Utah's Jubilee.

Great Accomplishments of the Mormons in the Half Century of Life in Mountains.

Utah is no longer the Mormon colony of old, and the jubilee is illustrating this fact. If Brigham Young could return at this interesting juncture he would find that polygamy—one of the most cherished of his institutions—had gone down before the onslaught of public opinion; that his scheme of theocracy had been greatly weakened; that the State with the microscope.

He would also find that the Gentile had firmly established himself in the business, social and political life of the community.

On the other hand, the founder of Utah would certainly behold a noble monument to himself and his fellow pioneers in the splendid State which has grown from their lanting. He would find that his people, having prospered and multiplied amazingly, now rest securely upon the firmest of economic foundations. He would find that his church is still sending its missionaries to the four corners of the earth, and planting new colonies among the deserts and mountains of the West. Considering that he began with a mere handful of people who were utterly poor and in the midst of the hardest natural conditions, the great leader who sleeps on the hillside at Salt Lake City must be written down in history as an empire builder who succeeded.

The small party of emigrants who ended their tiresome and dangerous pilgrimage in the Utah desert 50 years ago had but the slightest promise of founding an enduring State. They had come to an arid land, and possessed neither canals nor the slightest knowledge of the art of irrigation. They had but a scanty store of provisions, and a thousand miles of desert and mountains lay between them and any base of supplies. They had no coverings for their crowded wagons, there were no forests near at hand from which lumber could be made. But they went to work under the direction of a masterful leader, turning the waters of a canyon stream upon the hard alkaline soil and staking the last of their stock of potatoes on the venture. The result of this desperate beginning is seen in the Utah of to-day.

This latest of American States contains fiftieth anniversary. Of these, less than one-third live in large towns, Salt Lake would be developed. A canal five would be developed. A canal five nearly 300,000 people on the occasion of its about 60,000, and Ogden, its cheerful rival about 10,000. More than two-thirds of the total population is dispersed in mining camps, on the stock range and over a myriad of farms.

There is a healthy current of imigration from both Gentile and Mormon sources, BUILDERS' and PLASTERERS' SAND, while the natural increase is so large and so characteristic that a photograph crowded with hundreds of bright baby faces, and labeled "Utah's Best Crop," is popularly sold in the stores and rises almost to the dignity of a State emblem.

> more deeply indebted to this item of its re- is gone. sources in the future, the broad foundation of its economic life is in its irrigated soil. There are some remarkable facts to be recorded about its 19,815 farms. In the first place, 17,684 of them are absolutely free of annual meeting at Milwaukee last week, all encumbrances. Whether or not it is made the statement in his inaugural adtrue that mortgages breed Populists, it is dress that the United States is the only an interesting fact that there are as few Populists as farm mortgages in Utah. The average size of these farms is 27 acres, but do not have the address at hand just now, as some large ranches are included in this and cannot quote figures with any cerestimate the figure given for the average is rather too high. The typical farms range United States pays 39 cents for its army from three to 20 acres—the smallest of any State in the Union. They are universally devoted to agriculture, and thus render their unmortgaged proprietors absolutely is quite as bad as that, but they all spend self-sustaining.

> In another important respect these farms differ from those elsewhere. Their owners all, what does it amount to? At this very do not live, as a rule, upon the farm acremoment the combined armies of Europe age, but in villages or home centers. These are unable to prevent the wholesale slaughare located at central points in bodies of 5,000 to 10,000 acres. The farmers have tion of Greece by the arrogant Moslems. their homes on acre lots in these villages. getting from this small area many of the things they consume and having the social advantages of town life to a considerable degree. The church is also the dance hall, and in the remotest hamlet there is a Saturday night dance led by the bishop. These social arrangements have contributed much to the contentment of the farming population. There has been less temptation for the boys and girls to leave the soil and go to the large towns than elsewhere. The people live under such conditions that neither panies, strikes nor wars could seriously menace their three meals a day These conditions have made them preeminently conservative, and Utah is perhaps the last place which would yield to the temptation of revolution.

