THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

—Simon King, of Shickshinny, has taken charge of the Coburn hotel.

—Miss Lizzie Gross, of South Potter street, is seriously ill and it is feared that she has appendicitis.

—Newt and Perry Steele, of Axe Mann, have a masonry contract in Mill Hall and are there filling it.

—Captain Harry Simler, of Phillipsburg, began his duties as mercantile appraiser on Monday morning.

—Irvin F. Hunter, Mill Hall's new postmaster, has appointed his son, M. Hunter, as his deputy.

—Will Dunwiddie, a prominent Phillipsburg druggist, is lying at the point of death with pneumonia.

—The Loganton base ball club defeated the nine from Rebersburg, at the former place, on Saturday, by the score of 9 to 0.

—Jay Woodcock, a son of Mrs. Anna Woodcock, of this place, is among the first eight honor men in the Junior class at Princeton.

—Israel Confer, of Millheim, fell down a flight of stairs in the bakery building in that place, last Friday morning, and seriously injured himself. He has been confined to his bed ever since.

—Robert Tate, a veteran of the late war and the newly appointed post-master at Nittany Hall, died very suddenly on Wednesday morning. Deceased was about 66 years old and died in the Evangelical faith.

—Arden Southard, a son of Henry Southard, of Phillipsburg, has left for the Klondike. He went with a party of Cincinnati capitalists and is guaranteed $15 a day. Their expedition will pan out the sand bars on the Yukon.

—Spontaneous combustion set fire to the Jones furniture company's store, in Tyrone, on Tuesday night, and $3,000 damage was done before the flames were subdued. The building was damaged to the extent of $500.

—The Wagner Bros., who have remodeled the Broeckerhoff mill at Roopsburg and are busy rolling flour of equal excellence to the grade that made their product at the old Rock Mills so popular, have a fine new delivery wagon on the road.

—The K. L. C. E. of the United Evangelical church of Howard will hold a mystery social, on Friday evening, April 22nd, 1898, at the home of Rev. J. R. Sechrist, on Main street. All are very cordially invited to attend and enjoy a pleasant time.

—A. S. Garman has received $1,859.93 insurance for the damage done to the Empire house in Tyrone by fire. It will be remembered that Mr. Garman was just about to move into the hotel when it was gutted by fire. A new roof and other repairs are being hastily made, so that the hotel will be reopened in a very short time.

—At a meeting of Constans Commandery, No. 33, K. T., on Friday evening, W. I. Fleming, deputy district commander, installed the following officers for the ensuing year: Eminent commander, Dr. R. G. H. Hayes; generalissimo, George T. Bush; captain general, William L. Steele. He was assisted by past eminent commander, W. F. Reeder.

—The Easter assembly of the Undine engine company in the Armory, on Monday night, was a success from every point of view. The dancing was continued until nearly three o'clock and a large party of young people were there to enjoy it. The pleasure of the evening was not marred by the slightest disorder and it is said to have been the nicest dance of the kind given in a long while.

—R. A. Beck, who was awarded the medal as the most popular fireman of the town and whose shop in the National bank building is always full, bids fair to become the "cracker jack" of the town. Last Saturday he presented to his patrons, their sisters, cousins and aunts, two hundred and ninety eggs in commemoration of Easter. And they were not ordinary colored eggs but decorated chocolate ones that fairly melted in your mouth.

—Mr. J. Fearon Mann and family will probably leave Bellefonte on next Wednesday. Mr. Mann has succeeded in renting Mrs. Patton's house, in Lewistown, and within a week the entire family will have gone from Bellefonte. Anna was taken to Newton Hamilton yesterday morning. The confusion in the home here made by the packing up and getting the house repaired for its new owners was so trying for her that her father took her to Newton Hamilton, where she will visit until the house at Lewistown is ready.

—Little Earnest, the fifteen months old child of Harry Wagner, who lives just opposite the Broeckerhoff mill at Roopsburg, was playing on the floor at his home, Sunday evening, when he caught hold of a chenille table cover and pulled a lighted lamp over onto himself. The burning oil ran all over the baby, burning him frightfully and his father was seriously burned in his efforts to save the little one. At first it was thought that Earnest could not survive, but the family have hope for his recovery now.

THE MYSTERIOUS DROWNING OF STANLEY BRACHBILL.—Pretty little Stanley Brachbill, gentle and sweet as ever a child could be, lies sleeping in death at the home of his mother, Mrs. J. C. Brachbill, on east Howard street, and the sad ending of his life is enshrouded in mystery.

