The Guanajuato Catacombs.

The Only Burial Place of the Kind in America.

Knowing what you expect to see here, it is only natural for you to enter the cemetery with some little nervousness and trepidation. But you are reassured when you do enter the big gate, for there is nothing uncanny or "triste," yet to be seen. On the contrary, this Mexican "God's Acre" is all tranquil and bright and beautiful—and you do not think even of the square, black-lettered spaces, that are honey-combed, one above the other, all the way around the great wall of the Pantoon. These square spaces, five rows of them, contain a vault each, and that is where the interment is made.

It is an enormous place, this cemetery. And well that it is so, for, during the great typhus epidemic in 1893, it received (so people say) about the third of the then population of Guanajuato. For a time, the city council kept some sort of tally on the deaths but as, later on, the council itself, and most of the physicians, succumbed to the fatal disease, no count was kept, and interment was made in a great trench dug in the center of the Pantoon, one coffin, with a spring bottom, serving for all, when the ceremony of a coffin was used at all.

However, waiving the matter of epidemics, in Guanajuato when a person dies the family at once arrange to rent one of the box-like spaces in this Pantoon, rent $1 per month, payable in advance. Then the "dealer" (as Sentimental Tommy has it) is put away in one of these vaults—not to wait the last trump, but to await the next Pantoon pay day. When that day comes if the family can't raise the $12 for the next fiscal year, the city council have the vault unsealed, the coffin taken out, and the "dealer" transferred to the huge passages below the Pantoon, in the "catacombs."

The "Catacombs" comprise enormous underground passages that run all the way around the Pantoon.

The Pantoon man pushes back a big flat stone, over in a corner of the cemetery, and invites you to step into a small dark hole, which admits only one person at a time, and contains a small, winding stone stair, built pretty much on the corkscrew plan. Some godless person, with more sense of humor than grace, has placed the tallest, ugliest and uncleanest (if there is such a word) of all the mummies, at the very bottom of the last step, so arranged that as you descend the crooked stairs, you land right into his bony arms.

It is truly a grisly thing to see, once you are safely there. Imagine to yourself long, seemingly endless white passages, silent as only death can make them, heaped up at each end with great piles of bones—the

Parkes' Grave Now Full.

His Body and One Arm Placed With the Rest of Him. Curious Chain of Accidents Which Deprived Him of Four Wives, a Child, His Father, Two Legs, and One Arm—Visiting His Own Grave Finally Caused His Taking Off.

After having been reported dead several times William F. Parkes of Kappahannock, a suburb of Girardville, has really passed away. He died on Monday from a complication of diseases, the result of lying unconscious one night last July on a grave in which both his legs and one arm were already buried in a coffin.

Parkes was born in a suburb of Detroit, Mich., and at the age of 20 years married Bessie Woodruff, who lived only a year. Shortly after this he had a leg broken by being thrown from a colt he was trying to break. Blood poison ensued, and three amputations were performed, until nothing remained of the limb.

Recovering from the effects of the surgical operation, Parkes married his dead wife's sister, who nursed him during his illness, and a short time afterward the couple left for Saratoga, N. Y. The train on which they rode was wrecked. Parkes was pulled unconscious from the debris, clasping the dead and mangled body of his wife. Parkes was seriously injured, his remaining leg being so badly crushed that it had to be amputated.

The grave that contained his first leg was now opened and by its side was placed the second leg.

After spending a year at the home of his father, Parkes recovered sufficiently to operate a wheel chair. He became a frequent visitor to the farm adjoining that of his father. Boarding with the family was Miss Bessie White, an invalid and having but one arm, having lost the other from the effects of a fall down stairs. Parkes and the woman met, loved, and in three months they were married. Their affection was intensified by the sympathy that each had for the other, and for two years they lived at New York and Detroit. Then the shadow of death crossed Parkes' life for the third time. His last wife bore him his first child, and her will bequeathed him $25,000 with which to relieve his wants for the remainder of his life.

