

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

This summer muslins are especially dainty. They look quite ideally soft and pretty when made up; simplicity is especially the effect aimed at, but it is in its simplicity, as the work on these dresses is simply prodigious. Many are made with fichu or trimmings to simulate them, which are carried round the shoulders and finished with either quines long fichu or lace decked ends. Sometimes long fichus are of black tulle, and nothing is more chic than this note of black in the white or ivory harmony, while with it goes so becomingly the large hat of black gathered chiffon, which still remains among the first favorites of millinery effects.

The children one sees on the streets make one think sometimes that there should be a school to teach mothers how to dress their offspring. Especially should it give instructions in regard to attiring boys, for the small girl is usually a dainty enough object in her fluffy skirts to satisfy the soul of the most exigent.

It's not so with the lads, however, most of them being atrociously dressed, not to put too fine a point on it. The average mother seems to regard her long, lanky, thin-legged, freckled and tanned son, as a thing of beauty, that needs only adornment to call down upon his head the bravos of an admiring world. Therefore she puts on him a white duck blouse, very short trousers and white socks, that display to much advantage his scrawiness, and adorns his cropped hair with a broad brimmed hat with ribbons that would suit a chubby Cupid like child of four, but is absolutely unbecoming to the lad who has attained the magnificent age of 8 or 10.

The average small boy regards his Fauntleroyish costume with absolute loathing when he begins to think about clothes at all. He longs for a collar that stands up stiffly and proudly, and for a pair of stockings that do not leave so much to be desired.

They do these things better in England. There the lad of 10 has his stiff shirt and collar and hat, his long trousers and Eton jacket. He's done with ribbons by 8, and he's not expected unblushingly, to face the world with mosquito bitten legs, to his endless embarrassment, after he's acquired the dignity of having his hair cut short.

Even Lord Fauntleroy was allowed stockings in his picturesque dress, if the writer's memory serves her, but the average American boy, fine child that he is, is little less than a caricature very often in his full dress imitation of that charming hero.

In July and August we revel in the unlined yoke for house gowns. A yoke may be of lace or mull, but if it is lined it is often quite warm about the throat, although it may look as cool as possible. But in these dog days we may enjoy gowns with elbow sleeves and unlined yoke of lace, which permits the throat and forearm to be absolutely cool.

If you want a stylish linen suit for morning make it plain out with long-shoulder seams and strap them with an inch-wide pointed band of linen heavily stitched in white. Fasten with the buttons under a two inch pleat also stitched in white. Put two box pleats down centre of back. Cut long plain sleeves finished with an inch wide shaped ruffle with white stitching. Add a white belt and collar and your suit will be most stylish.

The painful blotches caused by ivy poisoning may be speedily relieved by wetting a piece of bread with water and dusting with washing soda, placing it over the scald.

The little left-side sash is a bewitching addition to the toilet when well managed and made up in appropriate materials. It is worn with a difference. The sash worn at the back is now quite long, the loops are of medium length, and the ends generously extend to the foot of the skirt. Sashes are also worn at the side; but when one is placed at the front of a dress it must be short.

Here are some dainty little drinks with which any woman may regale her household at a trifling expense.

A delightful drink of which women are fond is a Hollywood cooler. It is a simple beverage, non-intoxicating, and any one can prepare it at home, but it would not taste half so good as it does down there. Seated at a dainty table out on the velvety lawn fanned by a gentle ocean breeze, a Hollywood cooler is a nectar for the gods—no, not for the gods, they laugh at it and call it conversation water; but for the fair goddesses who refresh themselves daily with this delicious beverage. This is the way to make it:

Fill a long glass half full of chilled ice; squeeze into the glass the juice of a large orange; add a teaspoonful of powdered sugar and a pony of maraschino, cover with a shaker and shake well. Pour back and forth from shaker to glass two or three times, then fill up the glass with seltzer, decorate with half a slice of orange, the same of pineapple, two strawberries and two cherries. Stick two straws in the glass and serve.

