THE CHORISTERS.

There's a little band of singers
Every evening comes and lingers
'Neath the window of my cottage in the trees,
And with dark they raise their voices, While the gathering night rejoices,

And the leaves join in the chorus with the breeze Then the twinkling stars come out To enjoy the merry rout,

And the squirrels range themselves upon a log,

And the fireflies furnish light, That they read their notes aright-

All the night I hear them singing, Through my head their tunes are ringing—
Strains of music straight from Mother Nature's Now the katydid and cricket

The katydid, the cricket and the frog.

From the deep of yonder thicket,

Then the croaking frog off yonder drones his part By and by the moon appears, As the midnight hour nears, And-her smiles dispel the low'ring mist and fog; Then the mirth is at its height, and they glorify the night-The katydid, the cricket and the frog.

Diving for Fresh Water.

What is believed to be the hottest region in the world is that part of the eastern shore of the Persian gulf which is named after the Bahrein islands that er. They seized upon and devoured the lie near it. On the Bahrein island proper, which is the largest of the group, the thermometer never falls below 100 degrees day or night and often rises as high as 140 degrees in the shade. Only the natives can bear this enormous heat at all, and even they suffer terribly at times because the fierceness of the temperature varies so little and gives them hardly a respite.

To add to the decided discomforts of the region the coast is so dry that borings have been made as deep as 1,000 feet without striking water. There is not a drop to be had except far in the interior, and the condition of water carried for any distance in such heat as this may be imagined. Yet the natives never lack for water that is n merely fresh, but actually cool. And t y get it in a way that is wonderful. They get it by diving into the sea for it. Many years ago pearl fishers who dived into the waters off the shores of these islands for pearls, which are plentiful there, discovered that immense springs spouted from the bottom of the sea. Accidentally they found that these springs were of sweet water. Ever since then a regular industry, perhaps one of the strangest industries in the world, has been that of diving for fresh water. The divers go out every morning. They take with them goatskins, and, weighted with stones to insure a swift descent, they plunge into the depths. At the bot tom they hold the mouths of the skins over a spring and as soon as it is filled tie it up swiftly and ascend. The skins are hauled up with lines. As there are 75,000 persons in that barren group of islands, the industry of diving for fresh water is a large one, and the divers get rich. The water is about 20 degrees cooler than is the atmosphere on land, so it is a boon to the suffering population, and the lucky divers who get to land first are certain of high prices. In fact, the fresher the water is the more the diver earns, and as the submarine springs are only a mile away from shore the water hardly gets time to lose any of its grateful temperature before it is landed, if one can say that #### water is "landed." Stumbled, but Won a Wife.

Governor Aaron V. Brown of Tennes see was a Chesterfield for politeness and a Talleyrand for wit. When he, a much admired widower, was paying his addresses, as yet unavowed, to an attractive young widow, he called at her house one day and was ushered into a room darkened to the degree which the pre-vailing fashion of those days declared to be elegant, and before the governor had familiarized himself with the sur-rounding objects in the gloom the young widow entered the room. With enthusiastic devotion he advanced to meet he hastily, not noticing a low stool directly in his pathway. Unhappily he stumbled over it and plumped upon his knees directly at the feet of the object of his af-fections. Before she could utter a word of apology or sympathy the adroit governor, seizing her hand, exclaimed, "Madam, a happy accident has brought me where inclination has long led me.' The formal declaration which followed was of course successful, for such ready gallantry could not be resisted .- Ladies' Home Journal.

Under the title of "Plaral Mothers" a writer in the Madras Law Journal discusses the question whether "between two females, both of whom are entitled to claim as mothers, primogeniture depends on priority of marriage or upon seniority of age.'

This brings to mind the anecdote of a supposed lunatic in an insane asylum who claimed to be Napoleon (or Julius Cæsar, perhaps it was) and when told Cæsar, perhaps it was; and when told exchange. Its immense traffic is still that he had not long before claimed to handled in the most primitive manner be Alexander the Great dexterously replied, "Ah, but that was by another

This alleged plurality of mothers is somewhat startling. In India, however, each of whom thereby becomes a mother of the child.

Old Time Surgery.

A grim souvenir of an old time war was on view in a cutler's window in the east end of London recently. It is an ebony handled saw, which, according to the inscription on a brass plate attached to the instrument, was used by a surgeon of the British army to amputate the limbs of wounded soldiers at Blenheim, Malplaquet and Ramillies.

A Fearful Experience.

