Delights to Come.

Since the time of the winter solstice, or shortest day of the year, 94 days have passed, and the days have lengthened out very much. The sun is rapidly coming north and we have his rays for a much longer time each day. His power is also much greater by reason both of his longer daily stay with us and from the fact that his rays strike us more nearly in a vertical direction. In spite, however, of the great change which has taken place since the short and dark days of December, there is little, if any, apparent change in the outward appearance of things; and to all intents and purposes winter is as much with us as it was at Christmas. None of us would express much surprise should there occur, at any time within a week or two, a snow-storm.

And yet this is a spring month. In spite of the calendar, however, we look for winter conditions all of this month, and we shall still cling to our winter clothes and keep up our fires pretty steadily all of next month. The first of April, notwithstanding the steadily advancing sun, will see little change in the wintry aspect of nature, and it may be that up to the middle of next month only a few of the flowers that bloom in the spring will bear witness that sleeping nature is waking up. Every day in the meantime the sun will be coming farther north, at an accelerating speed, though upon the surface he will appear to be doing little execution; but in the 30 days after the middle of April he will present us with one of the greatest transformation scenes ever seen on any stage, and one that never ceases to excite our wonder.

He is even now slowly arousing the sleeping forces of nature, but so gradually as to be imperceptible. For more than a month he will continue these slow and silent preparations, and will proceed so cautiously that only the careful observer will detect what he is doing, but when all is ready he will wave his magic wand and almost in a day nature will be fully awake and clothed in the gay garb of spring. One day we shall look upon the trees on the hills and find them bare, gaunt and silent, and in a few days thereafter we shall find them waving sea of green, their soft, odorless leaves whispering to one another in the sunshine, while all the space above and around and beneath them will be found riotous with life. No matter how often we have witnessed this never ceasing to admire and wonder and to feel within ourselves a sympathetic thrill with the abounding evidences of life and growth all around us.

In this climate we are compelled to undergo a long and tedious waiting for the banishment of winter. It holds onto us with a tenacious grasp that seems destined never to let go. But there is an ample reward for all of our waiting in the beauty and delight of our spring when it does come. It is a joy such as never comes to those who dwell in tropic lands and who know naught of cold or of the discomforts of winter. They have green trees and flowers and delicious fruits all the year around. They have their stately palms, that rear their verdurous heads with little variation from season to season, and their luxuriant vines and plants, that display flowers of rainbow tints all the year; but they have nothing anywhere in the whole wide zone of which the equator is another center that can equal the beauty and sweetness of a Pennsylvania meadow—nothing so soft, so fragrant, so delicate and inviting as a Pennsylvania June rose.

The foliage of the evergreen trees of the tropics is hard, metallic and leathery. It looks as if it was made to last and to stand wear and tear. It is not to be mentioned in the same day with the tender, curling, fragile, fragrant freshness of our deciduous trees, as they unfold from the bud and in a few days change the whole face of nature. There are many delicious scents and flavors in the tropical forests and gardens, but in piquancy and in their stimulating effect on the senses they are tame and commonplace compared with those which our spring brings. Not in the famed vale of Cashmere, nor on Ceylon's lovely isle, nor in the gardens of Hesperides, neither on the banks of the Nile, the Ganges nor the Amazon; nor on the sunny isles of the Mediterranean, nor where the Antilles are laved by scented seas, is there grass so green, nor fields so fragrant, nor a sky so serene and blue as that which smiles over Pennsylvania in May and June.

Yes, we must wait a long time for spring in this latitude, but its glory is worth waiting for.

The Smoker's Cancer.

Notwithstanding all the good arguments that have been offered against the evils of excessive smoking it can hardly be claimed that the habit is entirely responsible for the production of cancer of the lips, mouth or throat. Since the illness of General Grant it has been the popular belief that the dreaded disease from which he suffered was caused by his over-indulgence in tobacco. Thus it may be easy to believe that another victim of tobacco have been added to the long list of similar sufferers. The fact, however, in these cases do not by any means confirm the theory. It was well settled in General Grant's case that tobacco in itself was not the initiative cause of his throat trouble, but merely induced a subsequent aggravation of symptoms by the extra irritation of the smoke passing over the already diseased surface.

It is quite true that cancer of the lip is very common among pipe smokers, but the real factor of harm is not the tobacco or any special poison it may contain, but the persistent, localized irritation of the pipe stem. Clay pipes, above all others, are particularly harmful, as they are most easily heated, have a rough surface for the lip, are mostly used by persistent smokers, and are usually held stationary on one side of the mouth, all of which tends to localize and intensify the irritation which determines the malignant growth. The first indication of the disease is a watery path on the lip at the usual point of contact with the pipe stem. When discovered early it is perfectly amenable to surgical treatment the percentage of cures being larger than that of any other form of cancer.