Carefully boil a pound of granulated sugar in a pint of water until it forms rather thick syrup, removing all scum as it rises. Squeeze the juice from three large lemons and peel a good sized pineapple. Cut out all the pineapple eyes and grate it into the bowl with the lemon juice. As soon as the syrup is clear pour it into the bowl and briskly stir the whole together for two or three minutes. Then stand it to cool for a couple of hours. Add a quart of iced water, strain the beverage through a bar strainer into a small punch bowl or into a glass pitcher. Put in a lump of ice and serve in little cups. This is a delicious and refreshing drink.

Pour over a pint of red raspberries and strip a quart of fine ripe currants from the stems. Bruise the fruit in a preserving kettle with a potato masher, pour over it two quarts of cold water. Set the kettle over a moderate fire where it will heat gradually. After it begins to boil remove the kettle from the fire, pour the entire into a jelly bag and let it drain through the bag into a large bowl. When it is clear and cool ice it and sweeten it more if it requires it and serve in little glasses.

Newport introduced the fad for the brown veil, which is still in favor at the summer city. Fashion has changed it from its once dowdy estate to the realms of smart dressing, and it waves from the heads of the Newport woman as she speeds along in her automobile or gallops through the country. The story goes that the brown veil originated in the device of a young woman to cheat the camera fiends that lie in wait along Ocean avenue during the driving hour, snapping whom they may devour. In town the girls this summer are wearing veils of bright green and of Yale blue, not over the face, but wound about the hat like a scarf, the ends floating. They make picturesque bits of color on the dusty summer streets.

PHILIPPINES CASUALTIES.

Two Hundred Rebels Killed and 130 Surrendered Last Week.

Manila, July 23.—It is officially announced that last week 200 insurgents were killed and 130 surrendered or were captured. One hundred rifles were taken. Twelve Americans were killed and 11 wounded. This includes the casualties of Col. William E. Birkhimer's engagement with a force of the Twenty-eighth volunteer infantry, who attacked 200 insurgent rifles entrenched five miles east of Taal, killing 38.

A detachment of the signal corps, while repairing wires, was twice ambushed.

Capt. Charles D. Roberts, of the Thirty-fifth volunteer infantry, who was captured by the Filipinos last May, has arrived here on parole. He will not return to captivity.

Senor Buencamino last Thursday sent to Aguinaldo, by means of Aguinaldo's mother, the amnesty resolutions adopted by the meeting of representative Filipinos here on June 21, together with Gen. MacArthur's answer to them and other documents bearing upon the restoration of peace. It is understood that Aguinaldo will summon his advisers, and that a reply may be expected within a month. Filipinos here will give a banquet next Saturday in celebration of President McKinley's order of amnesty.

Colombian Rebels Capture Colon.

Kingston, Jam., July 23.—Capt. Moler, of the German steamer Flantria, which arrived here yesterday from Colombia, reports that the government troops entered Colon on Panama on July 15, the latter city having fallen into the hands of the rebels. He also asserts that Colon also is now in possession of the rebels, having been easily taken on July 15 without a fight. Sabanilla, in the department of Bolivar, is surrounded by the insurgents. The rebels have offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture, dead or alive, of Capt. Christensen, of the Colombian warship Cordova.

Murderer Died Unrepentant.

Sing Sing, N. Y., July 23.—Joseph Mullen, who killed Johanna O'Brien, in New York, went to the electric chair in Sing Sing prison this morning. He expressed no anxiety or concern about it, and maintained an air of the most supreme indifference. He had not been willing to receive any religious consolation, although several religious people had spoken to him often.

St. Louis Strike Disorders Continue.

St. Louis, July 23.—A car of the Southwestern division was blown up on South Seventh street Saturday night. Another car, of the Broadway line, was blown up in South Broadway, and the front trucks were demolished. Mrs. Annie Kollmeier was struck by a bullet in a bombardment of a Chouteau avenue car, sustaining a slight flesh wound.
