Dolly Madison's Sorrow.

Few Realized How Great a Weight She Bore Upon Her Heart.

The beautiful Dolly Madison, who always turned a smiling face upon the world carried in her heart a sorrow which might have embittered a nature less sweet.

The handsome, dark-eyed boy, the only surviving child of her first marriage, who, nesting at her feet, accompanied Mr. Madison and herself in the Philadelphia on their wedding journey from Philadelphia to Montpelier, seemed to exhibit those downward tendencies which the most loving precaution seemed powerless to arrest.

To a little city boy to whom the world had presented itself only in the brick and mortar aspects there was a wonderful charm in the life of a Virginia plantation; and, during his parents frequent visits to Philadelphia, he always begged to be allowed to remain with his "Grandmamma Madison," who, after her son's marriage, removed to a wing of the building, where she maintained a separate establishment.

The 3,000 acres attached to Montpelier belonged to the original Madison estate, taken up three years after the settlement of Jamestown, and everything within doors and without possessed some special interest.

The Declaration of Independence hung for years on its walls, there were busts and medallions and pictures and books of great historic value scattered about, and the tiger lilies on the lawn were raised from seeds sent from La Grange by Lafayette.

There was a wonderful garden, too, in the form of a horse shoe, tended by a French gardener, in which the choicest fruits and flowers grew.

What delighted little Payne most, however, was the animal life with which the plantation teemed—the pastures filled with variegated cattle; the timid sheep, that huddled together at his approach; the fancy fowls, that ate the grain which he held in his hand, and the horses, behind which he sometimes drove with his beautiful mamma. A negro butler, too, more than 90 years old, with hair like a well-cared-for lamb's fleece, who stood behind his grandmother's chair, had a special fascination for him, and the quarters, separated from the great house by a leafy screen, where he heard weird songs and stories, and where the colored mamies roasted yams for him on cabin hearths, were a powerful magnet drawing him often down the woody path which led to them.

As he grew older his grandmother gave him a daily task to learn, endeavoring to instruct him further by reading aloud to him; but Payne's mind, which opened wide for the reception of bear and Indian stories, closed like an oyster against useful information.

In time he was sent to school to the Bishop of Baltimore, where he was associated with Madame Bonaparte and the other members of the circle in which she moved, but with the polish which he thus acquired he contracted habits of extravagance and dissipation which clung to him through life and eventually proved his ruin.

When his parents were installed at the White House he joined them there. He had inherited his mother's winning manner, to which was added the adventitious glamor surrounding the President's son, and, sought after and flattered, he soon lost his taste for the simple life at Montpelier, only going there in the hunting season with parties of his fashionable friends.

Realizing the danger of his situation, Mr. Madison induced him to accompany the Embassy to Europe to treat for peace with the British representatives at Ghent, but there he was regarded as the Prince of America, the heir apparent to a foreign throne, and fresh adulation was heaped upon him. While away he neglected to write to his mother, who was obliged to apply to others for information in regard to him, and in one of her letters to him she said:

"I am ashamed to say, when asked, how long it has been since I heard from my only child."

Years after this foreign sojourn, when dissipation had destroyed every trace of the beauty and refinement which then distinguished him, Henry Clay met him on the streets of Washington one day, and, after regarding him attentively, said:

"Do you remember, when we were in Russia, how John Quincy Adams and the rest of us sat apart in a gallery and watched you dance with the Czar's sister, we being debauched because we were not of the blood royal?"

His own ample fortune being soon squandered, young Todd made constant demands upon his mother's means, and Montpelier was finally sold to pay his debts.

Mrs. Madison's letters to him were filled with remonstrances and appeals, and the last words which she uttered were: "My poor, poor boy."

He survived her only two years, dying at a hotel in Washington on H street, and tended only by a few of her old servants. His remains were borne to their final resting place in the Congressional cemetery on Washington's birthday. As the hearse which conveyed them there wound slowly through the streets in a heavily falling snow, two carriages followed it. In one was single friend; in the other the faithful slaves.

Preserving Wood.

A curious by-product of zinc is chloride of zinc, which formerly went to waste, but now is used as a wood-preservative by railroads, bridge builders and dock builders, and for the protection of shingles, clapboards, pillars and any other wood that is exposed to moisture or influences that cause decay. The salts of zinc, in solution, by hydraulic pressure are forced into the pores of the wood, which is then soaked in a strong solution of tannin and glue. The ties and piling now used on the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific and other western roads are treated in this manner. The railroad companies named use from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 pounds a year each. With this treatment a pine tie, which is the only kind that can be found out in the mountain country, will last three times as long as one of oak.

Talk about having a gold mine. It is said that an Italian who occupies the position of "boss" to 500 of his countrymen who are working in the western part of Pennsylvania receives $100 a day for filling that position. Railroad men say that everyone of the 500 pays him 25 cents a day for securing them the job and looking after his interest. Reads like a fairy tale, but it is said to be strictly true.

