Confidence Wanted.

The gold contractionists who are squeezing the life blood out of the people, depressing trade, and continuing the panic they commenced in 1893, are endeavoring to explain the hard times by saying that they are the result of a "want of confidence." This is refreshing impudence from a set of men who live upon the destruction of confidence and the wrecking of business enterprises. They are the men who watch the Treasury gold reserve as buzzards watch dying mules on the road, and who fill the ear with croaking predictions that the national credit will suffer if it falls below one hundred millions. They are the men who draw the gold out for export and then sell the gold back to the government at a premium to replenish the reserve. They are the men who cry down the bonds of the government so that they may buy them cheap. They are the men who induce the Treasury Department to put a hundred millions of bonds on the market at one time in order to lower the price, when ordinary business prudence would dictate the sale of the bonds in small lots, if at all, and in advance of the necessity for them and without any flourish of trumpets. They are the men who advocate the gold standard because they have money to sell, and want to make it dear. As money becomes dearer, property becomes cheaper. With prices constantly falling, capital is afraid to invest itself in enterprises. Farm products will not sell for the cost of production and transportation. Railroads become bankrupt for want of freight business. This frightens the foreign holder of railroad bonds, and he throws them into the American market for whatever they will bring. The greenbacks he receives are turned into gold at the Treasury Department and the gold is sent abroad. This makes more business for the bond buyers and the gold sellers.

The gold men have had their way now for a number of years. They repealed the Sherman act over three years ago expressly to restore confidence. They have advertised "the silver craze" as dead at frequent intervals ever since. They now declare that it is again dead. They say that McKinley's election is sure. He is going to carry all the States. Bryan is going to be snowed under. Gold is king. Gold is coming over here by the millions from Europe, apparently, as an advertisement of the certainty of McKinley's election, but really for two other purposes. First, to render a new issue of bonds unnecessary during the campaign, and, second, for the money that can be made on gold coin by temporarily forcing it to a premium by the gold panic makers after the election.

With all these conditions, what more is lacking? If all this will not restore confidence, what will? But no answer can be made. Confidence can never be universal under any system of finance, or any administration of it, so long as there are pirates on the ocean of business who can enrich themselves by frightening the timid. A very few men can make a great deal of noise. A false report of the existence of cholera in any city would send thousands of people out of it without an investigation. The vultures of business life thrive only in the presence of financial sickness and death, just as the vultures of the air thrive only where dead and dying animals can be found. What does Pierpont Morgan want of confidence? It would ruin his business and the business of all others like him. It is not a want of confidence that causes the hard times. They are caused by the contraction of the volume of money, and the men who make the most out of them are confidence men to whom the general prosperity would be a crowning disaster.—Cincinnati Inquirer.

Bryan's Good Points.

One feature of Mr. Bryan's speeches is very effective. Every day or two, in some appropriate locality, he brings forward great Republican statesmen who have passed over to the silent majority as witnesses in favor of free silver and against the gold standard. At Richmond, Ind., which was the home of Oliver P. Morton, he confounded the wearers of yellow badges by quoting from their great townsman. Said Mr. Morton in the senate, in debate with Carl Schurz, whom he ridiculed as a visionary: "An abundance of money—plenty of money—does produce enterprise, prosperity and progress." And he further declared there was "no more vitality in their (gold bug) theories as applied to the present condition of the country than there is in petrified snakes." But probably the strongest of his quotations was from Thurlow Weed, for 50 years the great leader and manager of Whig and Republican politics in the state of New York. Said Mr. Weed, discussing the silver question: "We are stigmatized as silver inflationists for asking the government to re-establish a financial basis under which the country and people were prosperous and happy for more than 80 years. This question, stripped of sophistry and verbiage, presents a naked issue of capital against labor. Shylocks, ever rapacious, are struggling to 'keep up the rate of usance.' In maintaining one standard—thus narrowing our specie basis one-half—they strengthen and perpetuate their advantages. There has been, as there ever must be, between the thousands who labor and the hundreds who enjoy the fruit of such labor, an irrepressible conflict. But it is the duty of government to see that the faces of those who labor are not held too closely to the grindstone.

