It is always best to darken the place selected for a nest.

White Leghorns are the best of layers, they are small in size.

Put coal oil on the roosts and air slacked lime about the building.

Fowls that fatten easily should have plenty of opportunity to exercise. Too much stimulating food often causes over egg production. As soon as the young turkeys get strong enough give them free range.

Hens will readily eat parings or any kind of vegetables if they are well cooked. Chickens once stunted seldom regain their vigor, even with the most careful breed-

Raise thoroughbred chickens. They cost no more in the long and fry much better. If corn meal must be fed bake it with bread and crumble it in sweet milk.

Feed sulphur sparingly as it will cause rheumatism or leg weakness.

If the most prolific hens are retained and the worthless ones marketed a decided improvement will soon result. Young and old fowls require sufficient nutritious food to keep them in a thrifty growing condition. The profit in raising turkeys comes from their ability to pick up a good living for themselves most of the time.

Ducklings and chickens should not be kept together. The ducks will run over the chickens without compunction. While ground clam or oyster shells are excellent for layers, the chicks need ground bone, and they should have a supply daily. So long as young chicks are doing well under your system of feeding, it is not necessary to bother about any other system.

-Keep salt constantly in a water-tight box in the barnyard to insure the best condition of the stock. Leave this box out under the open sky and note the pleasure with which the cattle drink up the salty water on rainy days .- Farm Journal.

-The farmers of the county will be interested in the disturbance that the dismissal of Miss May Rhone, a daughter of Hon. Leonard Rhone, past master of Pomona Grange, from her position as a stenographer in the Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg, has caused. The farmers of the State are reported to be so wrought up over it that they are making an effort to have John Hamilton removed as Secretary of Agriculture.

-The time to start a lawn is in August. Make the ground fine in July and let it have an opportunity to start the weeds. Then work it fine again in August; use wood ashes and rake the soil fine. Sow the lawn grass seed and the rains will cover it. Prepared lawn grass seed can be had of seedmen, and it contains several varieties, but one of the best grasses for a lawn is Kentucky blue grass. The grass will make considerable growth before winter and be-come well established. Do not mow it in the spring until it is at least three inches high, and do not cut it too close.

-Many methods are given for preventing hens from setting after they become broody, and many suggestions entail labor or lead to cruelty. The surest, best and earliest mode is to prevent the hen from imparting warmth to anything, for she will sit on a porcelain egg and attempt to keep it warm. When the hen finds that she can create no heat with her body she will desist from sitting. Make a small coop, with lath or strips, and have the floor of lath also, the strips, and have the floor of lath also, the coop to be raised a few inches from the the smallest of buckles may cover it. FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Among a number of dressy afternoon gowns is an original one in Parma violet foulard with white polka dots. The skirt swirling out at the bottom is tight and smooth as a riding habit across the back. It is open in front toward one side in a peculiar way. At intervals the edges are drawn together and caught with rabbits' ears bows of violet taffeta. Between the bows the skirt spreads open in long narrow loops, showing beneath them a narrow panel of lace. The bottom of the skirt is finished with a circular flounce flatly headed under narrow cream lace entredeux in the form of festoons. The corsage is cut out in heart shape at the top of the back over a lace yoke. In front the silk is slightly bloused into the belt and rounded out at the top over a fitted lace vest front that is discernible all the way down to the waist line under the semi-open front that, like the front of the skirt, is simply looped together with rabbits' ears of violet taffeta. Violet taffe-ta lines the lace throughout and a lace and taffeta collar finishes the neck. The sleeves of foulard are untrimmed save for a row of tucks close together across the top and bias folds of the same over the hand.

A refined nature abhors nagging. Anything for peace cries the woman of sensitive soul. She shrinks from household battles, allowing herself to be imposed upon rather than wage them. Effective proofs are never injudicially given. Stopping to think when a gust of anger sweeps over the soul is a blessed thing. Five minutes' of hard thinking will often turn the whole tenor of one's feelings into the right channel.

Nasty nagging keeps children in a state of perpetual defense. This defensive atti-tude is continued throughout life, the girl or boy suffering from such discipline going out into the great world an outcast. Grandmother used to say "a thoughtless retort was the devil's own means of stirring up strife." One of the most ruinous of all scolding practices is hauling up people for reproof before others. Children so reproved rarely outgrow the intense indignation it creates within their souls. Husbands and wives with quick tempers scold before friends and strangers alike. If they could but realize the disgrace of such an exhibition! Children are permitted to hit at each other right and left with ugly remarks. The result is much the same as f they slapped water in each other's faces. If there were no other reason for women refusing to scold, the impress left upon the features would be sufficient warning.