He left his home shortly before 6 o'clock Wednesday evening to carry supper to his brother Will, who is employed at the skewer factory, where they are so busy that the boys do not have time to go home to their evening meals, but work right through until late at night. He reached his brother in safety and after staying with him a few minutes started to return home. He wanted to wait to accompany his brother home, but Will, thinking it would be too late for the little one, advised him to go back at once. When he left his brother's side it was the last that was seen of him until his body was pulled out of the race at Gerberich, Hale & Co's. mill yesterday morning at 2:45.

When Will reached home about 9 o'clock Mrs. Brachbill inquired for Stanley, whom she thought must certainly have waited to accompany him home, and he was surprised to learn that his little brother had not been heard of since he had left with the supper pail on his arm. A search was begun at once. It was late for such a little fellow to be out and all became very uneasy. Every quarter of the town was visited, but no trace of the missing child could be found. The search was kept up until 1 o'clock when the searchers were about to give up until daylight; and then Mr. Charles Shuey went up to the home of John Lose, an employe of W. R. Brachbill's furniture store, to see if Stanley had been about there. He thought that perhaps the little fellow might have gone around to see his uncle and been accidentally locked in the ware rooms. Mr. Lose had not seen him about the place, however, and Mr. Shuey gave up in despair. Then a strange thing happened. Mr. Lose had no sooner returned to his bed than a frightful spectacle seemed to pass his mind. He saw the still water of the race and a little cap floating on it and then beneath its unruffled surface his wandering fancy penetrated still further until he saw Stanley's dead body. The fancy seemed so real and so awful to him that he could not sleep. His wife tried to reassure him that it was only groundless imagination, but he could not rest. Accordingly he got up and went to Mr. Shuey's house, where he told of his waking dream and that gentleman became convinced that there might be some reality in it. The two got a lantern and a rake and went down to the race. They examined the banks all along to see if there were tracks or a mark where he might have slipped in, until they reached the entrance to the forebay at Gerberich, Hale & Co's. mill. The mill was not running and considerable drift had gathered at the screen. Among this Mr. Lose cast his rake. The third cast he caught the cap that Stanley had worn.

The rest of the story was all too plain to them so they sent for officer Mullen, corner Locke, district attorney Singer and Mr. C. T. Gerberich, L. C. Wetzel, Harry Gerberich and Harry Hartrauf. The next step was to close the gates at the head of the race, then Mr. Gerberich opened the mill and as the water began to move the body was evidently cast up from the bottom, as Mr. Lose caught it on his rake after a very few trials. It was at the side opposite the rail-road tracks, about eight feet above the screen and only a foot or so beneath the surface of the water.

There was very little water in the body and not a bruise or a mark of any kind was to be found. The lips were slightly whitened but that was all there was to indicate that the child was not in a natural sleep. The body was taken to the home that had already been stricken by the death of the father, so recently.

Coroner Locke impaneled the following jury: C. T. Gerberich, Harry Gerberich, L. C. Wetzel, William Reasner, Harry Hartrauf and Amos Mullen. The body was viewed when taken from the water and there the inquisition rested until last evening at 8 o'clock when it met in Dr. Locke's office and returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

No one seems to have seen Stanley after he left the factory, shortly after 6 o'clock. It was reported that he had been playing with some children at the corner of Allegheny and Lamb streets about half-past seven, but the boys who were there say he was not with them. Had he been there at that time it is the supposition that he was returning to the factory to go home with Will and either slipped into the water while crossing the logs at the forebay or he might have been floating a play ship, that he had been wanting so badly and talked so much about. It is quite evident that he fell in somewhere between the entrance to the forebay and the gates of the old cooper shop, 30 feet above, for the latter are used as flood gates and if he had fallen in above there his cap would have been drawn out over them on the swift overflow.

The funeral will take place from the house this afternoon at half-past two o'clock. Stanley would have been 9 years old in July and his application was on file for admission to Girard college.

—Mrs. David Stover, aged 87 years, died at her home in Haines township, on Wednesday morning. Her death was caused by heart trouble superinduced by old age. A husband and three children survive. Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. W. H. Stover, of Rebersburg, to-morrow morning and interment will be made at Wolfe's chapel.

JOHN ASBURY PENNINGTON.—John A. Pennington, a native of this county, died at his home in Tyrone, on Wednesday morning, after having been ill with an affection of the heart since last Friday.