And the way the deadly parallel has been drawn on Palmer and Buckner the gold bug candidates, on Halstead, on Carlisle, on Bob Ingersoll, on Bynum, Harrison, and last and least on McKinley, is simply crushing.—Post.

THE PEOPLE WILL BE TRIFLED WITH NO LONGER.

A Time Prophesied Five Years Ago by a Republican Senator. When Americans Would Enforce Their Demands for the Re-monetization of Silver, is Now at Hand.

From a Speech by Hon. John J. Ingalls in the United States Senate, Jan. 14, 1891.

There is, Mr. President, a deep-seated conviction among the people, which I fully share, that the demonetization of silver in 1873 was one element of a great conspiracy to deliver the fiscal system of this country over to those by whom it has, in my opinion, finally been captured. I see no proof of the assertion that the demonetization act of 1873 was fraudulently or corruptly procured, but it is impossible to avoid the conviction that it was a part of a deliberate plan and conspiracy formed by those who have been called speculators to still further increase the value of the standard by which their accumulations were to be measured.

"Mr. President, there is not a state west of the Allegheny mountains and south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers, that is not in favor of free coinage of silver. There is not a State in which, if that proposition were to be submitted to a popular vote, it would not be adopted by an overwhelming majority. If the proposition were to be submitted to the votes of this country at large, whether the silver dollar should be re-coined and silver re-monetized, notwithstanding the prophecies, the predictions, the animadversions of those who are opposed to it, I have not the slightest doubt that a great majority of the people, irrespective of party, would be in favor of it, and would so record themselves.

"I am not a prophet nor the son of a prophet, but I say to those who are now arraying themselves against the deliberately expressed judgment of the American people, a judgment that they know has been declared and recorded—I say to the members of this body, I say so far as I may do so with propriety, to the members of the executive of the nation, that there will come a time when the people will be trifled with no longer on this subject. Once, twice, thrice by executive intervention, Democratic and Republican, by parliamentary proceedings that I need not characterize, by various methods of legislative jugglery, the deliberate purpose of the American people, irrespective of party, has been contumaciously trodden under foot; and I repeat to those who have been the instruments and implements, no matter what the impulse or the motive or the intention may have been, at some time the people will elect a house of representatives, they will elect a senate of the United States, they will elect a president of the United States, who will carry out the pledges and execute the popular will.

OUR NOMINEE FOR CONGRESS.

COL. J. L. SPANGLER, is the oldest son of John Spangler and Annie Berger and was born in Adamsburg, Snyder county, Pennsylvania, September 17th, 1849. His early life was without special incident. He attended the common schools of Snyder county until 1860, when his father removed to Centre county and resided at Centre Hill and later at Centre Hall, in one of the most beautiful valleys of Pennsylvania from that until this, except during his official term as sheriff of Centre county, to which office he was elected in the year 1877. In his youth Col. Spangler learned the trade of blacksmithing in his father's shop at Centre Hill. When they removed to Centre Hill, he assisted his father in the hotel business. He was ambitious to gain an education and eagerly devoted his spare moments to reading and study. Col. Spangler attended the common schools in Centre county and was there fitted for entrance to the Dickinson seminary at Williamsport from which he graduated with honor in 1871. He entered the law office of Messrs. Orvis & Alexander in the latter part of '71, pursued the study of the law diligently and with success and was admitted to the bar of Centre county in January, 1874. He at once took high rank in the legal profession and his abilities were so quickly recognized that in the summer of the same year he was nominated for the office of district attorney of Centre county, and was elected by a large majority in the fall of that year. He filled the office ably and acceptably to the people for the full term of three years, and would undoubtedly have been re-nominated and re-elected in 1877 but for the fact that he declined a re-nomination, apparently for the reason that his father was a candidate for sheriff in that year.

Col. Spangler continued the practice of his profession, after his official term ceased, for a number of years, alone, and, subsequently, as the senior member of the firm of Spangler & Hewes. He had high standing at the bar and was an especially persuasive advocate, his genial disposition and temper making him an especial favorite with the jury.