The Mormons are admittedly the founders of irrigation among Anglo-Saxons. Until they made their first rude canal from City creek on that July day in 1847, men of their race had never dealt seriously with this industry. As the pioneers enjoyed a practical equality in the matter of poverty, their irrigation works were necessarily built by means of co-operative labor. Every man performed his share of the work and received his proportion of stock in the company which owned the canal. It was nearly 40 years after the first settlement was made before costly works were built by outside people, and the innovation was not regarded with favor by the Mormons. In Utah the stores, factories and banks are owned very generally by joint stock com-panies, consisting of multitudes of small share owners. The "coop" is a familiar expression heard everywhere and painted on numerous signs. The greatest of their stores is Zion's co-operative mercantile institution. This does an annual business of from \$5,000,000 to \$6,000,000. In 25 years it has paid dividends of nearly \$2-500,000, an average of  $9\frac{1}{3}$  per cent. for stock at the date of its original incorpora- Journal. tion in 1869, had accumulated to \$2,014,30 SECHLER & CO. in 1895, and in addition had received in cash dividends the sum of \$4,218.05. These profits had been shared by large numbers of stockholders and reproduced on a small scale by many other co-operative stores scattered throughout Utah, and ad-method. The beet sugar factory at Lehi was the first to be equipped with a com-plete plant of American manufacture. It is owned by 700 stockholders and pays handsome dividends.

After half a century the Mormon church is still the dominant factor in the life of Utah. In numbers and in wealth it is, of course, a far greater church than it was 50 years ago. The practice of polygamy, suspended by formal edict in 1890, is now a thing of the past, speaking in broad terms. But the doctrine is still religiously held among the tenets of the church. doubtless sincerely believed in by the ma-jority of the people, and is usually more vigorously defended by the women than by the men. There are occasional arrests under the drastic Edmunds Tucker law, but there seems no reason to doubt the good faith of the church in discountenan cing the practice. The older polygamists, who had maintained several families for many years, still support their wives. In some cases men divided their estates equally among their "plurals," but their first wife, if living, is alone recognized by the

Gophers Destroy a Canal.

An Oklahoma City enterprise has been ruined by the gopher pest. It was thought that the rapidly flowing North Canadian River could be used to operate all the mills that could be placed on its banks at Oklahoma City. The fall was nearly thirty feet miles long was constructed, at an expense of $40,000. It was diked part of the way and the river was crossed twice. The canal is twenty-five feet wide and four feet deep, and when four inches of water was let in at the head gate an electric light plant and a large flouring mill were run with ease, but an unsuspected enemy soon caused disaster to the enterprise. The banks of the canal were of porous, sandy soil and gophers attacked the dike, the holes which the animals burrowed quickly widened into crevices and and the sandy dikes were While Utah owes much of its present prosperity to its miners, and will be even more deeply indebted to this item of its re-

Jean Ingelow is dead. Thus passes the last of a group of English women peculiarly distinguished in the literary world of a generation ago, and deemed worthy to ocgeneration ago, and deemed worthy to oc-cupy the same throne on which were ele-vated the sterner giants of the pen. In the day of Tennyson, of Dickens, of Thacke-ray, of Carlyle, of John Stuart Mill and all their noble fellows. Jean Ingelow modestly, yet forcefully, formed one of the feminine circle which included such women as Har-riet Martinean George Fliot and Mrs riet Martinean, George Eliot and Mrs. Browning. Shy and retiring always, she did not grow gradually upon the readers of England, but at a single bound reached their heads and hearts with the publica-tion of her "Poems" in 1863. From that time both her verse and her novels enjoyed an enviable vogue, and her reputation, based upon the purest and most elevating of motives and inspirations, never faded, and extended throughout the United States with flattering financial results to her pub lishers. She had long lived a quiet life in London, devoting much time and thought to helpfulness toward the poor. She goes to her grave full of years and ac companied by the loving thoughts of the English speaking world. She was both
