FARM NOTES.

-Prepare the soil as for wheat in August, and in early September sow 10 quarts per acre of timothy and brush and roll it in. In March sow six quarts medium red clover on light snow or light honeycomb-Many a woman carries to her grave some ing frost. If for pasture, sow 32 quarts per acre of blue grass seed in September with the timothy.

-Harrowing the land makes a wonderful difference in the yield of wheat or corn, provided the work is done frequently and well. Rolling and harrowing the ground after plowing, then seeding and harrowing and rolling again gave an increase of five bushels per acre of wheat in one case, which is due to the fineness of the soil and the excellent preparation of the seed bed. On one piece of land the use of the harrow a week after seeding increased the yield as they will. two bushels per acre compared with adjoining plots not harrowed. Deep plowing and fine soil permit of the retention of a larger supply of water and admit more air and warmth.

-There is an impression among farmers that hogs in summer at pasture can get enough with the swill from the house and what they can get in the fields. This was all right so long as skimmilk, one of the best foods for growth, was part of the swill and uneaten refuse from the table was also thrown in. But in many places the skimmilk is now sold in some form, while a better use for table refuse is found by giving it to the poultry. So the pig is starved in summer, which is the time he ought to grow fattest, and is the poorest preparation for the heavy corn feeding that will begin in September and continue until the pig is turned over to the butcher. A half starved animal loses the power of dihave something to do to keep in good health and strength.

-A large proportion of the trees that are lost in resetting die because they have been injured when they were taken up. Without a good root or stem a tree can make but little progress in growth. In digging up trees the surface soil should be removed to the root system, then a trench dug around the tree outside the mass of roots; then by cutting under the roots with a sharp spade on each side, the tree may be loosened from the soil with a good supply of young roots. If the tree is large, a trench must be made around the roots to the depth of the lowest, and the roots gradually loosened and freed from the soil

No matter how carefully a tree is dug, many of the young feeding roots will be injured or destroyed. Thus only a small amount of sap can be supplied to the branches and bulbs, which nevertheless continue to evaporate a large amount of water; thus the tree often starts very slowly and sometimes fails entirely. By removing the branches and buds in pro-

> The mother who would have her children healthy must not be afraid to have them occasionally dirty. While cleanliness is akin to godliness, there is a clean dirt that comes from contact with the sweet earth that is wholesome. Have the little ones bathed frequently, insist that they come to meals with immaculate hands and faces, but, between meals, have them so dressed that they are free to run and romp An over-careful mother of an only child complained to a physician that her baby was pale and delicate. He asked to see the child, and the nurse brought in the twoyear-old from the veranda, where he had been seated on a rug, looking at a picture-book. His dainty nainsook frock was spotless, as were also the pink kid boots and silk socks. "What that child needs is wholesome dirt," was the physician's verdict. "Put a gingham frock and plain shoes on him, and turn him loose on the lawn or in the fresh earth. If he is not rosy and happy in a month, let me know." At the expiration of the prescribed time the baby was transformed. The eyes that had been heavy were bright, the skin had acquired a healthful glow, the arms and legs were plump, and the languid. tired little patient had become a rollicking boy. The freedom, fresh air, and clean dirt had, in a month's time, wrought a greater change gesting hearty food, for the stomach, like in the child's system than all the skill of every other organ of the body, needs to the medical fraternity could have effected. Mothers who take their little school boys and girls away for vacation should let them romp at will out of doors, fish in the brook, ride on the hay, and wear strong shoes and clothing of which they need not be too careful. A child is much happier if untram-melled by too many "don'ts." And the mother is happier too if she need not say "don't" every hour in the day.-Harper' ortion to the injury of the roots a bala is maintained. All injured roots should be cut off clean with a knife and the wounds of large roots should be painted over with some water proof covering.

When trees are planted the roots should have a fine mellow bed of soil, which should be pressed firmly in contact with every fibre, leaving no air space around them, and all should be spread out in nat-ural position. The soil should be pressed, very firmly around all the roots, so that the new roots will be encouraged to make a rapid growth. If the soil in which the tree is planted is the same as the one from which it was taken, the tree should be set in the same depth as it was before it was removed. If the soil is heavier, the tree should be shallower; if lighter, it should be placed deeper. The surface of the soil which is over the roots should be fine and light because the capillarity is then broken up and the moisture cannot escape.

-It was not until within recent years. writes Professor C. E. Cartis in the report of the bureau of animal industry, that the heavy, inordinately fat or rough and patchy bullock became unpopular to such an ex-tent as practically to drive his class from the market and to banish the type from the breeding herds. It is well that this was done, for the modern type makes beef at decidedly more profit and economy to both producer and the butcher and furnishes the consumer a far superior article. The parts furnishing the high priced cuts must be thickly and evenly covered with firm, yet mellow, flesh of uniform good quality and alike free from hard rolls and blubbery patches. Coarse, harsh and gaudy animals will no longer be tolerated, much less those that are bony and bare of flesh on the back and ribs. The men who of the liquid over it. In addition to securing the general been form and make up, together with good backs, ribs and loins, there are a certain quality, character, style and finish that constitute an important factor in determining the value of beef cattle. One of the first indications of this is to be found in the skin and coat.

A good feeding animal should have a an in indication of a sluggish circulation ent, yet placid eye, clean cut features, fine horn and clean, firm bone, all go to indicate good feeding quality and a capacity to take on a finish of the highest excellence and consequently to command top prices. Coarse boned, rough animals are almost invariable slow feeders and hard to finish We find evidence of these in a wide forehead, a prominent brisket, broad chest, well sprung ribs, full heart girth and general robust appearance, and without these significance.
