FARM NOTES.

-Bear in mind that when using oil or grease of any kind on fowls only a little should be applied, as grease will sometimes destroy chicks. As a spray for poultry house use kerosene emulsion (or kerosene), adding a gill of sassafrass oil and half a pint of crude carbolic acid to a gallon of kerosene or emulsion. Two or three applications will destroy not only the lice, but the "nits" and eggs.

-A poultryman who is noted for succes in producing vegetables states that he grows twice as much on an acre as formerly. He keeps 100 fowls, and has two lots of ground, one being given up to the fowls, while the other is used for a garden, the lots being about one and a quarter acres each. The next year he turns the fowls on the garden plot and uses for a garden the plot then vacated by the fowls. By thus giving up the garden plot to poultry every alternate year he keeps the soil very fertile.

-When to spray apple trees depends on the purposes desired. Use Bordeaux mixture when the buds are swelling and if canker worms are abundant spray also ter the blossoms fall spray again with Bor-deaux mixture and also Paris Green, repeating both applications a week or ten days later. In about ten days or two weeks another application may be made of Bordeaux mixture. These remedies or pre-ventives are for scab, bud moth, codling moth, tent caterpillar, curculio, and canker worm

-It is not so generally known as it ought to be that squashes may be procured sev-eral weeks earlier than is possible in the open ground by planting the seed in an inverted sod and putting it in a hotbed until the seed germinates. Then take it out and set the young plant in the open ground, where it is to perfect its fruit, enclosing it with a box, which should be covered with a heavy mat at night to exclude the cold. In this way the squash may be advanced several weeks in readiness for market, and will sell for enough higher prices to make the experiment highly profitable.

-There are several kinds of phosphates and the inexperienced farmer is sometimes unable to understand the characteristics of each or make a suitable selection of the kind best adapted for his purpose. Fineground bone is prepared from bones pro-cured at slaughter houses, the fat and other organic matter being removed, the bones thoroughly dried, and then ground. When treated with sulphuric acid the bone-meal is then known as dissolved bone, or superphosphate. "Floats" is ground phosphate rock, but when dissolved through the rock, but when dissolved through the agency of sulphuric acid is sold as "acidu-lated phosphate rock." There is also a material known as "slag meal," "basic slag," or "Thomas slag," so named from the inventor of a process by which the phosphorus of iron is removed during the process of making steel. With the aid of lime a slag is formed, which is finely ground when cold. It is a very heavy sub-one week. stance, as considerable iron enters into its composition. All of these forms of phosphates are on the market, and their value depends upon the amount of phosphoric acid contained and its availability. All materials used as sources for phosphoric form, but the cost is greater than for that not soluble, as the labor of dissolving the bone and the cost of the acid used must be added to the price. The Salt Habit People Eat Entirely Too Much of This Condiment in Their Food.

The use of salt as a condiment is so generally and so universally believed in as necessary that we rarely hear a word against its excessive use, but there are a multitude of persons who eat far too much salt ; eat it on everything—on meat, fish, potatoes, melons, in butter, on tomatoes, turnips and squashes, in bread and on a host of foods too numerous to mention. To so great an extent is it used that no food is relished which has not a salty taste, which is often very delicate. Now the amount of salt required in the system is comparative-ly small and if the diet has been rightly compound very little is necessary. Some go so far as to discard its use altogether, but whether this is wise or not we will not here consider. What are some of the evils of the excessive use of salt? They are to paralyze the nerves of taste, or to pervert them so that they can not enjoy anything which has not a salty flavor, and in addition there is a direct tax on both the skin and kidneys in removing it from the blood. Whether the skin is harmed by this tax we do not know. Possibly it is not greatly injured, yet we know that few people possess a healthy skin ; but it is now pretty well settled that an excessive use of salt does overtax the kidneys in its removal, and that the great number of cases of de-rangement and disease of these organs is when the blossoms are about to open. Af- due to this cause. It takes only a little time to learn to enjoy many kinds of food without salt, and we advise our readers and others to look into this matter and try to diminish the use of this condiment as far as possible. We believe they will be better for it.

Born a Joker.

Senator William E. Mason always has been a joker. Even when a school boy he never let a chance pass without having his fun at the expense of someone else.

When he was a public school pupil the boys knew as much about "cribbing" as they do now, and it was nothing new for them to conceal needed information on their cuffs or inside their watches.

One day when Willie Mason was taking an examination the keen-eved teacher observed him take out his watch every minute or two. The pedagogue grew sus-picious. Finally he strode slowly down the aisle and stopped in front of Willie's desk.

"Let me see your watch," he commanded.

"All right, sir," was the meek reply. The teacher opened the front lid. ́Не looked somewhat sheepish when he read the single word, "Fooled."

But he was a shrewd man. He was not to be thrown off the scent so easily. He opened the back lid. Then he was satisfied. There he read :

"Fooled again."

growers of peaches must begin preparations to prevent the attacks of the borer, which Jersey Experiment Station, has devoted much attention to the borer, and the station has issued Bulletin No. 128 as a special educational paper on the treatment of peach trees. It is claimed that the trees on light soil suffer more than those on heavy land, while in some stony orchards the trees are almost exempt ; but there are exceptions, however. The usual practice is "worming," which means that once or twice in each year the tree is carefully examined, and if an exudation of gum and sawdust indicates a borer this is cut out, as the peach tree endures severe cutting.