Deceased was born in Pennsylvally, near Spruce town, December 30th, 1830, and was 67 years, 3 months and 14 days old. He farmed and was engaged in other occupations in this county until 1886, when he moved from Pine Grove Mills, to which place he had gone after leaving Spruce town, to Tyrone. He was in poor health when he left Centre county and only went to Tyrone because he was unable to work and wanted to be near his children, who were there.

On the 27th of December, 1853, he was married to Miss Sarah Slack. To the union were born twelve children, all of whom with their mother survive the husband and father. The children are: R. H. Pennington, of East Wheatland, Ill.; Uriah Pennington, of Springfield, Neb.; Mrs. Thomas McCann, of New Brighton, Pa.; Miss Mary Pennington, of Belle Vernon, Pa.; Miss Fannie Pennington, of Reedsville, Pa.; Mrs. David Otto, of Benore, Pa.; J. A. Pennington, Pitcairn, Pa.; Tonner Pennington, of Tyrone, and Misses Jennie, Laura, Mary and Bessie at the family home. Two sisters of the deceased survive, viz: Mrs. Daniel Tomner, Canton, Ohio, and Mrs. Jones Sealy, Joliet, Ill.

As a christian gentleman he was respected by all who enjoyed his friendship. He was conservative in all things, but once convinced of the rectitude of his inclination he went forward with determination. For thirty-two years he had been a member of the Methodist church.

Interment will be made in the Tyrone cemetery this afternoon.

DEATH OF MRS. HEATON.—Sarah E. Shroyer, wife of Henry Heaton, was born March 10th, 1833, and died April 6th, 1898, aged 65 years and 26 days. Deceased was the wife of deacon Henry Heaton, of the Millsburg Baptist church. She united with the church during the pastorate of Rev. Frederick Bower and was baptized in February, 1850. A christian for forty-eight years. She was a faithful wife and devoted mother and leaves to mourn her departure, a husband, two sons and three daughters, to whom her life is a bright example.

"There is no death—the stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore."

Yes! life immortal, life forevermore! Since that has gone to the eternal shore. The silent, swift transition of the soul Has placed thy name on the immortal roll. Death has vanquished—over, all the strife— Death's conqueror has given eternal life.

No more affliction, suffering, or pain— No more, thy bark be tossed on billow's crest. No more, the storms of life's proleptic unrest. From all the ills of life, thou art made free. Now, mayst thou, full of health and power stand For sickness cannot enter that fair land.

THE Y. M. C. A. GYMNASIUM BUILDING BURNED.—A few minutes before 10 o'clock Saturday night the large frame gymnasium that occupies the lot at the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building, on north Allegheny street, took fire from an overheated flue and had gained such headway before it was discovered that all attempts to save the building were futile.

An alarm was not sent in, for some unaccountable reason, and the first intimation the town had of the fire was the lurid glare that so suddenly lit up the misty blackness of the night. The building was framed, lined with flooring and being dry as tinder it burned with frightful fury. The flames had already broken out of the eastern end when the first stream of water was gotten onto the fire, so that it was evident to the firemen that all they could do was to save adjacent property. The building was hemmed in on all sides by buildings that it seemed impossible to save, but by the efficient handling of seven streams the department was able to confine the flames to the gym, not one of the adjacent buildings being scorched. This was only possible because there wasn't a particle of wind blowing and the flames shot straight up. It was one of the hottest fires the town has ever had, but it was all over in half an hour from the time it broke out.

The building took fire from a large heating furnace that was located in the extreme eastern end, where the shower baths were. It had been customary to fire it up on Saturday evenings to have hot water ready in case anyone wanted to use the baths. That night Milton Derr, the assistant secretary, had made the fire and walked out into the association rooms to wait until it caught up. When he returned the entire gymnasium was filled with such a dense volume of smoke that it was almost impossible to enter it. The alarm was given and the boys who were about the rooms were able to save some of the gymnasium equipment.

Some of the people who live in a tenement immediately at the rear of the building noticed a shower of sparks flying out of the chimney and called Ben Williams' attention to it. He walked down and looked into one of the windows, but could see no fire. This is evidence that it must have caught between the roof and the ceiling, where there was a five foot loft that the pipe ran through.

The loss to the association is quite a serious one. The building was erected a few years ago at a cost of $450. Equipment worth $150 was put in then and later the steam heating and shower baths were added at a cost of $160. Then the bowling alley was put in at a cost of $200 and other equipment added so that the aggregate amounted to about $1,000. On this there was an insurance of $600, which the adjuster cut down to $580 when he settled.

