FARM NOTES.

-Give the soil something for what you take from it, and protect the young trees from cattle and bark-loving marauders. With the same intelligent care that is given to other farm crops I am convinced that the profits of the apple orchard will exceed

-Do you sow grain in the orchard, especially wheat or rye. Oats may be sown after the orchard is well grown, and pas-tured down with hogs, with but little bad effect. Never under any circumstances allow timothy, red-top, blue grass, or any other grass that forms a tough sod, in an orchard. When the orchard is not in cultivation it should be in clover; hogs may be pastured on the clover.

Bones can be reduced without grinding by pounding them until they are the size of walnuts. In a barrel or hogshead make a layer of unleached hardwood ashes and one of bones, alternating until the barrel is nearly full. Keep the mass moist (not wet) with urine (which will assist fermentation,) or four parts water and one of urine. The bones will soon become soft, and the mixture can then be shoveled and made fine. The bone will be ready for use when it readily crumbles in the hand,

-An experienced farmer once told us that when he was obliged to begin feeding new oats, while still moist, he had saved injury to his horses by giving an equal bulk with them of wheat bran. As the ing to working horses.

—The farmer who grows large crops and does not make his farm richer every year fertilizers, but, with a system of rotation, and the growing of clover, the cost of fer tilizers will be reduced. When the land becomes richer every year the value of the farm is increased correspondingly.

—To keep sheep properly some attention should be given the breed that is desired; that is, in its selection. If the pasture is of the best kind the breed should be of the large growing individuals which reach heavy weights, and which are not expected to forage for their supply. If the herbage is scanty the breed should consist of more active individuals. The Southdown can be kept in larger flocks than the Oxfords. and they are capable of foraging more, coming nearer to the merino in that respect. If heavy-fleece merinos are used the carcasses must not be expected to be large and of the best quality. It is now known that a heavy fleece of fine wool and a carcass of the best quality for mutton cannot be produced on the same sheep.

-"I want to make cider into vinegar and wish to accelerate the process, as it takes too long to wait the natural process?' In reply to this query Country Gentleman

Keep the cider where it is warm-an artificially heated room is best. Elevate the barrel so that the eider maybe made to run slowly through a broad trough to a lower level, thereby exposing a large surface to atmospheric influences. It should take at least one day to expose one barrel of cider. No sugar, water or yeast should be put in the cider. A little "mother" hastens the operation of vinegar making. If the cider can be exposed two or three times in as many weeks, it should make good vinegar if the room in which it is kept is warm-60 to 70 degrees--and the cider has not been weakened by the use of water.

-If the food is so important then upon the use of suitable animals depends the conversion of the food into the desired product at the least cost. The cost of a pound of butter from the gulten meal ra-tion was 15½ cents, and 16½ cents from the cornmeal, ar a difference of one cent; but this cost was the average for the entire herd. The best cow produced over 12 pounds of butter in a week at a cost of 14 cents per pound, and the poorest cow produced $8\frac{1}{4}$ pounds at $19\frac{7}{8}$ cents per pound, making a difference in cost of $5\frac{7}{8}$ cents per pound. There is a difference in product be tween the poorest and best cow of 54 pounds, which, taking the difference in cost of $5\frac{7}{8}$ cents, shows a gain in the cost of the food in favor of the best cow of about 333 cents per week, but there is that great difference in the amount of butter per week between the best and poorest cow, which becomes very important when the market price of butter is considered. On the cornmeal ration the best cow produced 9½ pounds of butter per week, and the poorest 7½ pounds, the cost of the butter being 2 cents per pound cheaper for the best cow than for the other. As these cows were of the same weight, and all the members in each lot were fed alike, the difference in the production of butter per week between the best and poorest cow is strong evidence that it is unprofitable to keep cows unless they are the best to be had for the purpose

Some stories, Mr. Kipling says, are meant to be told aloud. Some are for rainy mornings and some for long, hot afternoons, and some are for bedtime. These stories of Mr. Kipling's are meant to be told "just-so," and one must not alter one single little word. They are stories about animals, queer, very queer anies. ies about animals, queer, very queer animals.

Mr. J. T. Trowbridge has written a serial, "Two Biddicut Boys, and Their Adventures With a Wonderful Trick Dog." This is marked by his best qualities and is full of effective interest. A lively story of track and field is the "Lakerim Athletic Club," by Rupert Hughes, which will tell of a year of sports carried out by a party of "real boys." Mr. W. O. Stoddard writes a stirring romance of chivalry, (With the Plack Privac") telling of the bulk with them of wheat bran. As the bran is itself nutritious the amount of oats may be diminished to the extent that the bran by weight is substituted. As the oats dry out the proportion of bran may be decreased until none is given. An Aged Man Dead.

James Chamberlain died at his home, on Sunday morning at Warrior's Mark, Huntingdon county, his death resulting from a complication of diseases. He was born on the 17th of March, 1811, and was aged 86 years, 7 months and 27 days. At the age of 20 he was married and he therefore lived sixty-six years in the ties of wedded life. For fifty-seven years he had kept the Exchange hotel at Warrior's Mark.

Mr. Chamberlain is survived by his wife, 82 years of age, and nine children, four of his children having predeceased him. The surviving sons and daughters are : Harvey and Daniel, of Warrior's Mark; Mrs. George and Mrs. Daniel Fetterhoof, of Spruce Creek; Mrs. Mary E. Kiefer, of Tyrone; Mrs. William States, of Buckingham, Ill.; Mrs. Rebecca Kiefer, of Birmingham ; Mrs. David Funk, of Warrior's Mark, and Mrs. Justin Staher, of Balti-more, Md. He was buried on Tuesday morning.

Durrant's Long Respite.

Not Likely That He Can be Executed Before Next March.

In view of the fact that the Supreme court, which is now in session in Sacramento, will adjourn on Tuesday next until the second Monday in January, it is not considered probable that W. H. T. Durrant, the condemned murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams, will expiate the crime for which he was sentenced to be hanged in December, 1895, during the current year. In the ordinary course of events, the matter cannot come up for hearing until the middle of January. After the case has been decided another thirty days at least must intervene before the remittur from the Supreme court can reach the trial court and the condemed man be resentenced. This course would not allow the execution to take place before the latter part of February or beginning of March next.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—The official Board of the Methodist Episcopal church, at a meeting held last evening, decided to ask for the return of the assistant pastor of the church, Rev. Robert H. like Rev. Crawford to marry.

When the matter was brought before the young pastor, no promise was given that ne would abandon bachelorhood. The charge is a married man's charge, and lately a $5000 parsonage was built. Unless Rev. Crawford does as his congregation desires him to do, it is feared that the Bishop will not make the appointment.
