THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

State College borough will elect local officers on next Tuesday.

Elmer Snively has just completed a fine residence for John Shady, at Nittany.

Steam heat came through the pipes on Thursday morning and felt very acceptable.

The heavy frost of Wednesday night was the first one appreciable in Bellefonte this fall.

Elmer Showers has gone to Buffalo, N. Y., where he will accept a position as engineer of a furnace shifter.

Clevan Dinges, formerly of this place, has been nominated for Congress by the Prohibitionists of the 16th district.

Hon. D. L. Krebs, of Clearfield, and Col. J. L. Spangler, of Bellefonte, will address a free silver meeting, in Phillipsburg, on Monday night.

R. B. Taylor has taken the coal yard at the C. R. R. of Pa. station, where he will handle Reading coal. A new office is being built down there for him.

Welsh Bros., 10c. shows slipped into town and out without causing much of a ripple on the usual smooth surface Bellefonte presents to the public view.

A delegation of Republicans are planning to leave this place, next Tuesday night, and journey to Canton, Ohio, to see McKinley. The round trip excursion rate is only $4.50.

Friday, October 23rd, has been designated as autumn Arbor day. Won't you do something to properly observe it? Plant a tree and see how interesting it will be to see it grow.

The venerable Isaac Haupt is lying at the point of death at his home, corner of High and Thomas streets. He is one of the old residents of the town and has owned considerable property in the West ward.

Dix Run, four miles west of Unionville, is to have a church. Calvin Peters has donated land for it and last week Rev. Alex. Smith, of Phillipsburg, held a grove meeting near the site. The result was very encouraging.

George Zettle, aged 81 years, was attacked by a buck sheep, while salting the cattle on his place, near Dale's Summit, last Wednesday. Mr. Zettle was badly bruised and suffered quite severely from the way the sheep knocked him about.

Miss Virginia Gray, a daughter of I. V. Gray Esq., of Phillipsburg, has accepted a fine position as an instructor in a school of classics, at Lowell, Mass. She is a graduate of the Phillipsburg High school and of the Normal at Stroudsburg.

The Phillipsburg Journal is beginning to worry because it hasn't any money saved up for Christmas. Don't worry, friend Bair. Just wait until Bryan is elected, then Christmas presents will grow on the pine stumps you have over there.

Farmer John Kishel, of Benner township, who was so badly used up in a runaway, on Monday of last week, was in town on Tuesday. He was still feeling stiff and sore, but thought he would sooner be moving about than be confined to his home.

Lock Haven ministers are a little different from some of those in Bellefonte. When the gospel tabernacle was opened down there, on Sunday, every minister in the city was on the platform with the evangelists. There were only two absentees and they were out of town.

The Epworth League reception, this evening, for the older members of the Methodist church, promises to be a very pleasant affair from the preparations that are being made. Sunday will be old people's day in the church and Rev. Samuel Creighton preach at both morning and evening service.

Elias Walk, a citizen of Taylor township, this county, died at the home of his brother Michael, at Vail, on Sunday evening. He had been there about five weeks when his demise occurred. Deceased was a veteran of the late war. He was 53 years old and is survived by a widow, but no children.

The Bryan and Sewall juniors paraded again, on Wednesday evening, and the McKinley boys were out too. The latter had things their own way until the Bryanites appeared, then the natty uniforms of the latter made the other boys feel so bad that they blew out their torches and quit.

Rev. Geo. Zehner, of the Evangelical church, performed a double wedding ceremony at Keller's hotel, in this place, last Thursday afternoon. Those who were joined in Hymen's knot were G. W. Frankenberg and Ella Shull, both of Millheim, and William McKinney, of Potters Mills, and Lizzie Moyer, of Centre Hill.

An incipient fire occurred in Harry Jenkins' cigar store, in the Brockerhoff house, on Sunday afternoon. Smoke was noticed coming out over the transom and an investigation proved that the room was full of it. As the proprietor was out of town a forced entrance was made, when it was found that some tissue paper used to ornament the window was on fire, but had not ignited the wood.

