FARM NOTES.

-To distinguish Poland China, Essex and Berkshire hogs, the Essex is entirely black, without even a white spot. The Berkshire has four white feet, a white mark an the forehead and white turf on the tail. The Poland China is not so uniform made in silk, with fringed ends. Here the process of the party of the Berkshire has consequently and often in flowered muslin, but the scarfs are mostly white. In Paris they are often made in silk, with fringed ends. Here

-The best month for crimson clover seeding is August. September is rather late unless the winter does not begin too early. If the land is naturally damp drain it if possible. Wood ashes will give excellent results, as they contain not only potash, but a large porcontain not only potash, but a large portion of lime. If not easily obtained use 150 pounds of sulphate of potash per

-Mulch does not keep the ground or lants warm. On the contrary, the ground is kept cold; that is, the covering prevents the ground when frozen from being suddenly thawed, the temperature under the weather, which throws plants up and leaves the liability of damage in April and May.

-Feeding habits seem to remain as heirlooms handed down to follow, and some farmers, therefore feed all animals alike without regard to the fact that some will consume much more than others. It has long been estimated that half a bushel of grain a day will supply 50 sheep, in addition to long food, but there is a great dif-ference in the breeds of sheep, and individuals also differ. The only way to feed is to closely observe the animals and supply their wants without waste.

-The fowls on some farms are required to be self-supporting. They are forced to find shelter in trees or wherever permitted, thus becoming the prey of owls, or if on the ground they are liable to destruction from four-footed enemies. Turkeys often become lame by their feet freezing, while breeds of poultry with large combs and wattles also suffer severely. Fowls that are not provided for are not producers of eggs, and the farmer consequently loses the use of their services by not giving them proper care. As eggs are usually high during the winter season any expense in the poultry department should result in a bottom is curved higher to make the sides of good profit for the investment.

—It is said that some people get wealthy on what other people waste. The Farm, Field and Fireside finds this saying particularly applicable to farmers in the matter of fodder saving, and it remarks:

Everyone knows that cornstalks are rich in nutrition. They are particularly good for dairy stock and are profitable for cattle of all kinds and ages and for sheep. But how common a fault it is to let this nutritive fodder be wasted. Sometimes it is left on and the lower ends become saturated, heavy, tasteless, valueless. It is worse yet if they be left till too late in the season and the leaves become stripped off by the winds and scattered and many of the stocks trodden into the soil. cornstalks under good shelter in sheds or barns. The next best thing is to stack them. Every farmer knows how to do this with butte cornward and the stack this with butts outward and the stack so built as to shed the rain. A stake in the built as to shed the rain. A stake in the middle is a good plan. Care should be had to have the cornstalks dry and to do the stacking on a dry sunshiny day, and the sooner the stocks are cared for after harvesting the corn the better. All these cautions will see my realess to a careful former, but the sound of the stacking on the stocks are careful former. will seem useless to a careful farmer, but time, only, as usual, presenting a great im-agriculture vinegar making in the ordinary way, by allowing the cider to ferment at will in casks without controlling the surrounding conditions, gave results that were rounding conditions, gave results that were far from profitable. By regulating the temperature and adding vinegar mother and cultures of acetic acid ferment fairly good vinegar was secured, but the process was slow and wasteful. By mixing equal parts of fermented cider and old vinegar the process of fermentation was greatly hastened, but the method cannot be followed without a leave stock of early a stock of corsets built on the old time lines, but these are generally of a cheaper grade. All the expensive, well-made corsets are fashioned on the new lowed without a large stock of old vinegar | model.

Very good results were secured by using a vinegar generator in which the cider passed slowly through a mass of shavings, where it was thoroughly aerated and ferwhere it was thoroughly aerated and fermentation thus hastened. The generator consisted of a 4 by 8 foot wooden tank filled with beech shavings, provided with holes near the bottom for the admission of air and fitted one foot from top with a wooden disk perforated to allow the entrance of cider which was distributed evenly over it by means of a dumper. The ly over it by means of a dumper. The vinegar was drawn from the tank by means of a siphon of glass tubing inserted in a ole near the bottom. The temperature of the fermenting cider in the mass of shavings was controlled by regulating the supply of air, some of the air holes being shut off when the temperature rose too high and opened when it fell too low.