LEE'S SURRENDER WAS CELEBRATED.—The celebration of the surrender of Genl. Lee and the southern confederacy at Appomattox in April, 1865, in the court house in this place, Saturday evening, drew a great crowd. Standing room was at a premium when commander Sam Miller of Gregg post called the meeting to order and introduced Dr. Geo. W. Atherton, President of the Pennsylvania State College, who was to preside.

Events such as the one of Saturday night can be either very unpleasant or highly gratifying; it depends entirely upon the manner of their conduct. In taking the chair Dr. Atherton made the opening address and at the very outset announced that it was an occasion for looking forward, not backward, so that every speaker that followed took the cue, so gracefully given, and there was not a reference to anything that might have been distasteful, even had there been veterans in the grey there that night. Dr. Atherton's talk was at once learned and entertaining. He could readily have held the attention of the large audience for a longer time than he chose to talk, but after speaking, generally, of the mightiest clash of arms the world has ever seen, the sincerity and valor displayed on both sides, the perfect submission with which the vanquished accepted their defeat, the magnanimity of the vanquishers and the peaceful return of all to peaceful pursuits, he concluded with the hope that the United States, in which there is no more a North or a South or an East or a West, might be the means of extending liberty to the oppressed in Cuba. This expression aroused great enthusiasm and it had scarcely subsided ere Hon. A. O. Furst was presented.

Judge Furst was really interesting. One might have thought that he was an eye witness of the scenes from the fall of Richmond to the surrender at Appomattox so carefully and entertainingly did he recite them. His address was absolutely free from any of that rallery that at some occasions of this sort is so painfully evident. Judge Furst was not in the service long, but his talk shows that he is broad enough to know that the trouble that ended with the surrender at Appomattox should be left as part of the dead past.

Col. D. F. Fortney was the next speaker and confined his remarks to the flight and capture of Jeff Davis and the assassination of Lincoln. They were punctuated with anecdotes that kept the audience in a good humor all the while and rather prepared it for John Blanchard's dramatic recitation of "Sheridan's Ride." After this general camp-fire followed and continued until quite late.

A. J. Bigony, a civil engineer in Lock Haven, shot and killed himself early Wednesday morning. He had been in poor health and worried considerably over other matters until he thought the surest relief from his troubles was to end his life. Mr. Bigony was the city engineer and lived with his wife on west Water street, Lock Haven. He got up between 5 and 6 o'clock Wednesday morning and walked to his dresser, from the drawer of which he took a loaded revolver, and shot himself. The ball entered his head just back of his left ear and went clear through. Death was instantaneous. He was a brother of Penn Bigony, at one time a clerk at the Bush house in this place, and his father was the first proprietor of that hotel. It will be remembered that the father committed suicide last year.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.—Following is the list of marriage licenses granted by orphans court clerk G. W. Runberger during the past week: Robert A. Eidell, of Snow Shoe, and Bessie A. Quick, of Moshannon. W. C. Young, of Spring Twp., and Margaret A. Reese, of Boggs Twp. Newton J. Wilson, of Half-Moon Twp., and Carrie K. DeLong, of Curtin Twp. Frank Haines and Etta M. Albert, both of Phillipsburg, Pa. Thos. J. Miller, of Romola, and Ida M. Packer, of Newburg, Pa. Elmer Conaway, of Potters Dale, Clearfield Co., and Sophia E. J. Haggard, of Moshannon. Frank G. Houser and Blanche Welty, both of Benner Twp.

WANAMAKER IS COMING TO TOWN.—Next Tuesday night John Wanamaker, Maj. Meyrick and Senator Kaufman, of Lancaster, will be in Bellefonte to speak at a public meeting to be held in the court house. They are touring the State for the Business Men's League and constitute the great anti-Quay propaganda. It will be a great night in Bellefonte. Wanamaker has never been here before and now that he is coming on politics bent, after repeated disappointments of visits for church picnics, etc., there will doubtless be a great crowd to hear him.

The Bellefonte post-office applicants are advised to shun the court house Tuesday night as they would a pest-house. All others dare attend without fear of the consequences. The Bellefonte Central railroad company will run a special train for the meeting, at a single fare for the round trip from all points along the line.