DUCK SHOOTING IS FASHIONABLE.—If any one imagines that President Cleveland has a corner on duck shooting in the United States he is a very badly mistaken person, as the following amusing little tale will prove:

Several days ago superintendent James Kelley, of the casting department of the Valentine iron company's big plant at this place, was standing along the bank of the clear spring water that flows by his house near the works. As the smoke curled heavenward from the over-worked pipe that stuck out under a fierce gray mustache, he rubbed up and down on the barrel of a rusty old rifle that he was polishing. The rubbing was not carried on with such energy that the metal got hot, for while fat men are by no means proverbially lazy Mr. Kelley isn't one of the kind who generates much friction by the rapidity of his movements. There was a sort of preoccupied expression on the countenance of the grizzled iron master, as he watched a few ducks bob up and down on the placid water of the dam. He might have been thinking that there is no better iron on earth than "Nittany;" he might have been revolving in his mind the sermon he had heard at church the previous Sunday; in fact he might have been day dreaming of a possible restoration of the royal family of France and his own consequent elevation in the ranks of the nobility. Whatever were his thoughts they were interrupted by the approach of two no less personages than superintendent H. C. Valentine, of the extensive ore operations of the Valentine ore land association, and poet laureate to Bellefonte's town council, and Mortimer O'Donoghue, that No. 90 fine, French gentleman who threw down his tricolor on the green fields of county Claire, some years ago, to become superintendent of the Valentine iron company.

With the suavity of manner begotten of French ancestry Mr. Kelley greeted his friends. He looked at them, then at the ducks and finally began rubbing his gun again. It was his fellow Frenchman who suggested the idea of trying a shot, but as Mr. Valentine has traveled on his marksmanship for years he was handed the gun first. Mr. Kelley told him that he had often thought of presenting him with a duck, so now was his opportunity to take it for himself. Having assured himself that the ducks were Kelley's and with all the sporting blood in him tingling he peeped the head swimmer in such a way that after the smoke had lifted there seemed to be nothing in the water but a bunch of blood flecked white feathers. Anxious to know just where he had hit it he and his companion set about to get it from the water. While thus engaged Mr. Kelley moved off to the furnace, where he knew (?) he was needed, and when behind his house he struck straight for the home of Mrs. Muchfussky, a pyrotechnically inclined Hungarian woman, the real owner of the ducks. Of course it wasn't a desire to get his friends into trouble that prompted Mr. Kelley to tell her what had happened. Oh no! It was his great love for justice and humanity. However he did the telling and she did the rest.

Imagine the surprise of the sports when they found themselves confronted by the irate owner of their quarry. Why the wildest descriptions of Mr. Bryan's talking apparatus isn't a circumstance to the flood of jaw breaking words she let go at those men. A compromise was the only way out of the trouble so she was offered the price of her duck, but, with a significant stamp of a Hungarian shoe and a contemptuous glance at the sum they held towards her, she pointed to the curl in her dead drake's tail and said: "Thata isa the ona ona hada!"

The gun is cleaned now, Mr. Kelley's face is just as serene as it was when he smoked that night; his French friend is supporting Bryan in the hope that immigration will be restricted soon and Mr. Valentine still walks with the same little spring that individualized his gait when, as a boy, he sang a nursery rhyme that ran something like this:

FOOT BALL AT STATE COLLEGE.—Tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the foot ball season at The Pennsylvania State College, will be opened. The Pennsylvania College boys, from Gettysburg, will line up against State and, while it is expected that the latter will win, the game will be interesting. Chiefly because it will give an opportunity of judging what strength the blue and white will develop on the grid-iron this fall.

With such men as captain McCaskey, McKibben, Walker, Scott, Thomas, Brown and J. G. Dunsmore gone the team, this season, must necessarily be nearly new. However there is another good Dunsmore left, who will direct Curtin, Beers, Joe Thompson, Sellers and several others of the old players, while the new material is being trained.

"General" Hoskins is gone. That is a great loss, of course, but a new trainer, Dr. Newton, U. of P. '93, Med., Philadelphia, is on the ground and the men seem to have confidence that he will prove a valuable coach. Whatever the result of Saturday's game great things will not be surprising from State, as it has invariably been the case that when prospects were darkest for her results were best.

THE LANLORD IN HARD LUCK.—John M. Neubauer, proprietor of the Brockerhoff house, was unfortunate in losing one of his pretty bus horses, on Sunday night. With a view to having the bus repainted he sent to Snow Shoe for another to use, while his own is in the shop.

After the team had returned one of the horses laid down and died.

Barnum's circus will be in Lock Haven tomorrow.