Third widowed, Parkes returned again to his father's home and engaged a nurse, Mrs. Maria Lawlor, to care for his baby girl. Mrs. Lawlor was young and comely, and for the fourth time Parkes fell in love. After six months the wooing ended in acceptance, and the legless man's home was brightened the fourth time by a wife. Parkes bought and fitted up a little cottage near the old homestead, and there he lived until misfortune again overtook him. While watching at the bedside of his father, who was very ill, a servant at his own cottage upset a kerosene lamp in the bedroom. The fourth Mrs. Parkes and her child, who were asleep at the time, perished in the fire. The shock killed the elder Parkes, and the funerals of parent, wife, and child took place the same day.

Parkes was lifted into a carriage after the ceremony at the three graves, and while the graves were being filled he met with an accident in which he lost an arm. The horses took fright at a locomotive, and dashing down the road came in collision with a tree, instantly killing the driver and throwing Mr. Parkes from the carriage. When picked up he was unconscious, and it was found that his arm was crushed and broken in two places. It was amputated and buried with the grave before. His next affliction was the death of his mother, who bequeathed him $50,000 in cash and real estate valued at $10,000.

Parkes had now only part of himself to live for, and began weekly visits to the grave of his legs and arm. On the second visit he was run down by a runaway team and seriously injured. Part of his shoulder had to be cut away to save an arm. This part was placed in the coffin with his two legs and arm. Parkes continued to be a weekly visitor to the grave, which he kept strewn with flowers until that July day last year that he fell unconscious on the ground.

Parkes left a will in which he bequeathed $50,000 to a hospital for injured coal miners and directed that the remainder of his estate, $20,000, be expended in a monument to mark his last resting place.

Weyler's Daughter.

"It's just too bad," said Mrs. St. James Playce, "that such a bad man as General Weyler has such a popular daughter." Mrs. Playce did not look up, notes the Buffalo News.

"But that is always the way," she mused, "and she has such a lovely name, too."

"Whom are you talking about?" asked Mr. Playce suddenly.

"Why General Weyler's daughter," she replied.

"I didn't know he had one," replied Mr. Playce.

"Why, yes; here it is all about the Spaniards shouting for 'Viva Weyler' and—"

It being Lent, Mr. Playce did not say it but puffed hard at his cigar and then went into the hall to smile.

A Difference of Opinion.

"I had a scrap with my teacher to-day, dad."

"What was the trouble?"

"She said 'Burns was a poet,' an' I said he was cap'n 'n' th' Chicago Colts."

Pension List Grows.

The Roll is Now Larger Than at Any Former Time—An Increase of 90 Per Cent. in Seven Years.

In sending to Congress a deficiency estimate of $3,070,572 for pensions this year, Secretary Bliss makes an interesting statement on the general subject of pensions up to date. Secretary Bliss says: "On the first day of July, 1897, there was available $140,000,000 for the payment of army and navy pensions; $4,000,000 of that amount was set apart for navy pensions, leaving $136,000,000 for payment of army pensions. The total number of pensioners on the roll June 30th, 1897, was 976,014, while on the 28th of February, 1898, there were 999,613 on the roll, a net increase of 13,599. The Commissioner of Pensions estimates that $48,700,000 is to be required for the payment of pensions during the remaining four months of the fiscal year, more than $8,000,000 in excess of the expended appropriation. The Commissioner has recently expressed to me an opinion as to the future course of pension payments at variance with his views thereon, as stated in the annual report, which was to the effect that after the close of the current year payments would rapidly decline. "It is now his opinion that in view of the increase in number of applications for original pensions and for increase of pensions there will be an increase in the sum required for the payment of the army and navy pensions for some time to come. In this connection the appended table showing the number of pensioners on the roll and the value of the roll annually since 1857 is significant. From this it appears that the pension roll has substantially doubled since a quarter of a century after the close of the war. In 1890, twenty-five years after the war closed, the number of pensioners on the roll was 577,944. At the close of the current fiscal year the number on the roll will approximate 996,000, an increase of nearly 90 per cent. since 1890. In that time the value of the roll has increased from $72,052,143.49 in 1890 to approximately $132,000,000 in the present fiscal year. "The roll is now larger than at any former time, notwithstanding that thirty-three years have elapsed since the cessation of hostilities. It contained about 5,500 more pensioners in 1897 than it did in 1896, and approximately 20,000 more in 1898 than in 1897, and the value of the roll has also increased in the same period."