Famine and Fever

LONDON, May 27.—Appalling accounts of the famine in Russia continue to reach London. Rev. Alexander Francis, pastor of the British-American church in St. Petersburg and Chairman of the Relief Fund committee, addressed an appeal to the English people, and the chronicle suggests opening a Lord Mayor's fund to collect subscriptions. Mr. Francis' letter bears on the information cable last Sunday, that 5,000,000 people are starving to death and that every donor of $2 saves a life.

Scurvy, typhus fever, typhoid fever and other diseases in their most aggravated forms have broken out and are spreading rapidly among the starving people. The mortality, especially among the children, is alarming.

Princess Lieven writes from the distressed Christianopol district, Eastern Russia: "You cannot imagine what they eat. All the stomach. Typhoid fever and scurvy of the most virulent form are the natural results of the bad and insufficient food. There is constant bleeding from the roof of the mouth, which is swollen, and the gums also bleed when touched. The teeth get loose in their sockets. Open sores appear on the feet. Death comes from internal hemorrhages."

"About 70 cents is sufficient to buy food to keep up the strength of a man for a month, so a little money goes a long way; but thousands are to be fed, and speedy help is needed, for people's lives are at stake."

Two Big Mortgages

B. and O. Files Papers at Washington Involving a Hundred and Forty Million Dollars.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company placed on record here to-day two mortgages covering all its property, rights and franchises. They cover the largest amount of money of any traction ever recorded here.

The first is a prior lien mortgage to the Mercantile Trust Company, of New York, to secure $75,000,000 in bonds, payable July 1, 1925, with 3 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually.

The second mortgage is to the United States Trust Company, of New York, and John A. Stuart, to secure $65,000,000 in bonds, payable July 1, 1948, with 4 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually.

The first mortgage carries $37,500 in revenue stamps and the other $31,500.

Elk is for Dixon.

Democrats Indorse Him for Treasurer and Mayor for Supreme Court.

RIDGWAY, May 24.—At a meeting of the Elk county Democratic committee here to-day, John McGovern, E. G. Beck and George C. Simons were elected delegates to the state convention and Representative George R. Dixon was unanimously indorsed for State Treasurer.

Judge C. A. Mayer was indorsed as first choice for Supreme Judge and Judge David L. Krebs, of Clearfield, as second choice.

A few days ago while Mrs. Charles Braun of Indiana was doing some cooking on a small flat gas stove, which she had set on a low box in her kitchen, Mrs. Brand took her apron to lift a vessel off the burners when in some manner her apron caught fire. She did not notice it and had set down on a chair and was reading a paper when she noticed smoke coming from the back of the chair. She ran for the open air alabaz. Her screams attracted two women who extinguished the flames. Mrs. Brand is severely burned about the shoulders and back, and one arm is burned very badly.

David Holderbaum, of Bedford, had a narrow escape from a horrible death at his farm near Cessna a few days ago, when a mad bull made an attack on him. The animal forced Mr. Holderbaum against the corner of the barn's horns frequently striking him in the sides, inflicting painful injuries. Finally the infuriated animal stepped back to make a final charge, and during this momentary release, Mr. Holderbaum dropped to the ground and rolled under the crib. In this way he escaped death, but not suffering, for his injuries are of a very painful nature.

At a meeting of the town council of McConnelsburg, Fulton county, last week, a contract was entered into with H. G. Frederick, of Dauphin county, for the construction of a water works plant for that borough, the council agreeing to take twelve plugs at a yearly rental of $25 for a term of ten years. The authority of council to make such a contract is being questioned, but a favorable decision will make a supply of soft water for all purposes for its citizens.

The report of the death of deputy William C. Beatty, who was shot and badly wounded some time ago in Fulton county, while endeavoring to arrest Cleten Penwell, proves to be incorrect. The ball, which had lodged between the sixth and seventh ribs, was located and removed by the physician in charge some weeks ago, since which time Mr. Beatty has steadily improved and is now practically a well man.

Indecorously Funny.

Mrs. Stiles—I shall never invite Mr. Funniman to dinner again.

Mr. Stiles—Why not? He is a very entertaining chap.

Mrs. Stiles—That's just it. He tells such funny stories that he makes the butler laugh.—Fayrer's Bazar.

The store of R. Claster, in Look Haven, was forcibly entered by burglars Friday night. The thieves had stolen augers and chisels and with these tools cut out the panel of the rear door of the store. They then inserted their arm, removed the bar on the inside, and opened the door. They stole several suits of clothing, several pairs of shoes, and a lot of notions, etc. Loss will amount to $200 or $300.