There are 539 inmates in the Huntingdon reformatory.

If you want to save money read Lyon & Co.'s new advertisement on page five.

Miss Susan Bouse and John Pletcher were married, at Clintondale, last Tuesday evening.

The Mill Hall brick works has just booked an order from the city of Wilkes-barre for 175,000 paving brick.

There is a free silver man in Blair county, says the Tyrone Times, who will not allow a golden rod to grow on his farm.

At Smethport, the county seat of McKean county, the public schools have been closed because so many children are ill owing to vaccination that they can't attend.

Isaac Pletcher, of Tipton, Iowa, visited Nittany last week. Mr. Pletcher was the representative appointed by friends in that State to attend the Schenck centennial held at Howard.

To-morrow Miss Mary Graham leaves for Philadelphia and New York for her fall millinery. She has excellent taste and always brings home much that is stylish and pretty.

Beezer and Hazel are enterprising young business men. They are doing a fine business at their meat market on the Diamond and it is all because of the excellence of their stock and the courteous treatment they give their customers.

On Wednesday of last week the country homes of William Goodhart and Israel Zubler, a few miles west of Spring Mills, were entered and robbed. Both families were at the Grangers' picnic at the time. At Goodhart's they got $7 from Miss Myra's trunk and at Zubler's $12 rewarded their search.

The Milesburg band will hold a festival at that place to-morrow, Saturday, evening. All kinds of refreshments will be served and the great contest that has been going on in that organization for some time will be wound up. If you want to enjoy an evening go join the band boys for to-morrow night.

A new rule affecting pension applicants has been promulgated by the department and goes into effect October 1. It is that all members of boards of examining surgeons must be present at the examination of an applicant for a pension unless the applicant shall consent to examination by those who may be present, the applicant may refuse to be examined.

The daily hotel Reporter, published at Washington, D. C., shows a remarkably long list of arrivals at the Metropolitan, of which Col. W. R. Teller, formerly of the Bush house, in this place, is now manager. It is not a matter of surprise that so many people should be going to Col. Teller's hotel, for he is one of the most wholesome men in the land and is an ideal, so far as a host is concerned. When candidate W. J. Bryan was in Washington he stopped at the Metropolitan. Judging from the length of the menu Col. Teller had served in honor of his distinguished guest, he is more of a bolocraat than ever and hoped to kill our candidate by stuffing him to death.

The condition of Miss Goodman, who was taken so suddenly ill at the home of Mr. John Meese, several weeks ago, is still critical. Miss Goodman, who is from Columbia, came up to Mr. Conley's at Centre Hall, about July 6th, to recuperate from a severe spell of typhoid fever. Two weeks ago, last Saturday, she came over to spend the day with Mrs. Will Conley, Mr. Meese's daughter, and after enjoying a hearty dinner became so sick that Dr. Locke was summoned at once. She suffered so intensely that an operation was decided upon as the only means of saving her life. Dr. Carl Visser came up from Philadelphia and assisted by Drs. Locke and Kirk, performed an operation for hernia. The operation was successful but her condition is far from satisfactory to her friends. Mr. Meese's hospitable home has been much like a hospital this season except that the doctors in attendance were of all the different schools. Mr. David Henschelmer, of Devon, who was there five weeks for his health, has just gone home greatly improved. Mrs. Meese has been sick much of the summer and now there are two white capped nurses in attendance on Miss Goodman.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED HIMSELF.—J. Murphy Small, of Harrisburg, accidentally killed himself at the home of his father, Mr. Charles H. Small, in that city, on Tuesday morning. He had risen shortly before 7 o'clock, and was getting ready to go down stairs. He was partly dressed, and it is supposed that he stopped to examine a revolver that was in his room. By some means the revolver was accidentally discharged, the ball striking him in the left side of the head, killing him instantly. Mr. Small was 25 years of age, and was just about ready to be admitted to the practice of law in Dauphin county.

The unfortunate young man was very well known at State College, as he was a member of the class of '93 at that institution and was, no doubt, the most popular man there during his college course. He lost his arm by the accidental discharge of his gun while hunting. He was a grandson of the late Mrs. James Calder, whose husband was President of State College.

