The borough school board up to this writing has turned a deaf ear to the appeals of the citizens to change the course of study in the High school. The board is assuming the role of the arrogant, and declares that its actions are infallible and like those of the Medes and Persians-unalterable. Every argument is made by saving that the course of study was approved by the county and state superintendents. This, without a doubt, is true, and it may be said with credit to the originator of the course that upon paper it is faultless. The course of study at The Pennsylvania State College is faultless, too. But, here is the point: The course laid down at that institution, though very proper there, is not adapted to the public schools of this borough, and no one but an idiot would attempt to force such a course of study upon the scholars composing the High school of this town. It is the same with the course of study mapped out by the school board for the High school-it doesn't fit the scholars, although it looks all right on paper and if it would only stay there it would do no harm. The school board is undoubtedly misrepresenting the county and state superintendents by trying to make it appear that those experienced and learned men are sanctioning its fool-hardiness. Those officers will thank the correspondent for saying that they are doing no such thing. Anyone acquainted with the material that goes to make up the High school, and exercises a bit of good common sense, can see that there should be a change-a radical change-in the course of study. This is not only the individual opinion of the writer, but it is the expressed opinion of the greater majority of citizens who have personal interest in the public schools, and these invite, through this medium, the head of the public schools in this county to examine into the matter and correct the wrong. It is especially due the taxpayers of this borough to have official announcement that the school board is not acting upon the good judgment of the county superintendent, thus raising the screen from behind which the school board does and purposes in the future to fight its battle. Respectful attention is awaited. In the meantime will the school board please look up the condition upon which the state appropriation is granted. Has it ever