A woman lines quickly who scolds. She becomes crone-like. There is a tartness of visage which tells a tale those who run may Scold like a philosopher. Nine times out of ten the scolding we deem a necessity may be avoided. A gentle thought supplanting a ruffled one, a gentle word given in place of a caustic reply turns the scale and always in favor of the person inclined to "speak her mind." No one is punished so surely for this awful habit as the woman

I see endless pink waists with white serge skirts and pink hats, says the Paris letter of "Harper's Bazar" and quite the prettichicks depend very much upon the start est things that are worn with serge skirts are blouses of white sheeny silk covered with bouquets of flowers in dull colors Also, I like the China silk blouses, tucked range they save much material that would across in narrow tucks, about one inch otherwise be wasted. apart, both body and sleeves and worn with tortoise-shell, coral, amethyst or emerald studs and sleeve buttons, cuffs of the silk and linen stock collar. A pretty fancy in hats with these is the sailor worn very far sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in sleeves and scant fullness anywhere.

If there is one woman more than another even wet ground, are apt to take cramp in their legs, and this in many cases proves fatal. Keep them dry. the earliest maturing fowl of the large breeds is the Langshan, which usually begins to lay when seven months old. They They may be very "swagger"—these skirts of limited dimensions—but they certainly are far from being graceful and pretty. In sales decrease. The purchasing public, no fact, some of them are more than shocking, especially when on the woman of ample proportions. The thin girl don't wear them because Old Lady Nature has not been kind to them in the way of hips and pretty curves. I doubt very much if the skimpy, plaitless skirt will last long. A fashion letter from Paris says that they are no longer worn in that place of beautiful gowns and heavenly bonnets, and the skirts are now made properly full in the back.

> White revers give chic to many of the jackets seen at the summer resorts. If the jacket is of a woolen fabric then the revers are of white cloth; if a wash material, pique is used for the revers. A Parisian fancy of the moment has white velvet facings on the revers of jackets that do not form a part of the costume. Bottle green, hussar blue or crimson jackets of cloth, with plain white cloth revers, are stylish in the extreme.

> A frieze with which an artist is decorating the square entrance hall of his suburban home is original and interesting. He is doing the work with his own hands in leisure moments, and the studies are all taken from nature. The ceiling of the hall is crossed with heavy beams, and the wall itself is in rough plaster, faintly tinged with buff. On this surface and between the beams the artist has sketched groups of wild flowers which he has found near the house. He selected the bolder forms, which would show to advantage at a distance, and as he is pre-eminently a realist, he has preserved a suggestion of their natural habit of growth. The flowers are done in their own colors, softened into grayish tones, so that the effect is as if you were looking at them through a light, pearly mist-of tobacco smoke someone was unkind enough

In the history of buckles there has never been a time when small ones were so fashionable. They are made to match the very narrow girdles and the skirt band is to-day buckle, seeing to it that it is very small. | Potts Green.

Stopping the Advertisements.

A steady run of satisfactory results from the right sort of newspaper advertising sometimes leads the advertiser into a belonger seeing his customary advertisements, promptly forget him and buy elsewhere. There is a homely Creole proverb much in vogue in Louisiana which fits this merchant's case: "When you have a laying hen, don't put her in the pot."

-William Sodds, the greatest cattle owner in the United States, attends to all the details of his work intrusting as little as possible to the care of subordinates, al though he could well afford to retire from the active management of the business "If I want to be sure a thing is well done I just do it myself," he says. Twice a year he accompanies his shipment of cattle from Northern Arizona into Kansas City.

Paper Mill Deal.

The Morris & Cass paper mill at Tyrone, has been consolidated with the mills of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company, of Delaware. The new organization, recently incorporated, has a capital of $3,000,000, and will operate a pulp mill and three pulp and paper mills.

How He Managed Her.

"How is it that your wife is so tractable? "Why, I told her when we were married that she could do just exactly as she pleased, and so, of course, she finds no pleasure in doing it." BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.-The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin

-A Buffalo woman who applied for a divorce testified that she had been compelled to move forty times in five years. The judge decided that this, strictly speaking, is not a proper way to provide a home.

"When a man pays attention to woman," says a Philosopher, "its generally a sign that he wants to marry her, and when he doesn't pay attention to her its of ten a sign that he has married her."

"Necessity knows no law." It is a law of Nature that the blood must be kept pure, and Hood's Sarsaparilla does it.

-A Geneva, N. Y., man just returned from the anthracite mining districts in this State says he never saw such a squalid misery as is presented there. The miners are working on half time so as to not increase the output, and the children are barefoot and in rags. Yet there is said to be coal enough in sight to last a thousand years. For poor people the coal trust is the hard-est combination we have had to deal with, and if some legal or moral way cannot be found to open the mines and bring the prices down to reasonable figures there will be heaps of suffering next winter.

The Poor Teeth oi the Young.

A rapid tendency to decay, hitherto un-known in extent, is taking place in teeth of the children and youth of the present generation. That the disease is assuming alarming proportions is painfully evident. A few years ago a school committee was appointed by the British Dental association to acquire more knowledge of the condi-tion of children's teeth at various ages. Of the children of a large number of parochial, industrial and other schools, over 10,000 mouths were examined, and the condition of each tooth was marked on a chart. Less than 15 per cent. of such boys and girls of an average age of 12 years did not require some treatment for decayed teeth. The very large majority therefore, of over 85 per cent. demanded skilled attention. Nineteenth Century Review.

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more GRAIN-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their syspayment of death losses and returned to members, and $5,761,082.01 to the general when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about 1/4 as much. Al grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.
