"Confound it!" she said to her spouse.

"Here I have a chance to get a footing on The Dodd Magazine, but what they ask me to do is way out of my line. They say they like my style and all and my stories of life on a tug, but they want a love story and they thought I could do it."

"Yes, I know it's a fault of yours. You ought to have sentiment; it's a great attrac-

"And, pray, may I ask when you experienced this delightful sensation?" "Certainly, my dear." Bill arose and lit his pipe. "It was—some time age. She was a very pretty little blonde, and—well—she did that sort of thing delightfully—the sentiment you know." "Mean it?" "Oh, mercy, yes—bad case."

"Did you respond?"
"After a fashion." "How, after a fashion?"

"Oh, she did the falling in love and following up and all. I let her. It wasn't my place to say, 'Go to, little one; tempt me not.'"

"Of course." "Well, she really did mean it, poor little soul, and I must confess it was very pleasant for awhile. But, dear me, that sort of thing couldn't go on forever. I was afraid her husband would get on to it, and she was so much in love that there was no getting her to plan anything quietly or sanely. She kept calling me up on the telephone and begging me to see her. It got to be a bore, besides being dangerous. And then she expected so much of me. I must swear I loved her every three minutes and write every day and never speak to another woman. It was her jealousy that really made the split between us. You see I met you about that time."

"Yes, dear," Ed crossed the room and rumpled Bill's hair affectionately. "You met me-a year ago last December-so this affair is more than 'quite' recent."

"Oh, yes, it's modern enough." "What was she like?"

"Small and rather frail looking. Big, gray, eyes and light hair-it was beautiful hair-fell way down below her knees. Nice complexion, too—a trifle too pale generally, but when she was excited it used to shine pink, like a moist sea-beauty. She lacked strength of character. Here forte was delicacy and sentiment. Would you care to see her picture? I have one somewhere in my trunk."

In the adjoining room the newly arrived runks and boxes were piled high. A few moments' search, and he reappeared with a square tin lock box. This he carried back to the sitting room, placed it upon to table and opened it. "There !" he said, withdrawing a photograph. "What do you think of her? His wife took the picture to the window and examined it closely. "Certainly a stunning head," she commented. "Rather a sad face-fine eyes, though."

"Here's another, taken in profile," said "It's rather better."

Edwina came back, replaced the first and took up the second portrait.

'Undoubtedly stunning-good neck line -hair grows prettily."

"What are all these letters-hers?" "Yes. She used to write to me every day for awhile till I made her stop. She really had a great knack of expressing herself—see here.

"Um," she murmured as her practiced eye ran down the closely written page. "Good! Pity she didn't have my job. Um -um-she certainly had the 'know how. Let's see another."

She handed back the delicate blue leaves and selected another note from the Bill picked up the missive with a half sigh and began reading. There was silence for over half an hour, except for the crisp rattle of note paper as it was withdrawn or replaced in its envelope. "I almost begin to understand sentiment," said Edwina.

"Poor little girl," said Bill.

"What became of her?" she said.

"She went to live in Europe shortly after we were married. She separated from her husband.

Bill paced about the room for a few moments. "I thought you had better know it, Ed, dear," he said. "You have plenty of sense about such things, I know, and now I think I ought to tear up those lettersletters are not the safest things in the world to keep around." "The idea!" she exclaimed. "Are you crazy? Destroy them? Why, it's the best 'copy' in ages, a regular gold mine. Not a bit of it. You shan't tear one. It's a find. It's stupendous. I'll make those Dodd people open their eyes."

An Alarm Sounded.

James R. Keene, the noted stock dealer of New York city, predicts a fearful "slump" in stocks. The capitalization, within one year, of $4,500,000,000 of "trusts" has awakened a most serious alarm in financial circles. The increase of money during the last fifteen months barely reaches $140,000,000, and on this increas and the small amount of idle money at the time the "trust" movement began, rests $4,500,000,000 new securities. It is an awful contemplation to think of the weak foundation of which the immense "trust' fabric is built. The rule governing this inflation is to issue one third of the capital of a particular trust in preferred stock and two thirds in common stock. Usually the deceit on persons who are not competent to judge of its value—induce widows and Keene is confident that a woeful collapse will take place. In amazement he exclaims: "Think of such an inverted pyramid of credit, with so little money at its base and you will conclude as I do, that the danger of its continued stability overshadows all other considerations,"

The truth is this "trust" movement has the most stupendous fraud of the century. The men who are engaged in it know that class of people who will become the pur-chasers are those who have no means of enjoy his wealth, unconcerned, though those to whom he sold the stock are in ## Remarkable Nerve.

Details of a distressing accident and a remarkable display of courage comes from Hastings, Cambria county. Howard Low-man, the telegraph operator at Garway, was loading an old army musket Saturday afternoon, when the weapon exploded, tearing his left hands in shreds. He was on duty at the time and trains were near the tower waiting orders to move. With almost superhuman courage Lowman, after sending word of the accident to Patton, remained at his post, sending and receiving messages and dispatching trains until relief arrived from that town. When the relief operator arrived Mr. Lowman was put on a special engine and hurried to Hastings, where Dr. D. S. Rice amputated the mangled hand four inches above the wrist.

The rate of interest to which the preferred stock is entitled is named in the certificate covering the issue. Until that is paid the common stock does not receive a penny of interest. The custom is for the original parties to relieve themselves, as soon as possible, of the common stock. ## A MICHIGAN MIRACLE

SPEECH RESTORED AFTER NEARLY 13 YEARS.

The Ypsilanti Commercial, Ypsilanti, Mich. Many things appear miraculous that are really the result of natural laws, the workings of which can be accurately predicted. A striking example of this occurred in a prominent Michigan family recently, and there can be no question as to the truthfulness of the narrative since it is attested by Mrs. Harriet Begole, of Ypsilanti, Mich., a sister-in-law of Mr. Joshua Begole, who was Governor of Michigan in 1883-4. Mrs. Begole said:

"In 1886 I suffered from a severe illness; during which my voice left me and I did not speak above a whisper for nearly 13 years.

"I was treated by five local physicians and afterward consulted leading specialists of New York. They diagnosed my case as partial paralysis, stating that the left side of my throat was entirely paralyzed, the right side partially so. For nearly eight years I have suffered from a severe stomach disorder and about a year ago I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"My stomach trouble was relieved, my general health became greatly improved and to my surprise I regained control of my vocal organs. I have used five boxes of the pills and last November I spoke aloud for the first time in almost 13 years. I am now 71 years of age and have full control of my voice. (Signed) Mrs. HARRIET A. BEGOLE." Sworn to and subscribed before me this 19th day of May, 1899, at Ypsilanti, Michigan.

John P. Kirk, Notary Public

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and all forms of weakness either in male or female.

HONESTLY ANSWER THIS QUESTION.

In Bellefonte there are scores of people who allowed their experience and opinions of Doan's Kidney Pills to be published in our local papers early in 1896, interviewed considerably over two years and a half afterwards, they positively assert that the benefit received has been lasting. Is not that remedy worthy of your confidence? This is one of the cases out of the many we have:

Mr. H. C. Yeager, of the Brant House, says: "I have not changed my mind regarding Doan's Kidney Pills which did me so much good, over two years ago. What they did for me was done permanently. At the time they relieved me of a depressing backache and lameness across my kindeys and I can recommend them as ardently now as I did then. I have never had the severe pains in my back since. Doan's Kidney Pills are all right."