How to Look Good.

Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver is inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach is disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys are affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alternative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils, and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at F. Potts Green's drug store. 50 cents per bottle.

Johny (who is just learning about electricity)—"Pa, I thought electric lights were the result of recent discoveries?"

Fond Parent—"Why 'cause Willie Jones said to-day that they must be an old thing, and when I asked him why, he said, Well, Noah must have used an ark light."

A little 5-year-old Chicago boy was visiting in the country when a bowl of bread and milk was given him for supper. He tasted it, then paused and looked at it for a moment in silence. "Don't you like it?" asked his mother. "Yes, indeed," replied the little fellow; "I was only wishing our milkman would trade his wagon for a real cow."

May Die of a Baby's Bite.

Dr. Benjamin Put His Finger in an Infant's Mouth, and Its Teeth Made a Laceration.

His efforts to save the life of a dying child may result in the death of Dr. Benjamin, one of the best known physicians of South Jersey. The doctor's attention was called last Friday to the condition of a baby at No. 214 Burns street, Camden, in a poor family, that he with others had been providing for during the winter. The baby had membranous croup and was choking to death when the physician arrived.

Hoping to save its life, the doctor put his finger in its mouth to dislodge the phlegm. The little one in its agony closed its teeth on the physician's finger, making a slight laceration. The child died, this being really its death struggle. The doctor paid no heed to the wound until his arm began to swell. This has continued up to Wednesday, when the doctor rested easier.

Drs. Godfrey and Davis have taken charge and are doing all they can to save their patient. They hope to succeed. Dr. Benjamin's arm, however, is twice its normal size, and he is in an exceedingly weak condition.

A Brick Capitol.

The new state capitol will be constructed of brick, and the architect says that the cost of the building will not be beyond the amount of money appropriated by the legislature. The architect is of the opinion that the capitol can be built in time for the meeting of the next legislature, if a contractor can be found who will employ a force sufficient to do the work and who can secure apparatus large enough to handle the material to be used in an expeditious manner.

A state capitol built of brick is not exactly what the people of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania can contemplate with pleasure, but there is no apparent remedy. The state is poor. Her treasury is almost bankrupt. The schools of the state are waiting for the funds that should have been paid them months ago. There is a prospect that a deficiency will confront the next legislature. Under these circumstances the state cannot erect a state capitol such as the great Commonwealth should have and must content itself with a brick structure.

The deplorable condition of the finances of the state is due to the fact that the last legislature looted the treasury and hung about the necks of the people a debt which they will feel for many years. The state treasury and the people were fleeced by every trick of extravagance and illegal appropriations known to the corrupt legislator. And yet the legislators do not blame. The people who elect the members of the assembly must share the responsibility for the present condition of affairs, which has brought reproach upon the fair name of the Keystone state and compelled the erection of a brick capitol to replace the one that was mysteriously and suspiciously destroyed by fire.

The people are again asked to stand by the boss whose henchmen are ever ready to prey upon the public purse and work assiduously for their own aggrandizement and the enlargement of the power of their leader. Will the taxpayers of Pennsylvania never learn or having learned, will they never put their knowledge of the corruption that follows in the footsteps of boss Quay to the use of destroying his power to bring disgrace and bankruptcy upon the state? The revolt against Quay and treasury looting should come soon that further corrupt practices may not prevail.—E.
