Grinding Power of Beef Trust.

It Has Lately Raised the Price of Meats 30 Per Cent. Twenty Men Control the Trade. Four Firms, Backed by Vast Capital, are Able to Manipulate Prices at Their Pleasure. Forcing up the Cost of Beef.

No man, woman or child, or government can escape the beef trust, or dispute its power. It is absolute in its domination of the home; in its ability to compel payment of tribute to it. The home of the humblest citizen of the United States furnishes a pertinent example of its control of the meat supply of the country. It has just raised the price of its product 30 per cent. to wholesale dealers. That means that the family fare of the poor man will contain 30 per cent. less meat than it did a week ago, or meat of 30 per cent. inferior quality.

Apparently, it is a trifling effort, scarce worthy to be called a task, for the Beef nal investigation.
6. INDUSTRIAL ART AND DESIGN.
7. LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE; Latin (optional), French, German and English (required), one or more continued through the entire delta. The poor man will only be better fitted to describe the power of the trust. fitted to describe the power of the trust than his more fortunate neighbor; yet both will feel it for the trust plays no favorites. It treats all its victims alike. Its power has been culminated, progressive; growing equipment.

10. MENTAL, MORAL AND POLITICAL has been culminated, progressive; growing narrower in membership, vaster in its scop of operations and influence with each year of its history.

RAPID GROWTH OF TRUST. Scarcely a score of years has this trust existed, with a meagre combined capital of $5,000,000 at the start, and an income of $400,000 a year. Then there were rival concerns, because none of them were called trusts in those days. But in ten years the rival concerns were wiped out or "absorbed" that is the professional term for buying out rivals, and the Beef Trust became su-

It is supreme today, composed of four firms whose membership does not exceed twenty men. Yet it is doubtful if there are twenty other men in all the world whose power is brought so directly to the homes of every citizen as the power of these twenty, and the real barons of beef, princes of pork and sovereigns of sheep.

The four firms of which they are active members transact a business of $335,000,-000 a year, divided in about this proportion: Armour & Co., $120,000,000; Swift & Co., $90,000,000; Cudahy, $40,000,000; Nenson Morris & Co., $75,000,000.

There is a fifth firm which enjoys rela tions with the real trust, closely allied enough in a business way to justify its classification with the others. This is the firm of Schwarzchild & Sulzberger, which acts as general distributor in New York, and besides maintains packing houses of its own in the West. But as it only has a business of a trifling $12,000,000 a year it is not rated in the first class.

VAST CAPITAL COMBINED. The combined income of the firms comprising the trust exceeds $19,300,000 a It is the closest corporation in the United States, while apparently maintaining independent relations between firms comprising the trust. Armour & Co. are the leaders of the trust. All reductions in the price to be paid cattle raisers and increases in the price of meat to consumers are decided upon by Armour & Co.

The other firms in the trust accept the quotations of Armour & Co. There is never any cutting of rates to consumers, no increase in the price to be paid to producers. Agents of the trust in the cattle-raising districts kept down the quotations for beef when the trust is buying. For ten years successively there has been a gradual de-successively there has been a gradual increase in the prices the trust demanded for its product. There has not been a single reduction in price in any year.

'Lower! Lower! has been the motto of the trust in buying cattle from the cattle-"Higher! Higher! is the demand of the agents of the trust for its slaughtered product. The control of the supply of cattle is absolute. When a shortage of cattle is desired to force up prices of its slaughtered product ready for sale the trust does not

It reports a shortage and instantly increases the price of beef, which increase must be borne by the buyers and finally by the man on whose family table it is served. There is no redress or appeal from the mandates of the trust. The man who raises cattle for the market must accept the price the trust pays; the man who eats meat must pay the price it demands for the product. An elevation in the price of meat is professionally styled an "evener." The term originated in 1895, when the trust advanced prices on its product from 6 to 8 per cent. The storm of protest from all over the country frightened the trust spokesman into an explanation for the unwarranted increase in prices, which was also an apology. The explanation was that there was a big shortage in the visible supply of cattle. This statement was repudiated by cattle

$5,000 raisers, but the increase stood. This stupendous increase of 60 per cent. in the price of beef to the consumer has been accomplished in less than four years. The first increase of 30 per cent. was never reduced a cent. although in 1896 there was no shortage in the cattle supply. On the contrary, cattle raisers reported an overproduction. But the "evener" stood; there was no reduction in the price to consumers, at least in this country. English patrons of the trust were treated with greater consideration. The dressed product of the trust was sold in London and other cities in Great Britain at lower prices than in the United States, notwithstanding the increased cost of shipment and rehandling. The trust explained this paradoxical condition of affairs with an ease inspired by apparent contempt for the rights of its domestic patrons to ask one. The explanation was that the trust was trying to drive out the Australian beef dealers who controlled the English market and had cut prices in order to do so. The statement that better beef was sold in England for less money than was asked for an inferior grade in Chicago and New York elicited no response from the beef trust. A Hard Nut to Crack.
