How Lipton Rose hirty Years Ago a Stowaway on a Charlesto

Steamer, Now a British Knight. The Charleston steamer came to its dock and tied up. The passengers loitered about her, attending to their bags and baggage, but the gangplank was hardly down when a bruised, begrimed, ragged boy of 16 or 17 rushed on to the dock, and, pushing his way therough the growd lost himself in One of the most splendid cures for all ills. way through the crowd, lost himself in New York.

Nobody pursued him. It was 30 years ago that "Tom" Lipton came up gasping from the fireroom of the Charleston boat and ran into New York. He had known more kicks than sixpence from his childhood up, and the treatment he got as a stowaway did not break his spirit. It was just an experience more in a life of hard luck.

Born of Scotch-Irish parents in Glasgow, who were poor as poverty, he struggled up to boyhood somehow. At last, says the New York Journal, his heap of hoarded pennies had grown to be enough to pay for a steerage passage to America, and he ran away. He was a boy of 15 years then, and small for his age, but there was that withing of the system with pure water—resting in him that kept him going when grown and washing the system, in other woods. men would have given up in despair.

This Glasgow rat starved in doorways, walked when he could not in doorways, walked when he could not buy or beg a ride, and finally found himbelf in South Carolina. He got a job as a harvest hand on a rich plantation, and for harvest hand on a rich plantation, and for without hunger, solely to tickle his palate, without hunger, solely to tickle his palate, heing indeed, the only gorging animal heing indeed, the only gorging animal heing. Indeed, the only gorging animal heing. Sometimes the could not immediately required; other animals leave off before or at repletion. Man alone will eat without hunger, solely to tickle his palate, or address Geo. W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent, Broad Street station, Dhiladelphia.

But as he worked in the fields it dawned on the lad that not here where the whole population was hunting riches, but in the old grooved life of his native city lay his best chance of wealth. He would apply American methods to business in Glasgow and see if in the combination there was not on discovery. His sufferings paid for his passage, and he disregarded them accord-

Again Lipton found himself in New York, this time with a purpose and a plan in his mind. He washed himself of his grime in a park fountain, earned a breakfast and began his search for work. The strong young boy, his thews steeled by the hard training in the rice fields, found little difficulty in getting work. Of course, he thrived. He did not know any luxury, and but little rest, but he put by money. Before the year was out he had saved enough for a steerage passage, and was back in Glasgow. His parents were a regular trains within fifteen days, will be little better off than when he had left them. He told them his plan and they put in his hands all they had saved. The bridge, the only all rail line, or via Market whole family fund amounted to $400.

Presently the staid Scottish city was astonished to see two monster hogs, groomed until their bristles glistened, decked swine to a little shop with the name of Lipton above the door. The young fellow was sion ticket agent, Williamsport, Pa. proprietor, clerk, salesman, bookkeeper and porter, all in one. He lunched in the shop and dined not at all at first.

The venture succeeded. He got a clerk, and presently in another quarter of the city there was another Lipton shop, an exact duplicate of the other. To-day there are 420 Lipton shops scattered through Great Britain, 60 of them being in London. They are all alike, all gayly colored and illu-minated, so that they stand out like lightnouses on a dark night.

Lipton's tea comes from his own plantations in Ceylon, but a score of other food products also bear his label and swells his ortune. In the United States he owns a butchering plant that kills 3,000 hogs daily, and he has 600 refrigerator cars to carry the meat to the markets. His fortune is estimated at $50,000,000, and he is not 50 years old. When his London interests were formed into a joint stock company, with a capitalization of $12,500,000, $5,000,000 of which was offered for sale, the stock was subscribed 25 times over.

For his charities he was knighted a year ago, and it is Sir Thomas Lipton who sails over here in his yacht, the Shamrock, to race for the America's cup-Sir Thomas Lipton, who shoveled coal to pay for his stolen passage on the Charleston steamer.

Tea Produces Deiirium Tremens.

Mrs. Bridget Kelly is the name of a woman in Bellevue hospital New York, suffering with delirium tremens. The remarkable thing about her case is that she has been brought to her present pass by an $5,000 inordinate indulgence in strong tea. She had been in the habit of drinking 30 cups a day. She has never drunk alcoholic liq-uors. The doctors say that tea is as bad as whisky when too much of it is used. Mrs. Kelly sees strange shapes in green and red dancing on the white walls. The colors are identical with those caused by alcoholism, say the physicians, and they explain that the phenomena are caused by the terminal filaments of the nerves becoming coated with toxin. Mrs. Kelly is fully for tea. The doctors expect her to

Would Kill Herself for a Man.

Maud Green, aged 18, of Tioga attempted suicide by shooting herself with a revolver, but failed in the effort. The young woman is in love with a Wellsboro youth, and went to his home a few days ago. The young man does not reciprocate the passion, but he accompanied her back home, when it is supposed they quarrelled. The girl's father had her arrested, he fearing that she might kill herself. She is now in jail at
