

Self-Protection for Labor.

Everybody knows, said the impressive Mr. McKinley, discoursing to a delegation of wage workers, that a Republican Congress and a Republican administration will enact such a tariff law as shall protect adequately American labor.

There was a time that the American working man was visibly impressed by promises of this sort. But thirty years of protection, unaccompanied by any rise in wages traceable to the tariff, has been for him a liberal education. He has seen, too, that the lowest wages paid are those paid in the protected industries; that the men most active in importing alien labor to depress the wages and lower the standard of living of the American workingman are the very ones who go to Washington to plead for more and higher protection, that the dignity of American labor may be maintained.

The wage worker in the United States has learned, if he be observant and thoughtful, that the protection he needs is self-protection. In proportion as his fellow-workers in any trade are organized, their wages have been increased or maintained at reasonable figures. No amount of tariff protection has succeeded in keeping wages up when the employers were able to break the power of the organization.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, one of the most eloquent prophets of the theory of protecting labor by taxing consumers, has given also the most conspicuous example of an employer's denial to labor of the right to protect itself. Behind McKinley stand all the men of the Carnegie type. Henry C. Payne, his Western manager, was one of the receivers of the Northern Pacific Railway, and helped to force the strike which Debs won and from which grew the American Railway Union. As president of a Milwaukee street railway to-day he is opposing a strike which is approved by a vast majority of the citizens. It is his policy to deny to the employees the right to combine in unions, to deny to them, in short, the right of self-protection.

The record of Mark Hanna as a foe to organized labor is widely notorious. As a member of the execrable Spring Valley Coal Company, he took part in that systematic effort for the crushing and spoliation of his employees which was widely condemned throughout the middle West as a "strike of millionaires against miners." Never did the extortions of the company or "pluck me" store have such glaring illustration as at Spring Valley. Never was the fraud of selling lots to miners on partial payments, and then closing the mines so that the unfortunate purchasers lost both their homes and the money paid for them, so remorselessly practiced. To no other spot in these United States has degraded and pauperized labor from Southern Europe been imported so largely to oust Americans from their places. To-day Spring Valley, for its memories, is a stench in the nostrils of the people of Illinois, and because of its hordes of Huns and Slavs a constant menace to the peace of the State.

When men of the type most dangerous to the prosperity and the dignity of American labor stand as McKinley's sponsors and political managers it is idle to regard his protestations of affection for the workingman as other than mere political humbug. The ancient saying, "A man is known by the company he keeps," is of positive application in this campaign.—N. Y. Journal.

Favor Bryan and Sewall.

Planetary Influence, Says an Astrologer, Indicate Their Election.

The planets are for Bryan and Sewall's election by a tremendous majority. The celestial constellation of Libra (the scales) which represents the Goddess of Justice, was rising at the time the nomination was made. Libra is an aerial, sanguine, hot, moist, equinox, cardinal, movable, diurnal masculine, humane and western sign—the day house of Venus, the Goddess of Love. Venus, the ruling planet, was in conjunction with the sun and moon, exalted by position, aspect and house; was posited in the mansion of dignity and honor and pre-ferment in the constellation of Cancer, a cardinal and movable sign; the houses of the moon and the sun were in reception and conjunction, which is a good aspect, while Jupiter, the planet of wealth, was received by the sun in house and triplicity. The position of the planets denotes that they could not possibly be better for the success of the party, and altogether favorable to the brightest outlook, while the Republican nominees denote nothing but disaster and defeat to the party, and there will be nothing but wreckage left after the storm of battle is over. According to the planets, the success does not only mean a party success, for the whole country, which means prosperity not only to a few, but prosperity to all the land, a freedom which cannot be expressed in feeling by any one at this present time of human slavery, and volumes could be written for the future welfare of this country through the coming new Democratic victory.

Called a Republican Bluff.

A Boston Bryan Club Accepts an Offer to Pay Expenses of Debs, Coxe, Altgeld, and Tillman in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—The Bryan-Sewall-Williams Club issued the following self-explanatory open letter to Congressman William E. Barret this afternoon:

Dear Sir—You suggest in an editorial in your edition of the Record Friday, August 14, that Messrs Debs, Coxe, Altgeld and Tillman be brought into the State to address political meetings, and you say, without qualification or condition, that the Republican State Committee will pay their expenses. The Bryan-Sewall-Williams Club of Massachusetts, assuming that you, the editor of a leading Republican newspaper, speak with authority, and that the officers of the State Republican State Committee will support you in the assertion you make, accepts your offer.

Two of the men you name are Populists and two are Democrats, and while perhaps we assume authority in speaking for the Populist representatives, we would be glad to have all of those named appear before the people of Massachusetts. We are aware that a hostile and unjust press has created false impressions of all these men in the minds of many honest Massachusetts citizens, and we deem it fair and desirable that our people may have an opportunity to meet them and judge them face to face. While it is our purpose, in accepting this offer, to secure a fair hearing for maligned men, two of whom are Governors of great States of our Union, they are but a part of the personnel of our great cause, just as Mr. Hanna, of Cleveland; Mr. Armour, of Chicago; Mr. Payne, of Milwaukee, and the Whitesey, of Boston and New York, are not the sole representatives of the Republican party.

English Money to Buy American Votes.

A good subject for a guessing match would be, "How much British gold will find its way into Hanna's campaign fund?"—Wheating Register.

The answer to this is found in the following from the Washington Post:

"When in London recently," said Hon. Thomas F. Lane of New Jersey at the Normandy, "I learned from a gentleman of unquestioned reliability that English bankers and capitalists were subscribing money freely to the Republican campaign fund in this country in order to help elect McKinley. My informant was an Englishman, and the statement was not made on hearsay. He said that the class of people who were thus aiding the Republican candidate were men of means. They were more interested in our approaching election than if it were coming off in Great Britain, and the pros and cons of the silver question were debated with as much heat in the British metropolis as in New York."

He possesses considerable eloquence, a good command of language and an extensive knowledge of history. Several of his noticeable statements were "the Methodists are nothing if not patriotic.
