A Republican Revolt—Reed vs. McKinley.

There is war in heaven—the Republican heaven—Reed and his angels are fighting against McKinley and his angels. They have only thrown out a skirmish line at present; the great battle will follow later. This all comes about because that obstinate son of New England, Tom Reed, is a candidate for President. He was invited to Jeckyl Island to no purpose; he laughed in the face of Hanna and smirked at McKinley, but no arrangement could be made with him.

Reed is smart and he has thrown the speakership into the ring for the rival factions to squabble over, knowing that the Administration must take sides and thus breed enemies. Reed is in Europe, cool and collected, enjoying the trouble he has created, while McKinley is sweating blood at Virginia Hot Springs.

This table of the Reed law partnership in New York is for a purpose; it will allow him place there and to be on the ground next spring when the delegates are chosen. A great cable of the most influential and wealthy men in the party are backing Reed.

Hobart, the Vice-President, is for him. Platt, of New York, is also. Sewell, of New Jersey. Quay will be when the Senatorship is secured.

Foraker is willing, if he can get a share of the Ohio delegation. Several other Senators are in the combine. Attorney-General Griggs will raise no hand to hinder Hobart and Sewell controlling the New Jersey delegation. Secretary Porter has shaken the dust of the White House from off his immaculate shoes and has joined "the gang."

The West is also in revolt and the President has announced that he will take a "swing around the circle" to try and recapture it.

Dewey, the brave Dewey, who wants to keep out of politics, is ordered home to arouse the pulse of the people in the subsiding Imperialistic fever, which has been allayed and appeased by the sober second thought of a righteous people. The President will attempt to hypnotize them again from the rear end of a special train, furnished by the Railroad trust free of cost.

His honeyed words will be sown broadcast over the country by the Associated Press trust. The crowds will howl with enthusiasm.

But that does not carry caucuses and conventions. Hanna will attend to that with the bung knocked out of the barrel. The Reed fellows have a barrel also and they know how to use it; they were educated in that line when Hanna was a sucking calf in Ohio politics.

Oh, it will be battle royal; no quarter will be given. Delegates will come high, the colored brother from the Southern States will be in clover for a while. They will hold the balance of power. The scenes and the boodles will leave far in the shade the disgraceful orgies and debauch of 1888, when Sherman was beaten and Harrison nominated. The Pretorian Guard will be there and the Imperial diadem that McKinley has inaugurated will be, as in the days of ancient Rome, put up to the highest bidder.

And this is a free republic. Same may say, How do you know Reed is a candidate; what evidence have you? Evidence I can not give you, my dear Sir. In these days of modern telegraphy without wires, news travels through brick and stone and marble walls, and if I were to expose my author, the transmitter might be closed against me in the future.

The convention picture is of my own painting, but it will, when the negative is developed, be found true to life and not overdrawn. I hope to be there with my camera and show you the product of its film in the July number of the Jeffersonian Democrat, 1900.

Who will be nominated, McKinley or Reed? My guess would be McKinley, and for these reasons: There will be at that convention four classes of delegates and in about equal numbers. One fourth for the President, at all odds and under any circumstances. One fourth for Reed, or any one to beat McKinley, equally determined. One fourth who will strive to be on the winning side, making the best bargain they can for self and friends. One fourth openly in the market to the highest bidder. Of the whole there will be a sprinkling who are at heart stalwart Republicans, honestly believing that the future safety of the Republic depends on their party's success; they will be much governed by the arguments of the Administration people that, to throw overboard McKinley would be to acknowledge that imperialism and that McKinley stands for had been a failure, and to enter the campaign under those circumstances would be to invite defeat.

The great patronage at the service of the Administration, increased to vast proportions by the war and the census legislation, commissioners and whatnot, will hold many a Republican patriot in line until after the convention. McKinley understands this branch of politics to perfection, and will devote many a day, that should be used for the welfare of the republic and its people, to using it where it will do the most good. Reed has the railroad trustees, the banks, fairly divided against McKinley, and the disappointed office seekers, who are a host in themselves, are with him to a man.

Yet, McKinley should win. Reed, however, is full of resources and has the confidence and friendship of a large array of the leaders of the Republican party; he is a stayer, and will say Macbeth: "Lay on Macduff and damned be he that first cries, hold enough."

Robert Miller in Jeffersonian Democrat.

"You wretch! How dare you come home in this condition?"

"Doctor's (hic) orders, m' dear."

"The doctor never ordered any such thing. The idea!"

"Thash what. Said my (hic) cold must be treated, an' I've been treatin' zhe blame' thing all evenin'."

Col. A. G. Pain, president of the New York and Pennsylvania paper company, has taken the contract for furnishing the New York World's supply of paper. On Sunday the World uses 125 tons of paper and on other days of the week from 80 to 100 tons daily. The Lock Haven mills are operated by the New York and Pennsylvania company.

"Pa, is a tramp worse than a loafer?"

"No, Jimmy; a tramp distributes his patronage, but a loafer stays in one town and lets some woman support him."

Democratic Plans for 1900.

Ohio Valley League of Metallic League Meets at Louisville, Plea for Free Silver. W. J. Bryan Held up as Party's Best Candidate.

The Ohio Valley League of Bimetallists Clubs, comprising the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky, held its third annual convention in Louisville. Mayor Weaver, of Louisville, extended a hearty welcome to the visiting delegates, and told them that their work would be well done if they endorsed Bryan for President in 1900.

