The Force of Habit. "Habit is a curious thing," said Mr. Joggleton. "But the completeness with which one habit can be supplanted by another seems more curious still."

"I had a chair that I had used for years and which, as I was firmly convinced, was by long odds the most comfortable chair ever made. After breakfast, when I read the paper, I used to sit in that chair, and after dinner at night I settled down into it, with a cigar, in peace and happiness and thought there never was a chair that combined so many good points as to height and pitch of seat and slope of back and all that. I had never seen a chair that suited me so well."

"But one day this chair was tipped over or something of that kind happened to it, I don't know what, but something so serious that it was put out of commission. With our usual conservative slowness we put off from day to day and from week to week getting that chair repaired, and, as a matter of fact, it was two or three weeks before we had it fixed up and brought into use again. Meanwhile I had singled out another chair which I came commonly to occupy. This didn't begin to be at first as comfortable as the old one had been, but gradually its objectionable points disappeared, and I'm blessed if it didn't begin to develop good points that I had never suspected in it, and I came at last to look upon it as a very comfortable sort of chair indeed. But at last the old chair—the good old chair—was fixed up again and brought back into use, and the day it appeared I looked forward to settling down in it at night with all the old time comfort."

"But when with all those pleasant anticipations, I came to sit in it again I did not find the pleasure that I had expected. It was too high or too low or the seat sloped too much or something, I don't know what. It wasn't as it used to be to me. I tried it once or twice more after that and then gave it up and went back to the new chair. My new habit had become firmly fixed. I liked the new chair better, and now as I settled down in it its good points were at once emphasized, and I accepted it in full as the chair of satisfying comfort and wondered as I looked across at the other what I ever could have seen in it to make me like it so much."

"Such is the force of habit,"—New York Sun.

Two Lads Who Started Even. Thirty years ago Mr. H., a nurseryman in New York state, left home for a day or two. It was rainy weather and not a sea on for sales, but a customer arrived from a distance, tied up his horse and went into the kitchen of a farmhouse where two lads were cracking nuts.

"Is Mr. H. at home?" "No, sir," said the eldest, Joe, hammering at a nut.

"When will he be back?" "Dunno, sir. Maybe not for a week."

The other boy, Jim, jumped up and followed the man out. "The men are not here, but I can show you the stock," he said, with a bright, courteous manner that the customer noticed with a little irritation. He followed him through the nursery, examining the trees, and left his order.

"You have sold the largest bill I have had this season, Jim," his father, greatly pleased, said to the boy as he returned. A few years later these two boys were left by their father's failure and death with $200 or $300 each. Joe bought an acre or two near home. He has worked hard, but is still poor and discontented man. Jim bought an engraver's ticket to Colorado, hired as a cattle driver for a couple of years and with his wages bought land at 40 cents an acre, built himself a house and married. His herd of cattle are numbered by the thousand, his land has been cut up into town lots, and he is ranked as one of the wealthiest men in the state.

"I might have done like Jim," his brother said lately, "if I'd thought in time. There's as good stuff in me as in him."

"There's as good stuff in that loaf of bread as in any I ever made," said his wife, "but nobody can eat it. There's not enough yeast in it. This return, though disagreeable, was true. Becher's Fee. The power of an orator can be largely measured by the degree of confidence which he inspires, and judged by this standard Henry Beecher must be reckoned among the greatest speakers of modern times. Men who heard him in the pulpit or talked with him out of it could not question the sincerity which shined forth in his face, his manner and his voice.

Mr. Beecher was on a lecturing tour, and Major Pond, his manager, was sitting beside him in the railway car. Suddenly the preacher slapped his hand on the little watch pocket of his trousers and drew forth a small envelope. For a moment he looked at it in surprise, then opened it and smiled. Presently he turned to his companion.

"Major," said he, "I married a great railroad magnate a few months ago, and as I was taking leave of him he handed me an envelope, which I slipped in my pocket until it until today. Just now I opened it, and this is what I found."

The major took the envelope. Within it were five $1,000 bills.—Youth's Companion.

A Curious Lake. A curious phenomenon is that metal never rusts in the waters of Lake Titicaca. You can throw in a chain or an anchor or any article of ordinary iron and let it lie for weeks, and when you haul it up it will be as clean and bright as when it came from the foundry. And you will find it stranger still, rust that has been formed upon metallic objects elsewhere will peel off when immersed in its waters. This is frequently noticed by railway and steamship men. Rusty car wheels and rails and even machinery can be brightened by soaking them in the waters of Lake Titicaca.—Chicago Record.

