

Spring Mills.
D. A. Ruhl, our accommodating landlord, is doing an excellent business this spring.

Very few candidates have been circulating in our neighborhood of late. What is the matter, are they all sailing close to the shore?

As soon as the weather becomes settled, postmaster J. D. Long intends erecting a fine residence on the main road leading to the railroad station.

After a number of delays the Spring Mills planing mill company have their main building under roof with sufficient machinery to commence business this week.

Garden making is now in progress. Of course some folks are rather dubious and apprehensive of a visit from Jack Frost, but a visit from Jack at this late day can hardly be expected. Still doubtful things are very uncertain.

The high school in our Academy building, a special session of ten weeks for advanced scholars, under the instruction of that accomplished teacher Dr. D. M. Wolfe, has an attendance of over fifty pupils. The instructions, studies and discipline in the school during this special session is of such a character that it might be said to rank with a college.