APPALLING DEPRAVITY.—On Monday afternoon there was a hearing before Justice Keichline that was simply astounding in the evidences of moral depravity that came to light. That Bellefonte should be the scene of the awful practices that were accredited to her, under oath, is a matter that should arrest the attention of every honorable citizen and command a united effort to stamp out such infamy.

Henry Hollobaugh was arraigned before Justice Keichline. He had been in jail since last Friday night when he was taken into custody by officer Gares. He is a brother of the present Mrs. Joshua Foulk and makes his home with her. He is about forty-five years old, has a brown mustache and has a rather peculiar expression, made by large bones and a nose that appears to flatten down to his face having little prominence between the eyes. According to the testimony of several witnesses this man has been trafficking in the virtue of thirteen-year-old Hattie Adele Foulk, a very pretty little girl, who sat beside her mother during the hearing and never once raised her eyes as the awfulness of the degradation to which she had been subjected came to light. The testimony offered by the district attorney disclosed the brush work of the defendant in having taken the little girl out at night, and made shocking proposals to young men and boys regarding her.

Hollobaugh denied the charges in a straightforward story and was upheld by the girl's mother, but the justice remanded him to jail, in default of $1,000 bail, for his appearance at court.

If the charges preferred against him are true then no punishment that could be meted out is severe enough reparation for such an offense.

A GOOD ONE ON MR. BUCK.—At the time the bolocraats held their convention in Philadelphia Mr. S. M. Buck, of this place, sat as one of the single standard thinkers from Centre. His prominence being recognized by the Philadelphia Press that paper wired its correspondent here for a picture of our advocate of the yellow metal. Now if there is one thing Mr. Buck has an aversion to it is notoriety and he would sooner have lost his cause than have had his picture in a newspaper. It appeared, however, in the following Sunday's edition. But when the papers arrived in Bellefonte there was nothing by which our Mr. Buck could have been recognized except the name that was printed under the picture.

The sequel came out, the other day, when he received a photograph from the Press office. It is the custom of the paper to return such photos and it was a matter of great surprise to Mr. Buck when he received it, with his own name and address written across the back.

The young Reporter here, not to be outdone by Mr. Buck's aversion to notoriety, had secured a picture of a graduate of The Pennsylvania State College, class of '96, and palmed it off for the Centre county delegate and that is why a picture of C. H. Kuhn, of Altoona, appeared above the name of S. M. Buck, in the Press, recently.

DR. COLFELT TO PREACH AT STATE COLLEGE.—It will be a matter of much delight for the people of this vicinity to learn that Dr. Lawrence M. Colfelt, of Bedford, past pastor of the Oxford Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, and one of the most eminent divines in the country, is going to preach regularly at State College. Ever since his resignation of his Philadelphia charge, because of his unorthodox views on church creed, he has lived at Bedford, occasionally going abroad to fill an engagement of one sort or another. Of late he has been frequently called to State College to preach to the students of that institution.

It had been customary there to call different ministers every Sunday. Those from Bellefonte and the circuits about the College being there alternately. But of late the institution has come to need a minister of its own and as Dr. Colfelt was without a charge he has consented to preach in the chapel there every Sunday during the next three months of the fall term.

He will not locate at State College, but will fill the appointment there. In this way it might happen that Bellefonte will get to hear a great deal of him, as his Sunday nights will not be taken up.

RAIN SPOILED THE BALL GAME.—After the Central rail-road people had gone to the trouble of arranging a championship ball game, between the Denoreset club, of Williamsport, and the Sunbury club, for Hecla, last Tuesday, a heavy rain spoiled everything. A close game had been looked for as the teams are playing off a series in the river league championship contest and both were on their mettle.

The bicycle races in the morning between Bud Moore, of Williamsport, and Harry Miller, of this place, were not very interesting, since Moore refused to ride a mile straight and would race only on condition that it be done in heats of 1/4 mile each. Miller would have distanced him in a full mile race, but under the conditions that ruled Moore won both events.

The 12th annual convention of the Centre county W. C. T. U. met in this place yesterday. The day sessions of the convention were held in the rooms of the Union and a great many people interested in the work attended. In the evening a mass meeting was held in the court house, and was addressed by Mrs. Anna Bell Holway, state superintendent of press work of the W. C. T. U. Her subject was: "What the women have found out." Quite a number of representatives from various county organizations were here.