Since then he has been greatly relieved.

A THRILLING INCIDENT.

Frankfort, Ky., March 27.—The most thrilling event of the examining trial of Republican Secretary of State Caleb Powers occurred shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and for a few minutes it looked as if serious trouble could not be prevented. Colonel George Denny, for the defendant, in an argument upon the competency of a question, said:

"It is perfectly lawful for people to come here, and to come armed. I came here several times myself."

He was referring to the crowd that was present at the mass meeting held in the state house yard just prior to Goebel's assassination.

Colonel Campbell, for the prosecution, replied that he did not consider it lawful and was surprised to know that Mr. Denny had come here armed. Denny denied having made such a statement, and said that he did not come armed. Campbell insisted that he had made the statement. Both men were very much excited and spoke with vehemence, and with arms shaking commenced to advance toward each other. The court room was crowded and the audience evidently thought a fight was on and made a mad rush for the doors and windows, people falling over each other in their efforts to get out of the room. Several policemen and deputy sheriffs were bringing for order and Judge Moore was crying his gavel down with terrific force and urging the people to take their seats. After five or ten minutes of the most exciting scenes since the assassination quiet was restored.

Just as soon as the room began to grow orderly ex-Governor Brown, one of the attorneys for the defense, whispered to Colonel Campbell, who promptly arose and apologized to Denny and to the court. Colonel Denny replying in a very happy speech.

On an inspection of the record it was found that Colonel Campbell had misconstrued Colonel Denny's statement.

Governor Brown, in a speech, asked the court to adjourn and give the people time to cool off, stating that it was only by the coolness of several officers and people around him that dozens of people were not killed. He further said that it was not that he feared any violence, but he only spoke for the protection of his client.

County Attorney Polsgrove objected to adjourning, stating that it would be an admission that the court was unable to protect the prisoner and insisted upon resuming the questioning of Golden.

Colonel Denny agreed with Mr. Polsgrove, and the court told the attorneys to proceed with the examination.

At the conclusion of the examination of Golden the commonwealth rested its case. The witness gave no testimony against Powers. He said that when he heard, on his way to Louisville with Powers, that Governor Goebel had been shot, he told Powers what had happened, and Powers said that it was a dirty shame and outrage.

When asked about the man who was given the key the morning Goebel was killed, Golden said he did not know his name, but could recognize him here Saturday and Governor Brown asked him to get up and see if he was in the room. Golden looked calm and a little irritated, stopped and followed him through the nursery, examining the trees, and left his order.

Cronje's Prison.

St. Helena, Whither the Captive Boer is to be Transported. The lone rock of St. Helena, whither the captive Boer General Cronje is being conveyed, lies almost midway in the South Atlantic Ocean, some 1200 miles west of Africa and nearly 2000 miles east of South America.

Its total area is but forty-seven square miles, and ragged and precipitous cliffs from 600 to 2000 feet high encircle the island, protecting the two principal inlets. These are James' Bay and Sandy Bay, the former affording an excellent harbor, on which Jamestown, Ruperts and Lemon Valley and both harbors are strongly fortified. It was here that Cronje's famous predecessor was brought on October 16th, 1815, to die six years later, on May 5th, 1821.

According to the last census taken, the island in 1871 had a population of 6241, including natives of mixed European and Asiatic origin, West African negroes and whites, the last comprising the government officials, the garrison, merchants and farmers.

St. Helena has already a place in history, being inseparably associated with the name and declining fame of Napoleon. For six years the great French commander was a captive on the lonely island, fretting his life away at the restraints imposed upon him, dictating the memoirs of his wonderful career, and finally dying alone, far from the scene of his glory.

Medical. TIME IS THE TEST. THE TESTIMONY OF BELLEFONTE PEOPLE STANDS THE TEST.

The test of time is what tells the tale. "A new broom sweeps clean" but will it sweep well is what interests most. The public soon find out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time. Bellefonte people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. They do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless he had had any of the severe pains in my back since I used Doan's Kidney Pills while employed in the planing mill, says: "I can speak as highly now of Doan's Kidney Pills, as I did years ago and my case is pretty good evidence that the cures made for them are not temporary.
