Gladstone's Widow Critically III.

From England comes the announcement that Catharine Gladstone, the wife of the late William E. Gladstone, is critically

There are women married to great men who have made a more brilliant impression on the social world, but as a good wife, a good mother, and a good home-maker, Mrs Gladstone has been a shining example to the women of England.

Nearly 51 years ago the handsome Miss Catharine Glynne became Mrs. William Ewart Gladstone, who was at that time in his thirtieth year. Miss Glynne was the eldest daughter of Sir Stephen R. Glynne, of Hawarden, Flintshire, and was three years younger than her husband. Her at-Pasig one month, then we were ordered to tention was first called to Gladstone, so transport Hancock. We were on the Hangoes the story, by a remark made by an transport Hancock. We were on the Han-English Minister who sat beside her at a dinner party at which Gladstone was also of Borsogon. "Mark that young man," said present. next year after that married him, her sisrector of Hawarden, while the other, the Right Hon. Herbert John Gladstone, is member of Parliament for Leeds, with the promise of a brilliant political career be-fore him. Two of the daughters are married, one of them being the wife of Rev. Harry Drew, Vicar of Buckley. The third surviving daughter, Helen, is still unmar-ried, and for a long time held the honorable position of p.incipal of Newnham College at Cambridge.

Mrs. Gladstone was in all respects an ideal wife and mother. She nursed all her children herself and looked after them time we are going to get killed. They are from infancy, as if she had not been the lady of the castle, who was able to command any amount of assistance that she might require. When out of office Mr. Gladstone taught his elder children Italian.

The girls were educated at home by gov-ernesses, English, French and German. The boys all went to Eton, and afterward to Oxford.

Since Mr. Gladstone's death, May 16, 1898, Mrs. Gladstone has been in failing health. The Hawarden estate, which Mrs. Gladstone inherited from her father, and which was the home of the family for many years, passed into the late Mr. Gladstone's hands as owner in 1874, but he conveyed it to his eldest son two years later, and it is now managed by the trus-tees of the latter's eldest son. It is a valuable property, covering four square miles, with a rental of $90,000 and valuable minerals underlying.
