THE ROBIN'S CONCERT.

When the first day of spring came in Washington, a tree in one of the little parks, of which there are many in the city, whitered with bloom nearly two weeks before there appeared any buds or verdure on the other trees or shrubbery. There were no leaves on the tree which bloomed. The blossoms swelled and burst their petals on the branches until they looked like a summer cloud.

Fronting on this park is a home in which a sick child has lain for weeks and weeks.

She was nursed by one of the old black mammies so numerous in the national cap
Townsend, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo. 45-30 As the sunshine became warmer, so that the window in the room of the sick child could be raised at certain hours, the child asked the old mammy to push her white bed near the window, and it was by this open window the old mammy sat and held the child's hands as she told her this

"Honey, dat tree dat look so like de cot-ton in my ole home is what dey call de Japanee magnolia. It doan' go no lebes on it honey, like de magnolia in Dixie. An I tell you, honey, why it ain't got no lebes. Arter awhile, honey, dar will come a robin redbreast to sing dar in de middle of de white bloom. An de good man want line June 19th, 20th, July 3rd, 9th, 17th, Aug you, my honey, to see dat robin redbreast, an so he doan' put no lebes an de tree. Kase if dar wuz lebes on dat tree my honey cudden see de robin redbreast. Dat's why.

you, honey, jes' fo you."

A few days later, while the sun was shining warm and flooding the room, the old mammy moved the white bed to the window and raised the sash. And a robin, with a breast as rich as cardinal, lighted on a branch of the Japanese magnolia and sang until its notes filled the tree of bloom and all the little park. It was in the morning. After a little while the robin took its flight, and the window sash in the sick room was lowered.

"Honey, what did I done tell you?" said the old mammy as she tucked the coverlets about the sick child.

"Dat wuz fo' you, honey. De good man he knowed you wuz sick an' he seud de robin redbreast to sing fo' you. An now de robin red breast he gwine away. Whar he gwine, honey? I doan' know fo' sho.' but I teil you, honey, what I spec.' He got a nest somewha wha he got a li'l robin redbreast, and he gwine home to tell his li'l robin redbreast 'bout his singin' fo gun was fired at Fort Myer, in the Virginia hills, the robin came back and took his place in the bloom of the magnolia tree and sang. The sick child was again wheeled in her white bed near the window and the black mammy was by her side.

In the afternoon, just before the sunset

"I knowed he'd done come back," she said to the sick child. "He done come back to tell you, honey, dat he been lone-some way from you, an he gwine to tell you in a song, honey, 'bout his li'l robin redbreast in his home. He come to sing fo' you, honey, fust. Kase you sick, honey and he got to sing to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust, den he come to sing the single to you fust. He come to sing the single to you fust to single to you fust. The single to ey, and he got to sing to you fust; den he fly away to his own home."

And so it went on for several days. The robin came morning and evening and al-ways sat in the midst of the bloom of the magnolia tree, always about the same hour and sang. The man who cares for the Washington, D.C., Richmond, Va., and Columbi park noticed it and spoke about it to the S. C., Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville and Tampa people who stopped near the fountain un-der the magnolia and listened to the song of the first robin of the spring. It got to be the talk of the people who lived around the park. Even some of the grown people wondered why the robin always came about the same hour and why it was al-ways alone. A few of the older people said it was singing for its mate. But they did not know what the old mammy knew. One afternoon, however-But the old mammy tells the story best:

"Dars gwine to be a concert, honey,"
she said as she looked out of the window. "Sho's you bo'n, de robin red-breast got company. When ennyhody sing, honey, dey likes comp'ny. Hn' bress my hawt, what you t'ink?" De comp'ny what come to the robin red-breasts concert, honey, am a brack crow. Dar he sot, on annd-der limb of dat magnoli, by his lonesome, lis'enen to de robin redbreast. De crow can't sing a li'l bit. All he kin do, honey, is jes' to say 'Caw, caw' jes' as some culled folks say, 'Huh huh,' kase dey doan' know no mo'.

"Now de robin redbreast singin, on de limb in the magnolia bloom, an' de crow lookin' 'crost de tree tops at him. Now de robin redbreast quit singing' an' looks at Mistah Jim Crow; an' I 'spec' he sayin' to Mistah Crow: 'Now you heerd me. Wha' fo' doan' you say nuffin? Dar he am, honey. Heah him—de crow? He sayin' 'Caw caw.' Dat means dat he want mo' robin singin'. An' de robin redbreast he singin' singin'. An' de robin redbreast he singin' ag'in, honey. My, but dat is his best song! He jes' done frow hisse'f to make dat, an' Mistah Jim Crow he settin' on de limb lis'enin' to git his money wuth. Honey, dat concert is fo' you. I done been raised 'mong crows all my life, honey, but I declar' befo' de good man I nebber see Mistah Jim Crow come to robin redbreat concert hefo'. Robin red breast monthly concert befo'. Robin red breast moughty proud to gib dis heah concert in de magnoli bloom for my li'l sick, honey. Now de robin redbreast got to go home to tell his li'l robin 'bout de concert. Dar he go, on his li'l wings. An' dar go Mistah Jim Crow ober to Virginny. I wondah what he tell dem udder crows?

"An I 'spec' dar'll be concerts now till my honey git well." Neither the robin nor the crow ever came back after that evening. The old man who tends the park noticed it and spoke of it. The window of the sick room was raised the next day, as usual. But no one looked out of it. The school children near by did not play in the street that day. And the second day some of the white bloom of the magnolia tree in which the robin had sung for the crow was taken into the house.—Frank H. Brooks in Chicago

STORY OF A SLAVE.—To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Gentlemen: Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all, but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

Yours for health, C. F. Myers.

Here is Bellefonte evidence to prove it:

I was very lame across my kidneys and bending over or being on my feet much was extremely painful. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills and seeing them so highly recommended for these troubles I procured them from F. Potts Green's drug store. A Well Known Vocalist Gratefully adds Her Name in Recommending Dr. Stites.

It gives me great pleasure to add my name to the large list of Dr. Stites' grateful patients, thinking by so doing I shall be helping some discouraged sufferer. I was very much troubled with chroric sore throat and hoarseness, which became so bad that I was compelled to quit singing. Had an annoying cough, and suffered considerable pain. These symptons have almost entirely disappeared, and I am again able to use my voice. I gladly recommend Dr. Stites to all suffering as I was.