Old Cairo is changing visibly. The electric tramway to the Pyramids is an accomplished fact, and the eight-mile trip—before so expensive—is now possible for a few pence. Ismail's great causeway will be in no way spoiled, as the rails have been laid right along the side of the avenue, and, indeed, are scarcely noticeable.

A New Gypsy Queen.

A new queen will be crowned by the Roman gypsy band on May 22nd next at Topeka. This will be the second gypsy coronation ever held in the United States. On this occasion 800 gypsies of the Romany tribe will assemble at Topeka and hold elaborate ceremonies. Sixty of the gypsies have already arrived in Topeka and are making arrangements for the queen to be, Molly Fryer, who learned only a week ago that she had fallen heir to the gypsy throne by the death of her mother in Austria. In Topeka now and is at the gypsy camp north of the city. Her mother, Sophia Fryer, died several weeks ago in Austria, having ruled the Romany band for 62 years. Molly Fryer, being the next in line of succession, was chosen to be queen. As the queen must be 20 years of age, the coronation will take place May 22nd, which is her birthday.

There are 1,200 members of the Romany band in the United States, and between 800 and 1,000 will arrive in Topeka during the winter and take part in the coronation. It will be an elaborate feast. The coronation ceremony will be performed by Father Metrovitch, who is said to be beautiful. The crown which was worn by the aged gypsy queen for so long is now being remodeled for its new possessor, and a cousin, Minnie Youngs, will bear it from Austria to Topeka and will formally place it on the young queen's head.

It is composed of Bohemian garnets and solid gold and is said to be beautiful. When remodeled, it will contain several sparkling diamonds. Three months ago Molly Fryer was married at Balvinder, Ill., to Gustav Stackovitch, a young Australian, who is a member of the band. The English of his name is Stanley. He and his brother Louis and the latter's wife travel together and camp some little distance from the main body of the band. They have better tents, wagons and furnishings and live in better style. The Stanley brothers speak English fluently.

Molly Fryer is a typical gypsy. Her skin is dark, her eyes a brilliant black, her figure graceful and her manner easy. She speaks 13 languages but has not learned English well.

Louis and Gustav Stanley are now making the arrangements for the coronation of Molly Fryer. A large field will be procured, where the whole band will camp. In the midst of the camp a large tent will be erected, where the ceremonies will take place. Father Metrovitch, who lives in Chicago, will come to Topeka early in May and will have full charge of the coronation. The Romany band now has adopted the Catholic faith, but they never attend services in regular Catholic churches. When a gypsy couple is to be married and the distance is too far for High Priest Metrovitch, he sends word to a Catholic priest near to where the band is located, and the ceremony is performed in the usual way.

The Romany band dates its lineage back to the Pharaohs. For several hundred years the headquarters of the tribe have been in Austria. Eight months ago Molly Fryer came to the United States and joined the band with which she now travels. When the news came to Louis Stanley that Queen Sophia of the gypsy band had died, he set about notifying all the bands in the United States. A conference was held, and Topeka was selected as the place at which the coronation should be held. All the members of the Romany tribe of gypsies have now been notified of the coronation, and most of them are on their way overland to Topeka. The coronation of a queen among this people is the grandest event known to them. The exercises will extend through a week and the occasion will be a round of pleasure and joy. At this time also the gypsy band will formulate new rules. Queen Fryer has already begun the making of her coronation dress. It will be a gaudy affair of oriental style and made of rich material. Also she will wear many beads and necklaces which will be brought by the various bands, and she will be a queen charming to the Romany tribe.—Topeka Letter in Kansas City Star.

Cooking Chickens.

A Variety of Receipts That Add Novelty to the Menu.

Here are a few different ways of cooking and preparing chickens:

Potted Chicken—Strip the meat from the bones of a cold, roast fowl. To every pound of meat allow a quarter of a pound of butter, salt and cayenne pepper to taste, a teaspoonful of pounded mace and a half of a small nutmeg. Cut the meat into small pieces; pound it well with the butter. Sprinkle in the spices gradually and keep pounding until reduced to a perfectly smooth paste. Pack it into small jars and cover with clarified butter, about a quarter of an inch in thickness. Two or three slices of ham minced and pounded with the above will be an improvement. Keep in a dry place. A luncheon or breakfast dish. Old fowls can be made very tender by putting into them, while boiling, a piece of soda as large as a bean.