In "Wild Animals I Have Known" Mr. Ernest Seton Thompson relates a terrible experience. He had gone out alone to a remote disinict on his pony to inspect some woif traps. In one of them he found a wolf and, having killed it, was engaged in resetting the trap when inadvertently he sprang the next one, and his hand was caught in the massive steel

"I lay on my face," he says, "and stretched out my toe, hoping to draw within reach the trap wrench, which I had thrown down a few feet away. Wolf traps are set in fours around a buried bait and are covered with cotton and fine sand so as to be quite invisible. Intent on securing my wrench, I swung about my anchor, stretching and reaching to the utmost, unable to see just where it lay, but trusting to the sense of touch to find it. A moment later there was a sharp 'clank!' and the iron jaws of trap No. 3 closed on my left foot. "Struggle as I would, I could not remove either trap, and there I lay stretched out and securely staked to the ground. No one knew where I had gone, and there was slight prospect of any one coming to the place for weeks. The full horror of my situation was upon me-to be devoured by wolves or die of cold and starvation. My pony meantime stood patiently waiting to take me home. The afternoon waned, and night came on—a night of horror! Wolves howled in the distance and then came nearer and nearcarcass of the one I had slaughtered, and one of them, growing bolder, came up and snarled in my face. "Then there was a sudden rush and a fight among the wolves. I could not see well, and for an instant I thought my time had come when a big fellow dashed upon me. But it was Bingo, my noble dog, who rubbed his shaggy, panting sides against me and licked my face. He had scattered the wolves and killed one, as I afterward learned.

"'Bingo, Bingo, old boy! Fetch me the trap wrench!' Away he went and came dragging my rifle, for he knew only that I wanted something.

"'No. Bingo; the trap wrench.' This time it was my sash, but at last he brought the wrench and wagged his tail in joy that it was right. "With difficulty, reaching out with my free hand, I unscrewed the pillar nut. The trap fell apart, and my hand was released, and a minute later I was free. Bingo brought up my pony, which had fled at the approach of the wolves, and soon we were on the way home, with the dog, as herald, leaping and barking for

Ruskin's Vanity.

In one of his lectures as Slade professor of fine art at Oxford Mr. Ruskin confessed to his hearers something of his own appreciation of his literary style:

"None of my writings are done fluent-Painters' was all of it written twice most of it four times over, and these lectures have been written I don't know how many times. You may think this was done merely in an author's vanity, not in a tutor's care. To the vanity I plead guilty. No man is more intensely vain than I am. But my vanity is set on having it known of me that I am a good master, not in having it said of me that I am a smooth author. My vanity is never more wounded than in being called a fine writer, meaning that nobody need mind what I say."

It is a curious circumstance that while stery of language won his ideas on art a wide audience throughout the English speaking world, his Oxford lectures were slimly attended by the students of that university. The lecture of which we are speaking, for example, although nominally given before "the University of Oxford," was in fact delivered to four hearers, and three of the four, as the Slade professor bluntly told them, ought not to have been at Oxford

at all .- New York Sun. Gorgeous Swords

Of gorgeous swords which are not so much weapons as settings for precious stones, the most valuable in England is said to be the one presented by the Egyptians to Lord Wolseley and valued at £2,000, but this sum is comparatively little for a bejeweled sword if the value of the sword brought over to Europe by the late shah of Persia on his first visit— namely, £10,000—can be taken as a stand-ard of what a diamond hilted weapon ought to cost. Those who can recall that wonderful saber will be somewhat skep-tical about the existence of the gaikwar of Baroda's gorgeous blade, which is supposed to be worth more than 20 swords of equal beauty and value to the shah's. But it is popularly supposed that the diamonds, rubies and emeralds with which it is thickly incrusted bring up its value to about £220,000, which at 4 per cent represents an income of almost £9.000 a year and renders the possession of such a sword something more than a mere !uxury.-Chambers' Journal

-Some farmers prefer to have their pigs farrowed in the spring, as they escape severity of winter, do not become checked in growth with cold, and grow rapidly until the time arrives for converting them into pork. As soon as weaned they are given clover and grass liberally, and are not made fat until nearly ready for the pork barrel. As there may be considerable cold weather before spring, it is not desirable to have sows farrow before April. If pigs come in March they must have warm quarters and given careful attention until the warm season enters.

Skeleton of a Mastodon Unearthed.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad is pending in the neighborhood of two million dol lars in reducing grades and straightening curves on its main line between Chicago and Omaha. At Rome, Ia., the line crosses the Skunk river, and there a gang of men have been employed excavating for the foundations of a new double track iron bridge. At a point fifteen feet below the river bed, under the quicksand and just above the blue clay strata, foreman Peter Mattson came across a T-shaped bone three feet high and four feet eight inches wide. It was taken out and carried in the tool car to Batavia, where it now Those who have since examined the bone pronounce it to be undoubtedly part of the skele ton of an animal of prehistoric times, probably that of a mastodon.

Mr. A. B. Steel, of the Armory says:

"I have never had a bad back since I used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago. I procured them at that time from F. Potts Green's drug store and used them, but I have never had any occasion to use them since. I was at that time so bad with lumbago or soreness across my kidneys that I had to lay off work. I was hurt at a barn raising some years ago by a heavy timber swinging and striking me in the back. After that whenever I took cold it always affected my kidneys. This was the case for years but Doan's Kidney Pills finished all that suffering. I can speak as highly of this valuable preparation now as I did then."