He was chairman of the democratic county committee during the celebrated campaign of 1880, when Gen. Hancock received a majority of 996—an unusual one in Centre county and larger than that of any presidential nominee of that party since. In 1880 he was the cordial choice of his county for the nomination for Congress in the 24th Congressional District, and would undoubtedly have been nominated at the conference of the representatives of the several counties, but for the fact that Gov. Curtin had been a candidate for three successive terms previously.

Col. Spangler was married on March 24th, 1890, to Mrs. Eliza Wagner Holliday, and enjoys the domestic comfort to which he is entitled, in his elegant and hospitable home at Bellefonte. Although so largely interested in other localities and spending most of his time either at Hastings or Spangler, he maintains his residence in Bellefonte.

WORKING-MEN ASSERT YOUR INDEPENDENCE AT THE POLLS.

Chicago, October 19th.

To the American People:

In view of the fact that the great corporations, with scarcely an exception, and many of the large employers of labor in the United States, are engaged in a concerted effort to coerce their employees into voting at the approaching election against their own convictions, I deem it my duty to call upon all those who believe in the supremacy of the law and the untrammelled freedom of the individual in the right of exercising the ballot, to use their utmost efforts to prevent the success of this most flagrant act of lawlessness, for if this conspiracy succeeds government by corporations will have succeeded government by the people.

The corporations which thus appeal to force and fraud strike at the very foundations of Republican government, and the lovers of free institutions must arouse themselves to save the country from its great peril. Especially should the workmen assert their manhood rights. If they vote according to their convictions and in accordance with their interests, the Democratic ticket is certain of election, and in that case the employing corporations will have no desire to embark upon a policy of punishment. In the contest that is raging the salvation of the workingman lies in the assertion at the polls of his rights as a free and independent American citizen.

The perpetuation of this attempted outrage upon free suffrage will work its own cure. An indignant people, jealous of their rights, will demand that the Legislatures, State and national, shall proceed at once, by rigorous measures, to prevent the possibility of a repetition of such attempts hereafter.

The national committee, backed by the full power of the Democratic organization in every State in the Union, pledges itself that every scoundrel, whether public officer or private citizen, who is detected in any violation of the law, shall be vigorously prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary if possible.

JAMES K. JONES,
Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Amusing Mistake of the Mother of Girl Twins

There is a family over on the Westside in which there is a pair of twin girls. They are 5 years old, and resemble each other so marvelously that only the mother can tell which is Gladys and which is Grace.

On Saturday night, just before bedtime, the mother issued the order for baths. The older children took theirs, and along about 9 o'clock it was the turn of the twins. They were undressed and waiting.

The mother took Gladys into the bathroom and gave her a thorough scrubbing. Then she allowed the mite to play in the water a few moments, and after that put her on the rug, dried her, powdered her and put her to bed.

Just at that time the grocery boy came and the mother had to run downstairs and take provisions. After she had put everything away she came back, grabbed up a twin and took her to the bathroom. The little girl did not say much. After she was bathed she scampered back to her bedroom.

There was a whispered consultation between the twins and they both began to laugh as loudly as they could.

"What are you youngsters laughing at?" asked the mother, as she came into the room.

"Nothing," they protested, between giggles.

"But you are," insisted the mother.

"Well," said Gladys, rolling about on the floor in merriment, "you gave me two baths and didn't give sister any."—Buffalo Express.

SCROFULA SORE CURED. — In the Spring of 1890 a large lump appeared on the right side of my boy's neck. It grew larger until we became alarmed about it and consulted a physician. Various remedies were tried without avail. In May 1891 I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the boy began taking it, and in a short time the sore began to heal and finally it disappeared altogether. W. C. Kreamer, Milesburg, Pa.

—The following distinguished gentlemen have been suggested as the Big Four of the Republican party: Herr Most, as representing law and order; Ingersoll, as representing religion; Breckenridge, as representing morals, and Hanna, as representing honest money. How the bosoms of our Republican friends must swell with pride as they look upon these worthies!

WHY IS IT—If catarrh is a blood disease, as some claim, that physicians frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering? Catarrh is a climatic affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, causing instant relief and is a real cure of catarrh.

—It is your duty Democrats to see that every Democratic voter in your district is at the polls early.