Considerable improvements are now under way at the Juniata Valley Camp-meeting Association grounds, twenty-four new kitchens being erected to tents at Newton Hamilton in circles Nos. 1 and 2, a number of new roofs put on circle No. 3, and an addition built to the boarding house for cooking purposes.

"I see you have a high fence on each side of your back yard."

"Yes. They raise chickens on one side of me and boys on the other."—Chicago Tribune.

"Satan keeps himself busy in this world."

"Well, you don't blame him for staying away from home, do you?"—Life.

Horsewhipped by a Woman

She Severely Thrashed a Chicago Clerk Who Insulted Her.

Mrs. Lena Brownlee, of Chicago, a tall, beautiful woman, 23 years old, intercepted Charles White, a day clerk, employed in the Lexington hotel, as White was leaving the building by the Michigan avenue entrance last Saturday night and gave him a severe whipping with a rawhide.

The angry woman was accompanied by Brandon Hurst, an actor connected with the Dearborn Stock Company. Mr. Hurst assisted Mrs. Brownlee by striking White when he made a show of resistance. The clerk is a cripple, but he struggled valiantly. A crowd saw him ward the rapidly falling blows from his face by holding up his arms.

He succeeded in pulling his assailants to the drug store corner of Lexington avenue and Twenty-second street. There Mrs. Brownlee and her escort broke away from him and hastened east on Twenty-second street.

This is the second whipping Mrs. Brownlee gave him within a week because he refused to apologize for remarks he circulated concerning the character of the woman.

He succeeded in pulling his assailants to the drug store corner of Lexington avenue and Twenty-second street. There Mrs. Brownlee and her escort broke away from him and hastened east on Twenty-second street.

Democracy's Platform.

Bryan Says That Free Silver and "Anti-Trusts" Will be Two of Its Planks.

Colonel William J. Bryan has expressed himself as much pleased with the result of last week's banquet. Speaking of the platform to be adopted at the next national Democratic convention Colonel Bryan said:

"The sentiment of the meeting was in line with the sentiment of the party generally. The Chicago platform will be reaffirmed entire and new planks added to cover new questions. The trust issue will be one of the most important of the issues."

The Blatherskite.

The Punxatowney Spirit of last week says, and we are of the same opinion, that one of the gravest offenders against human society and against whom we have no protection is the blatherskite. We find him everywhere—always eager to express an emphatic opinion upon all subjects. He is a blatherskite because he is by nature and education a rattlebrain. No amount of snubs and rebuffs will cause him to realize that his wisdom is not appreciated. He is not killed him because the naturalist classes him in the genus homo.

A Valuable Publication.

The Pennsylvania Railroad 1899 Summer Excursion Route Book.

On June 1st the passenger department of the Pennsylvania railroad company will publish the 1899 edition of its Summer Excursion Route Book. This work is designed to provide the public with short descriptive notes of the principal Summer resorts of Eastern America, with the routes for reaching them, and the rates of fare. It contains all the principal seashore and mountain resorts of the east, and over fifteen hundred different routes or combinations of routes for reaching them. The book has been compiled with the utmost care, and altogether is the most complete and comprehensive handbook of summer travel ever offered to the public.

It is bound in a handsome and striking cover, in colors, and contains several maps, presenting the shortest routes over which tickets are sold. It is also profusely illustrated with fine half-toned cuts of scenery at the various resorts and along the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad.

On and after June 1st it may be procured at any Pennsylvania railroad ticket office at the nominal price of ten cents, or upon application to the general office, Broad street station, by mail for twenty cents.

Convention National Educational Association, Los Angeles, Cal.

Reduced Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the National Educational association convention, to be held at Los Angeles, Cal., July 11th to 14th, the Pennsylvania railroad company will sell excursion tickets via direct routes from points on its line, to Los Angeles, Cal., and return, at rate of single fare for the round trip, plus $2.00 membership fee. These tickets will be sold, good going, June 24th to July 7th, and, when obtained by joint agent at Los Angeles, good to return, arriving at final destination, until September 5th.

The Hirsch Fortune.

Nearly One Hundred Million Dollars Left for Charity.

Particulars of the late Baroness de Hirsch's will have just been given to the public. Her fortune, combined with that of her husband, reaches $124,000,000, upon which death duties amounting to $4,800,000 have been paid by the executors. In view of the Baroness' philanthropic principles and great interest in charitable organizations of every description, it is not surprising that she left $99,200,000 for works of charity.

She also bequeathed $1,200,000 to the Hirsch Institute in New York $2,000,000 to the Hebrew Colonization Association, London; $20,000 to the Hirsch Home in Montreal, and $600,000 to the Hebrew Board of Guardians, London. The will provides that after deduction of the preceding sums, and of $20,000,000 which she leaves to relatives, the remainder of her fortune is to be divided among numerous charitable institutions in Brunn, Vienna, Budapest and other European cities.