Scalloped Chicken—Divide a fowl into joints and boil till the meat leaves the bone readily. Take out the bones and chop the meat as small as dice. Thicken the water in which the fowl was boiled with flour and season to taste with butter and salt. Fill a deep dish with alternate layers of bread crumbs and chicken and slices of cooked potatoes, having crumbs on top. Pour the gravy over the potatoes, a few bits of butter and bake till nicely browned. There should be gravy enough to moisten the dish. Serve with a garnish of parsley. Tiny new potatoes are nice in place of sliced ones when in season.

Baked Chicken—Prepare young chicken as for fricasse by cutting them into pieces. Dip each piece in beaten egg, then in grated bread crumbs or rolled cracker; season them with pepper and salt and a little minced parsley. Place them in a baking pan and pour on the top of each piece a lump of butter, add half a cupful of hot water and bake slowly, basting often. When sufficiently cooked take out on a warm platter. Into the pan pour a cup of cream or rich milk and a cupful of bread crumbs. Stir it well until cooked, and then pour it over the chicken. Serve while hot.

Broiled Chicken on Toast—Broil the usual way, and when thoroughly done take it up in a square tin or dripping pan, butter it well, season with pepper and salt and set in the oven for a few minutes. Lay slices of moistened buttered toast on a platter, take the chicken up over it and add to the gravy in the pan part of a cupful of cream, if you have it; if not, use milk. Thicken with a little flour and pour over the chicken.

HELPED BY AN HONEST DOCTOR

Determined to Restore Health to a Man Stricken With Paralysis, the Physician Prescribed the Remedy That Has Proved Most Powerful in Such Cases and Effected a Complete Cure. A Warning and a Lesson for Hard Workers.

This is a plain, straightforward account of a farmer who worked too hard, who became helpless through a stroke of paralysis, but who had the good fortune to be attended by an honest doctor, who cured him by prescribing Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"The farmer is William Stimpson. His farm is near Rugby, Ind. Like thousands of other intelligent, hard-working men of his vocation he owns valuable property and is considered by his neighbors a well-to-do man.

Like thousands of others he worked through fair weather and foul to provide comfortably for his household.

Like thousands of others, on arriving at the age when the strain of toil should slacken up and rest begin, the grim enemy—paralysis clutched him. His cure was so unexpected, so rapid and complete, that it is a neighborhood wonder.

"While gathering a heavy fall harvest," he says, "I worked early and late. My hired help left me and I finished the fall work alone, but the end of the harvest found me exhausted.

"About the first of December I had a stroke of paralysis. We called in the doctor. He said over-work had caused my trouble.

"My leg lay dead and helpless; my right leg was fast falling into the same condition.

"After treating me a week without any gain, my doctor bade me to search for something for which I can never thank him enough.

GRAVE COMPLICATIONS.

OFTEN ARISE FROM LITTLE THINGS.—MR. JAMES ROBERTS'S SCRANTON, CITIZEN, HAS AN EXPERIENCE.

Little things are constantly occurring that we do not attach much importance to at the time. They don't seem to amount to much, and perhaps only annoy us as little irritants. We unfortunately cannot see what effect they are to have in the future.

Mr. James Roberts, a citizen of Scranton, residing at 1905 Lafayette street, told our representative something of his experience that clearly demonstrates what a difference a grain of sand may make in the end.

It seems Mr. Roberts caught a severe cold about three years ago, and at the time chills followed, and he had severe sweating attacks; which were often so bad he found it necessary to change his clothes.

The complaint grew worse and bladder difficulties set in. A soreness and pain extended in the lower portion of the abdomen. Urinary troubles followed, the urine was dark colored, depositing sediment. The kidneys were not performing their proper functions, and this was at root a kidney disorder. It was a difficult matter to draw a chair to a straight position without causing pain, and for a great portion of the time he was rendered incapable to work. Then he noticed the words of praise sounded for Doan's Kidney Pills, and getting a box at Matthews Bros. drug store he began taking them.

With the second day of their use he felt a change for the better, and now he gets around and is working with comparative ease and comfort. Most of the bad symptoms have entirely left, and they are all rapidly disappearing. Mr. Roberts is still taking Doan's Kidney Pills. He says that they are curing him, and that the greatest remedy of his kind Doan's Kidney Pills.

"No remedy has ever been so successful with both old and young in righting the kidney's action when deranged, and no medicine ever compounded has received such words of praise as Doan's Kidney Pills. 'Tis easy to prove our statements. Watch for them they may be from neighbors of yours, whom you cannot doubt, no matter how skeptical you may be.
