FARM NOTES.

Into a barrel of water suspend a gunny will all be in solution by morning and firmly in place. other open receptacle place some fresh burned caustic lime, the amount to be determined somewhat by the amount of spraying to be done, but from 40 to 50 pounds of lime can be easily slacked at one time. Add sufficient water to thoroughly slake all the lime and keep stirred so that the water may come in contact with all particles. This thorough stirring is important, and the lime should be thoroughly vatched and stirred for several minutes, other-wise it is likely to become dry and hard. After the lime is all slaked, cover it over with water and it is then ready for use and may be kept for any length of time desired, if it is always kept covered with water. Ferrocyanide of potassium may be purchased from the drug store, and comes as a solid. One ounce of ferrocyanide of potassium dissolved in one ounce of water will be sufficient for testing many barrels of the Bordeaux mixture. When it is desired to begin spraying, there should be provided two empty barrels. Into one barrel dip three gallons of the copper sulphate solution after it has been thorougly stirred. This will provide the six pounds of copper sulphate in case two pounds were disolved per gallon of water, and will be

If Paris green is to be used it should now be added. Take four ounces of Paris green and place it in a dish and add water just sufficient to make a paste, and stir vigorously. bees. But the flowers there have a commercial value, or at least their seeds do, and the apiarists adds another scource to

But in reality this is possible anywhere. The bee-keeper should also be a specialist in some other kind of farming. Fruitgrowing seems to go naturally with beekeeping, for the flowers of the fruit trees furnish abundant nectar for the bees. Then when the fruit blossoms have appeared buck-wheat can be sown in the orchard to yield more food late in the season. Clover raised in the orchard also furnishes good honey for the insects. Where cut flowers can be sold to advantage, it pays to raise them on a large scale. with the double purpose of feeding the bees, and of selling the flowers and plants. One may undertake this business on a small scale by confining the work to the production of annuals and hardy perennials. Then no hot houses or green will be needed to increase the initial ex-Cousiderable success has been attained in this way by women as well as by men. One might think of many other crops that would be suitable for the bees. One man added dairying to his bee-keeping. A neighboring grass pasture was sown with seeds of wild flowers, and an upland field with clover. From the two raised enough milk and butter to supply the house and make several hundred dollars a year besides. He calculated that the pasture fields yielded him as much return in the shape of honey as in milk and butter.—Journal of Agriculture.

-The custom of feeding grain to poultry is one which is difficult to alter. Grass in summer is desirable for young birds. If a small plot is wired off for a large flock of chicks that are able to care for themselves it will be found that they will pick off the grass so close as to leave the ground bare, and in a few days. Grass is the cheapest food that can allowed in summer, and where adult fowls and chicks have an unlimited range they will need no other food, except a light meal of grain at night, to induce them to come to the farmyard regularly.

A remedy for the plum curculio is Paris green, an ounce to six gallons of water, sprayed on the trees season and every ten thereafter. Add two ounces of shly-slacked lime to the solution to avoid damage to the trees. It is now rather late to combat the curculio, yet the poison may prove of some advantage. The egg once inside of the young plum is safe from harm. It is the adult that should be destroyed, the jarring of the trees, causing the bugs to fall on sheets, being a method which has been used successfully.

To prevent the root aphis from attacking newly-set apple trees, dip the trees in soap suds before planting. To kill the aphis after the trees are set, remove the earth from around the trunk at its base to the depth of two or three inches, and from a foot to three feet distant from the base. Fill this space with tobacco stems loosely laid in, or powdered tobacco in small quantity, then cover with earth. will do the rest.—The Farm Journal. Rain

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

While neck clasps to match the belt buckle were shown by a few of the very beforehanded shops last summer it wasn't until the present season that la belle let the full light of her countenance shine upon them. They are now, DIRECTION FOR MAKING BORDEAUX MIXTURE.—The following directions are taken from the "Third Report on Potato Culture," of the Cornell Experiment Station.

The color of water suspend a grant of the control of the ribbon without sewing, and are on view in any number of charming designs; some set with mock jewels, others in flower designs in enamel. The neck clasps are so fashioned that they may be secured to one end of the ribbon without sewing, and consequently can readily be changed from one ribbon to another. The other end of sack or other porous bag, containing two pounds of copper sulphate for every gallon of water in the barrel. If this is suspendible wound twice around the neck, a ed near the surface of the water at night it hook on the back of the clasp holding it

> A pretty forehead is a possession of value, as much of the character of the face depends upon it. Any forehead can and must be free from irregularities and wrinkles to be to avoid the straight long lines on the forehead which are brought on by elevating the eyebrows. Look at the middle-aged faces from a gentleman in Gibraltar. you meet each day and mark the prevalence of these lines just over the temples. In 9 cases out of 10 the remainder of the face will be smooth and youthful, but those lines tell the tale of age. This lifting of the eyebrows is a senseless trick, which is thought to give expression to the face. It is on a level with the many other so-called tricks of expression, really nothing more than contortions of the facial muscles. It is rare to find a woman who can carry on a conversation with an even countenance and without nods and wags of the head.