News Purely Personal.—Dr. and Mrs. John F. Alexander, of Centre Hall, were in town on Tuesday. They took advantage of the first real spring day we have had and drove over. Miss Roberta, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Noll, is in Clearfield visiting her brother, Charles, and his family. She has not fully recovered from the severe illness she lived through in the winter but is so much better that her friends are greatly encouraged. Jerome Harper and Will Kelley went to Philadelphia, on Monday evening; the former to consult a specialist and the latter to assist his mother in getting her household goods packed up before moving back to Bellefonte. Mrs. Kelley expects to spend a month in New York before returning. Isaac Tressler, himself 73 years old, was down from Linden Hall, on Tuesday, to take the preliminary steps toward settling up his venerable father's, Jonathan Tressler, estate, who died last week at the age of 97. Mr. Tressler is still active in engaged in farming and is one of the most influential men of that section. Mrs. Curtin has returned home from her visit to New York. She was attending the wedding of her son-in-law William Sage and Miss Whitney. Miss Whitney was an intimate friend of Mr. Sage's first wife, who was much like her father, the Governor, in disposition and cleverness, and visited the Curtin's here several years ago. W. F. Heberling, of Benore, an old vet and a good old reader of the WATCHMAN, came down to town on Saturday morning to be here in time for the commemoration of Lee's surrender. He was one of the appreciative audience and had seen enough active service to fully appreciate the significance of the meeting. He is a radical Bryanite and says the gold-autocrats can yell Anarchist at him as much as they please. D. L. Dennis, Esq., of Pine Grove Mills, was in town on Saturday looking robust and happy as there was nothing but good fortune in life for him. Mr. Dennis is living in Pine Grove, where he doesn't do a thing but loaf from morning till night and he smiles when you ask him whether it suits him. He is sixty years old and was a hard working farmer up to last year, when he sold his farm and moved to town to rusticate. Mr. Anthony Gatens was in town yesterday, enjoying himself as he usually does and contributing to the good cheer of all his friends. Anthony is about as happy a character as breathes the air of Buffalo Run and he is perfectly satisfied in his snug little home along the mountain three miles west of Bellefonte. The pride of his heart is that silver sugar bowl he lifted from Robert E. Lee's wagon train near Richmond during the war and with the pension he has lately been granted his last cause of grievance has disappeared. Harry Foult, an old Bellefonter who has been gone from here for thirty-three years, yet has only been as far away as Altoona, was in town on Wednesday on business for the Pennsylvania railroad company. He is foreman in one of the departments of the big car shops in the mountain city and his service has been so long and faithful that he is held in very high esteem by the company. He is a brother of Joshua Folk and served as a soldier in the same company with Charles Smith, of Bishop street, so that with such friends here his coming back was one of as much pleasure as could be crowded in between his periods of business. The departure of Miss Anna Mann for her new home in Lewistown, yesterday, was rather sad for all concerned, and on Anna's account, for she has been here so long and looked so frail as she was carried from the carriage, very few of her friends were allowed to say goodbye to her. Mr. Mann and his family have lived here for twenty-three years and, until the American Axe and Tool trust bought him out, had charge of Mann's axe factory the old substantial industry of the place so that their going is more than an ordinary loss—indeed it is like closing up a period of the town's history as the family has had to do with the town's material welfare for generations. In going to Lewistown they are going back home but are not the less sorry to have them go. James Harris, of Philadelphia, has bought their home on Allegheny street.

THE HYGIENE OF CHEERFULNESS.—The Rev. Miles O. Noll's lecture, on Friday evening, April 22nd, on "The Hygiene of Cheerfulness or Pills for the Liver," will be delivered in the court house. The Bellefonte mandolin club will be present and furnish the music. The lecture will be for the benefit of St. John's Reformed church.

OYSTER SUPPER.—All the friends of the United Evangelical church of Bellefonte are cordially invited to an oyster supper, ice cream and cake on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 15th and 16th, in the church. You may expect a first class supper, prepared by the skilled hands of the members of the ladies' aid society of the church.

A CIRCUS COMING.—On May 10th Ringling Bros., big circus will visit Bellefonte and a great day in town may be expected. The manifest for the circus train has not been received here yet, but the agent who was here on Wednesday says they have 55 cars. It is a western circus and this is its first trip through the East.

THE SPECIAL TRAIN FOR THE DANCE AT THE COLLEGE.—The special train for the Senior assembly at State College this evening will leave here at 7 o'clock p. m. and run straight through to the College; returning after the dance. Chappell's Williamsport orchestra will furnish the music for dancing.
