What would you do if war should be declared to-morrow with a European power? How would it change your home life, the lives of your brother and other relatives? How would it affect your business connections and business? What changes would it make in financial, city, state and national affairs? It is these interesting problems which a writer in the December Cosmopolitan has undertaken to sketch under the heading of "A Brief History of Our Late War With Spain," at the same time vividly describing the exciting scenes which would attend the opening of hostilities. This same number of the Cosmopolitan has an article on "The Well-dressed Woman" by Elsie de Wolfe, a contrast of the characters of Henry George and Charles A. Dana by John Brisbane Walker, in another place "The Loves of Goethe," while Wells' story, "The War of the Worlds," which has been so widely read, reaches its conclusion in an unexpected way.

A LETTER FROM SANTA CLAUS.

NORTH POLE, Dec. 1st, 1897.

Dear Mr. Katz:—

Please inform all the little children, within 50 miles of Bellefonte, that I will make my headquarters this year at your store.

I will arrive there about two weeks before Christmas. I have nearly all my toys made for the good children, and those that I have not yet done I will finish in your store. Please have my workshop ready, so that I can go to work as soon as I come there, also have a letter box made so that the little children can write to me what they would like to have, and I will try to satisfy them.

Yours truly, SANTA CLAUS.

A very HANDSOME DRESSED DOLL which opens its eyes and goes to sleep and a nice sled will be given to the little girl or boy who writes the best letter to Santa Claus.