In order to acidify the shavings and start the process of fermentation, the generator was charged with strong vinegar and again and again with vinegar in which some concentrated grape juice was dissolved. The solution, a mixture of weak vinegar and fermented cider, was then run through the generator at the rate of 20 galances and (24 hours). lons per day (24 hours.) The resulting product was a very good vinegar, ranging from 4.05 to 5.87 per cent. acid. A mixture of half vinegar and half fresh cider failed to produce good vinegar without being run through the generator twice.

Better results were obtained by allowing the acidity of the product. Temperatures below 90 degrees did not give good results. The optimum is thought to be about 95 de-

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Sleeves are being made with a band of three tucks around the armhole, so as to keep them quite flat, and yet give a little relief to the severe outlines which not every shoulder can do with. A sloping shoulder line is once more the accepted standard of beauty. For this reason, apparently, we are in love with fichus, and in markings, strongly resembling the Berk- they are generally muslin. We are adoptshire, but white spots may be found on any portion of the body.

they are generally mushin. We are adopting transparent yokes, collars and collar bands, but the great art is to make them as high and no higher than they are needed. It is a great mistake to have them so that looks well for traveling and morning suits.

To remove grease spots from woolen fabric place a piece of blotting paper both under and over the portion of the cloth where the grease appears and press several times with a hot iron. Stretch the portion of the material where the grease spot was mulch being more uniform. It is the hard over a piece of stiff cardboard—or the top of a small wooden box will answer the purover a piece of stiff cardboard-or the top weather, which throws plants up and leaves the roots partly out of the ground. A mulch also retards blossoming and lessens of flannel with rectified benzine and rub the right side of the material, moving the flannel quickly in a circular direction to prevent the grease from spreading. Use plenty of benzine and continue to rub until the benzine has evaporated, then remove the blotting paper and put a cloth in its place. Dip a small brush into boiling water, soap it, and rub the portion of the fabric which was touched by the benzine, then sponge off the soap and rub the material between cloths until it is nearly dry.

> Of course, you know that broadcloth and French flannel shirt waists are the trump card this fall. They are certainly pretty, warm and comfortable, so what more do you want, for you've got the style.

They are made unlined, shirtwaist sleeves, with cuffs, plain backs all in one piece, with a yoke stitched on, and plain fronts, except for three folds turned out, laid at each side of the button band, stitched top and bottom and loose at the bust. They are fastened with gold or silver buttons nearly as large as your thumb nail, and you wear at the neck a stock.

the yoke narrower and to give a broad shoulder effect which is "the thing." Sometimes the back, instead of being plain, is laid in small box-pleats, and some are made with yokes of the same in front on which are small embroidered bow-knots or butterflies of polka dots.

The new figure is built on the lines of the perfection of the Venus de Milo. You must be one size from the bust to the abdomen in front. You can imagine the size too long in the field. The fall rains come some women's waists will be. It is not modish to have a wasp-like waist now-a days, and therefore the wasp-like waist must go, like so many other tabooed things in this world of ours.

The new female figure is straight in front, curving at the sides over the hips. Of course, the best practice is to put the Now the question comes in, how are you

Blond hair can be saved from grayness by treating it each night with the yolk of an egg, beaten up with glycerine. The head must be covered afterwards to prevent soiling the pillows, and must be washed in the morning to take away the stickiness. Dark hair should be treated with walnut juice combed into the hair. A frequent use of sage tea, made by steeping for half an hour a small package of pressed sage the cider to ferment for some time in casks before running it through the generator.

The temperature within the generator 2 feet from the bottom ranged from 88 degrees to 106 degrees. The higher temperature caused a loss of alcohol and lowered the acidity of the product. Temperatures below 90 degrees did. Falling hair can be stopped by washing before. I have known beautiful results from this treatment in three weeks' time. When the hair is thin, soft and fine, and when the last is this, so and the, and comes out easily, it should be brushed very lightly; in fact, it is better to lay aside the winter as it does in summer, the lower temperature preventing fermentation, but with the fingers each night before retiring unless manure is under shelter it is more subject to the effects of rains than at any other season. Manure should be kept in heaps closely compressed, so as to exclude the air. If the liquids are pumped over the solids, the heap being opened to admit of saturation, all the valuable properties of manure will be saved.

with the fingers each night before retiring and gently massage the scalp with the tips of the fingers. Dry, thin hair can be successfully treated with vaseline applied to the roots and rubbed into the scalp. Such hair should not be washed with soap oftener than once a month—once in two months is better. Course, strong hair is the only kind that can stand a frequent shampoo. Castoria.