Dr. Joseph Kirk, a young and promising physician of Barnsboro, died at his home, in that place, on last Saturday, of typhoid fever. He was a cousin of Dr. Miles Kirk and clerked here when the latter had his drug store in Bush's old Arcade.

Miss Rebecca Blanchard has gone back to Wellesley college, in Mass., for her fourth year's work. Mrs. Blanchard will spend the winter in Boston, where her two younger daughters, Anna and Christina are attending school.

"Doc" Underwood, a son of Mr. Isaac Underwood, is home for a few days' visit with his parents. He is employed in a railroad telegraph office at Emporium, and reports that there are quite enough silverites in Cameron county to make a big fuss, any way.

Mr. H. L. Harvey, of Kipple, Blair county, a former well known resident of Centre, was here last week visiting friends. He came down with the remains of the late Robert Brown. Mr. Harvey doesn't seem to grow old near as fast as you would imagine one of his years would.

Judge Geo. B. Orsady, of the superior court of Pennsylvania, was in town on Friday, on his way to Centre Hall where his mother, Mrs. Martha Orsady, was visiting Mr. W. A. Beale's family. As she is well advanced in years and was not in good health the Judge was anxious to know of the true state of her health.

Thos. G. Perdue, the man after whose grandfather "Perdue's mountain" took its name, was in town last week visiting his relatives. He is now one of the stewards of the Huntingdon reformatory, and says it requires 14 bushels of potatoes and 20 lbs. of meat to make a meal for the inmates of that institution.

Mrs. W. L. Malin and that cute youngster, Ogden, have gone to Chester county where they will spend a few weeks visiting. If there is anything in the saying that "a boy who knows everyone will be a great man some day" then there will surely be a President in the Malin family ere long, for Ogden is a wonder for remembering names and faces.

Frank K. Lukensbach, who is now one of the main stays of the Phillipsburg National bank came over to his home, on Saturday night, to spend a few days of his vacation here. Mrs. Lukensbach was already in town and together with their baby daughter they are enjoying themselves among their many friends. Frank reports business rather quiet in the coal regions.

James M. Butler, of Youngstown, Ohio, is in Bellefonte trying to climb his family tree. Originally the Butlers are from Centre county, and this gentleman is a great-grandson of Joseph Butler, who was sheriff of the county from 1821 to 1824. He is related to the Greens and Thomases, about Milesburg, and is deriving much pleasure in hunting up relatives he has never seen.

AN ESCAPED PRISONER CAPTURED.—Wednesday's Lock Haven Democrat tells of the capture of an escaped convict as follows:

John Lupold, who escaped from the county jail, on April 23, last, was captured this morning on Sugar valley mountain. Lupold, ever since he gained his liberty, has been seen at different times. Yesterday morning while the family of Newton Bowers, of near Loganton, were attending a funeral, Lupold broke into the house and stole a double-barreled shot gun, a pair of shoes, a spot punch, a shirt and other articles. After the theft was discovered, constable Fetterhoff, Newton and John Bowers and other men started in pursuit of the thief. He was traced up the mountain and this morning about 6 o'clock he was run into the bushes. John Bowers rushed toward the fugitive, whereupon Lupold up with his gun and threatened to shoot. Bowers, undaunted, succeeded in reaching his man before he could pull the trigger and grabbed him by the collar. The other men then closed in on Lupold and placed him under arrest. He was brought to the city and placed in jail. Lupold says that he effected his escape from the jail by going through the pantry while the turn-key's attention was attracted to something else.

ALMOST KILLED.—Leo Stevens, the aeronaut, "Prince Leo," who made a number of ascensions from Hecla park during the picnic season down there, was probably fatally injured at Montreal, Canada, a few days ago. While making an ascent he fell from a great height and is now lying in a hospital in that city.

In Sunday's New York Journal he gives a graphic account of the fall he had here at the Park the time his balloon collapsed. In writing of it the story is highly colored and the distance he fell is stretched from 100ft to 4000ft, but, withal, it is so interesting from an exaggeration point of view that we will publish it next week.

UNION COUNTY FAIR.—The Pennsylvania railroad company will sell excursion tickets to Brook park, September 29, 30, October 1 and 2 good for return passage until October 3, 1896, inclusive, at reduced rates, account Union county fair to be held at Brook park, near Lewisburg, September 29, 30, and October 1 and 2, 1896. He was taken to his home, near the toll gate, and did not recover until late in the evening.