Some of the gowns now in course of conuction at the dressmakers are worth copying. One was a dimity in pale blue and white polka dots, the entire frock, bodice, skirt and sleeves being trimmed by waving bands of insertion, a tiny belt of sufficient for making one barrel, or forty-five gallons of Bordeaux mixture. The puffed or shirred vest may be of nainsook or chiffon.

There is an old saving that "a miss is as good as a mile," and many women there pump, the mixture should be frequently are who come within an inch of being called beauties who miss it by just about a Even in California where flowers are lets her gown drag over the streets. If she as abundant as the sands on the sea-shore were beautiful her sense of cleanliness were beautiful her sense of cleanliness would not permit her to gather up the filth of the streets on the hem of her skirts, 'Cleanliness is next to godliness," you know, and one can forgive anything else in a woman than a lack of cleanliness, no matter how beautiful her clothes may be. Then there is the woman who has no conception of the eternal fitness of things. She appears on a shopping tour adorned in the most delicate headgear, wears white gloves on all occasions, no matter how soiled they may be, thinks nothing of putting on a pretty, fresh gown over a tattered and bedraggled silk petticoat which has seen better days, thinking because it's silk she is perfectly excusable. Of coure, to the large majority, these are mere trifles, but taken as a whole they keep a woman from possessing the beauty that is complete.

Every trousseau this season includes at least one gown of thin barege or grenadine Some of these are most exquisite in texture and general effect. They are not so cool as they look, however, as they are all lined with taffeta silk. A very smart model is of a wool-colored barege. The underskirt is trimmed with two bias ruffles, tucked, with no less than twelve or fourteen very small tucks. The overskirt, which falls like a tunic, has also a ruffle with quantities of tucks. Down the centre of the front breadth is a shaped panel of Irish point-lace and on either side is a narrow black velvet ribbon run through a white lace insertion. The body of the waist is tucked all over in these same minute tucks, and has a vest and yoke of Irish point, the yoke outlined by the same trimming of black velvet ribbon run through the lace insertion. It is one of the smartest models of the season but one that cannot be attempted by any one but a skilled dressmaker.

We many not all have perfect necks, for perfect means well-rounded shoulders, white and fine skin and not a suspicion of a hollow near the collar-bones. We may, however, develop a neck that will pass creditably by a simple set of exercises prac ticed fifteen minutes night and morning. Push the arms straight out in front of the body four times, and then change the movement, throwing the arms straight up in the air the same number of times. Change and again throw them out from the sides and finally backward, always with the shoulders thrown back, head erect and chin well in. This daily exercise will fill out the hollows and give a charming contour.

The high turned over collar is more popular than ever. With shirt waists the ties that can be laundered are in greatest favor, as they have that immaculate freshness, or at least they should have it, that is the sine qua non of summer gowns. The stocks of pique are most attractive this year, and they seem to have grown taller that. ever. Charming ties of madras and crape in lovely pink, blue, mauve and raspberry, striped with white, are worn with them. The crape ties deserve an extra word of commendation. They are entirely of cotton, not in the crinkled weaves we have had so long, and reproduce the surface and texture of the Canton crapes perfectly. They are especially soft and becoming.

Cheese Makers in Wisconsin.

The Swiss Who Make it Come to America Annually Of the ten millions of pounds of cheese produced in the State of Wisconsin, nearly all is made by Swiss methods and Swiss people, who imitate the home product fairly well. This work is done between April and the late autumn months, and many of the "cheesers," as they are called, young Swiss who have learned their trade at home, go back each year to spend the winter, reappearing regularly with the opening of the working season. The industry is an increasing one, and the quality of the product is guarded as jealously as the Swiss at home guard that of their own. Most of this cheese is shipped to the Pa-cific coast, and finds its market in the South American countries, but some of it goes farther away from home than that even, for one of these cheesemakers last year enclosed in one of his cheeses a bottle 43-34-Iy containing a letter asking the party who cut the cheese to communicate with him attractive. Care should be taken in youth and inform him as to the condition in which the cheese reached him, its quality, etc. He recently heard from it through a letter
