

FARM NOTES.

After the leaves fall in autumn the work of the fruit grower is apparently done, but in fact, the labor of caring for the vineyard and orchard should never end.

A crop of clover grown in an orchard will supply all the nitrogen required, and as clover requires lime and potash the soil will not be deprived of the mineral elements if clover is grown thereon, and an application of phosphate will still further assist the land and the trees.

There is always more or less fallen fruit, leaves, dead grass and other refuse matter around trees that contain the spores of disease, and it is during the winter when these materials should be cleared away and consigned to the flames.

Personally Conducted Tours via Pennsylvania Railroad. The Pennsylvania railroad company announced the following personally conducted tours for the season of 1899 and 1900.

SIX FRIGHTFUL FAILURES.—Six terrible failures of six different doctors nearly sent Wm. H. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation; they do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.

To avoid a task and to fear it is to make it our master. To set about it cheerfully at once is to become its master.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

An over conscientious woman once pinned on her mirror frame a motto taken from a French convent: "Time is a gift of God; its duration is uncertain and its loss irreparable."

The voice is a powerful aid to girls who would win to themselves much admiration. Loud-voiced women are never so enthralling as those having a low-timbered voice.

There is a cry among the young women that amounts to a wail. The pompadour is going out. The hair is not to be skinned back from the forehead, neither are great bangs to be cut and curled.

Had she remained content with a small, artistic pompadour that rolled gracefully back from the brow, and worn her hair up with any semblance of respectability in the back, the pompadour would still be in fashion.

Consequently, she ended the thing by overdoing it. It took all manner of extremes, varying in degrees from a clarctic poster to a deserted rat's nest.

There was nothing more to be done in the way of building up the hair when she got through with it, and the conservative woman in horror began simplifying her coiffure.

Now the edict has gone forth that only the simply coiffured head is elegant. No crimps, no ornamental combs, only the neatest of side combs to match the hair in color; no brooch in the back.

It is a delightful change to those women who have often wondered how many nights some women have slept with their heads already dressed.

I heard one young woman confess—not in the tone of confession, but of triumph—that she never combed or brushed her hair from one week after the hair-dresser crimped it and put it up. Then she wonders why her hair falls out!

There is something very beautiful about a well coiffured head. I don't mean an elaborately arranged one, but a head that shows the frequent use of a good stiff brush, a healthy tonic and invigorating massage to bring out the oil.

There is nothing that so ruins the whole appearance of a woman as an ill-kept head. Thin scanty locks, without any sheen, badly curled, arranged to show every defect of the face.

Ribbon belts, with small but elaborate clasps of gold, silver or jewels, are worn with the handsomer gowns and to accompany silk waists.

Tailor gowns of a severe type require mannish shoes, collars, cuffs and ties to complete the effect. A woman now patronizes the same haberdashery that furnishes her male friends' adornments.

Shoes are high laced, rather than buttoned, broad welted soles and made of black calfskin for morning wear. For afternoon they are of enameled or patent leather. No one now wears tan shoes except in the country or on golf links.

A woman can laugh with her lips, make a man think she is the merriest cricket in the world, while her eyes are full of unshed tears and her heart is beating as if it would burst.

On many of the plainest cloth tailor gowns is appearing a little note of trimming at the foot that is noticeable. The extreme bottom of the skirt is trimmed with three rows of braid or velvet ribbon, and over this the skirt is cut out in square battlements, not over three inches long.

There is only one skirt to this, of course, the bottom strip of cloth being stitched to the silk lining and the cloth skirt stitched right above the battlements, so that it will not fly up.

With all tailor suits, that is, strictly walking suits, the tailors are adhering to the old-fashion of putting the lining in with the cloth. They say the skirt hangs better.

It is made as a petticoat with a knife plaited flounce on the bottom, and very often the skirt is cut to show eight inches of this flounce.

This is why I have recommended to so many women this method of renovating a cloth gown. One can wear this silk petticoat with many skirts, and for a cloth skirt that has grown too short the model is excellent.

A woman afflicted with round shoulders may benefit herself considerably by sleeping with one small, flat pillow, and being careful to walk as erect as possible, keeping the head up and expanding the chest. An exercise said to be efficacious is to walk about the room with a book on the head. If the chin can be kept up the stoop will gradually disappear.

"Kirby has quit living in a boarding house and gone to a hotel." "Why?" "He says he has nervous prostration from sympathizing with his landlady three times a day."

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE IN 1900

NOVELTY IN LITERARY AND ART FEATURES. PRINTING IN COLOR. THE BEST ILLUSTRATIONS, with Cole's Engravings and Castaigne's Drawings.

A NEW AND SUPERBLY ILLUSTRATED. LIFE OF CROMWELL

By the Right Hon. John Morley, M. P. THE conductors of The Century take especial pleasure in announcing this as the leading historical serial of the magazine in 1900.

No man is more competent than John Morley, who was selected by Mr. Gladstone's family to write the biography of Gladstone, to treat Cromwell in the spirit of the end of the nineteenth century.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS will be remarkable. Besides original drawings, there will be valuable unpublished portraits lent by Her Majesty the Queen, and by the owners of the greatest Cromwell collections. Other features include: ERNEST SETON-THOMPSON'S "Biography of a Grizzly" delightfully illustrated by the artist-author,—the longest and most important literary work of the author of "Wild Animal Life in America."

PARIS, ILLUSTRATED BY CASTAIGNE. A series of papers for the Exposition year, by Richard Whiting, author of "No. 5 John Street," splendidly illustrated with more than sixty pictures by the famous artist Castaigne, including views of the Paris Exposition.

LONDON, ILLUSTRATED BY PHIL MAY. A series of papers on the East End of London by Sir Walter Besant, with pictures by Phil May and Joseph Pennell.

SAILING ALONE AROUND THE WORLD. The record of a voyage of 49,000 miles undertaken single-handed and alone in a 40-foot boat. A most delightful biography of the sea. THE AUTHOR OF "HUGH WYNNE," Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, will furnish a short serial of remarkable psychological interest, "The Autobiography of Quiaic" and there will be short stories by all the leading writers.

A CHARTER FROM MARK TWAIN'S ABANDONED AUTOBIOGRAPHY. LITERARY REMINISCENCES. Familiar accounts of Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Emerson, Bryant, Whittier, and Holmes.

IMPORTANT PAPERS. By Governor Theodore Roosevelt, President Eliot of Harvard University, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Woodrow Wilson, John Burroughs, and others.

AMERICAN SECRET HISTORY. A series of papers of commanding interest. THE ART WORK OF THE CENTURY. It is everywhere conceded that THE CENTURY has led the world in art. Timothy Cole's unique and beautiful wood blocks will continue to be a feature, with the work of many other engravers who have made the American school famous. The fine halftone plates—re-engraved by wood engravers—for which the magazine is distinguished, will appear with new methods of printing and illustrating.
