created. There are 50 jobs awaiting every carpenter, bricklayer, roofer, plumber and glazier in the city. The supply of material will probably run short before the work of restoration is complete. But thus far no disposition to deal unfairly with the pressing demand has shown itself. Difficulty has been found in securing laborers for the work of clearing away the wrecks, and those who are able and willing to work are demanding a rate of 50 cents an hour. Wages of bricklayers have advanced from 55 cents to $1.10 an hour.

SOME OF THE BIG LOSSES. The Bradstreet and Dun commercial gencies refuse to make any estimate on the property loss in St. Louis. The following list of principal losses is furnished by representatives of the corporation, business firms, churches and institutions named:

sts. Peter and Paul church.... Brown Tobacco Co... People's Railway power house. Union Depot railway... United Elevator Co..... 75,000 200,000 75,000 Liggett & Myer..... Vandalia railroad...