At the conclusion of his address, Judge J. P. Tarvin, of Covington, Ky., president of the league, made an address: "Mr. Tarvin hoped the right to express opinion 'has not been prohibited by the postmaster general or the attorney general of the royalists administration now in power in the Nation,'" and said: "The question to be determined in 1900 is whether the government shall be administered by the representatives of the organized capital, or for the benefit of organized capital, or whether it shall be administered by the people in such a way as to permit the operation of natural laws in the distribution of the fruits of labor, sometimes called money, and sometimes known as wealth. It happens that the organization of the Democratic party is now in the hands of those who believe that the government should be administered by the people, and not for the benefit of the organized wealth of the country."

"We stand without qualification, reserve or conditions for the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the rate of 16 to 1, by the United States, without waiting the action of any other country on earth. We express our opinion that this plank ought to be in the Democratic National platform of 1900. We believe the Democratic National convention of 1900 should adopt the Chicago platform of 1896 without the omission of a word, a letter or a punctuation mark, and that it should add there to a specific and appropriate declaration against the existence and the organization of trusts and combinations and a specific promise of legislative action looking to their extermination, and that it should add thereto a declaration against any policy of imperialism, appropriate to an absolute government, but repugnant to every line of the bill of rights and the constitution of the United States."

The speaker then paid his respects to two classes of voters that refused to support the Democratic platform. To the one that acted from honest conviction he would open the door of party return; to the other that abandoned the party and violated their convictions and disregarded expressed beliefs, he would shut the door and say: "Goodby, and God be with you, for you will need Him."

He scored the National administration for not using its power in destroying the trust, the highest form of concentrated wealth yet known. The great spread of the trust evil, he insisted, was the natural, logical result of the adoption of the gold standard. He was confident Democracy had nothing to fear in 1900 in an open fight on its platform. In his judgment Democracy should enter into no alliance with those in control of the Democratic organization in New York city, because their aid must be secured by purchase. He believed the "honest Democrats" of New York city ought to form an organization of their own and send their own delegates to the Democratic National convention of 1900. In conclusion he declared that William Jennings Bryan, George Fred Williams and Charles A. Towne are the finest specimens to be found of the youth, vigor, eloquence and brain of American citizenship.

Congressman James M. Robinson, of Indiana, made an impromptu speech.

Both Cruel and Unjust.

From an interview with Ex-Senator John Sherman. The war now being waged against the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands is cruel and unjust and should never have been started. "There should never have been anything like this war against the Filipinos. They were our friends in the war against Spain, and they helped us because they had been told that as soon as Spain had been beaten they would be allowed to set up a government of their own. As soon as the treaty of peace was signed with Spain we should have withdrawn our armies from the Philippines and left them to their rightful owners. We promised them independence, but instead we have given them a long and cruel war. We should have kept our promise."

Speaking of the late order of the Postmaster General in excluding from the Philippine mails the Atkinson pamphlets, Mr. Sherman said: "I think the order was cruel and an infringement on the rights of American citizens who have been given the right to hold whatever views they deem proper. This is especially true on national questions, and I cannot see why these pamphlets were kept out of the mails. The railing of the Postmaster General was most arbitrary, to say the least."

Trust Aggressions.

From the St. Louis Republic. The people of the United States are fast awakening to a sense of the enormity of the political and social trusts in this country. They know where lies the blame, and will, if they be true to their dearest interests, thrust from power the political organization that has surrendered the industrial, trade and transportation agencies of the country into the hands of unscrupulous, pitiless and aggressive corporate wealth.

William J. Wood, Jr., now in an insane asylum in Kansas, has been declared the rightful owner of the famous Emma gold mine at Aspen, Col., valued at $2,000,000. His father discovered the mine and died soon after and all the children but William sold their life interests in the property to the Aspen Mining and Smelting Company. All these children are now dead and left to the lunatic. The litigation has been going on since 1895.

Yis, sor, th' hyses are stroikin' for shorter hours, but it sames foolish to me."

"How long are their hours now, Larry?"

"Sixty minits, sor, an' be dad Oi can't see how they kin make 'im any different widout changin' th' calinder."

"Martha, do you favor expansion?"

"Indeed I do, 'Lisha Jones; I want a bay widout built in the pantry, and I want it this week."

"Fustion says he hasn't gall enough to ask for the kind of a politician office he would be willing to accept."

"Then that report must have been wrong."

"What report?"

"The report that he was born in Ohio."—Chicago News.

A Valuable Publication.

The Pennsylvania Railroad 1899 Summer Excursion Route Book.

On June 1st the passenger department of the Pennsylvania railroad company will publish the 1899 edition of its Summer Excursion Route Book. This work is designed to provide the public with short descriptive notes of the principal summer resorts of Eastern America, with the routes for reaching them, and the rates of fare. It contains all the principal seashore and mountain resorts of the east, and over fifteen hundred different routes or combinations of routes for reaching them. The book has been compiled with the utmost care, and altogether is the most complete and comprehensive handbook of summer travel ever offered to the public.

It is bound in a handsome and striking cover, in colors, and contains several maps, presenting the exact routes over which tickets are sold. It is also profusely illustrated with fine half-toned cuts of scenery at the various resorts and along the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad.

On and after June 1st it may be procured at any Pennsylvania railroad ticket office at the nominal price of ten cents, or upon application to the general office, Broad street station, by mail for twenty cents.
