If Col. REEDER had wanted to tell the exact truth and had nothing to conceal from the Republicans of the county, he would have said, that "ex-Governor HASTINGS and Mr. JOHN P. HARRIS on Friday, August 24th, drove over to Spring Mills and secured the promise of Mr. AL-LISON to be a candidate: on the following Tuesday ex-Governor HASTINGS went out to Philipsburg to see Thompson and ascertained if he would pledge himself to such action in the Legislature as heex-Governor HASTINGS and myself would indicate. That such a pledge was given and that then, feeling that we had the candidates who would do our bidding, we consulted members of the committee," he would have been telling not all that transpired but enough to give his party a much better idea of the exact condition of affairs

He could have added that in order to enbad heretofore pretended to be a QUAY advocate, was sincere in his pledge made to Manual Manu HASTINGS in Philipsburg, that he withheld her all notice of the purpose to make a "treaty of peace," until he could meet him and see ure additional assurances. Responsibility Fixed.

General Superintendent Has Completed His Investigation—It is Individual Responsibility, so

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.-Gen. Superintendent I. A. Sweigard, of the Philadelphia and Reading railway, today announced that he had completed an investigation of the wreck at Hatfield last Sunday and hadfixed the responsibility for the accident.
He also stated that Train Dispatcher W.
S. Groves had been suspended. This action, however, Mr. Sweigard said, was customary and had no significance.
Superintendent Sweigard deliced to

Superintendent Sweigard declined to make public the result of his investigation, for the reason, as he said, that it might interfere with the work of the coroner of Montgomery county. The latter, he stated, had been notified of the company's success in placing the responsibility where it belonged, and all the infor-mation secured by the officials of the road would be given to the coroner should he

"If the coroner fails to discover who is responsible for the accident," said Mr. Sweigard, "I will inform him and see that the responsibility is properly placed."

"Is there any necessity for the coroner to go outside of the list of employes of the Reading railway to ascertain where the responsibility lies? he was asked."

"It is an indiqidual responsibility." answered the general superintendent. Coroner McGlathers and District At-torney A. H. Hendricks, after holding a lengthy conference Tuesday at Norristown, decided not to cause any arrests until af ter the inquest, which will be held Thursday at Lansdale. The coroner is of the opinion that it will take two or three days to complete the investigation. District attorney Hendricks and assistant C. S. Sheive will be present at the inquest. The coroner says he will have several witnesses to testily that they were on the station platform and plainly saw the spe cial approaching fully 200 yards up the track not withstanding the fog.

THE METHODIST CHURCH TO BE IM-PROVED .- Next Sunday the last services for some time will be held in the Bellefonte Methodist church and the members of that congregation are looking about now for a place to worship during the time that the church will be undergoing repairs. The improvements to the interior have been talked about so long that the fact that work is so soon to be begun seems almost incredible. The contract was let, Tuesday night to Henry Lowery, his bid having been $3,730, against $3,940 by Wm. Steel and $3,740 by Henry Bartley. Mr. Lowery will begin tearing out the old inerior on Monday.

Among the more important changes to be made will be the following. The front entrance doors will be replaced by new ones of hard wood with a half panel of beveled glass and a heavy leaded transom. The stairs will start just as they do at present but after reaching the first landing they will enter a vestibule and from it lead directly into the auditorium at points about where the present side doors are located. This will do away with the large landing now in use at the head of the stairs and all that portion will be included in the church by tearing out the gallery, thus bringing the large front window into main body of the church. The seating will be arranged so as to have four aisles instead of three, two leading from the principal entrances, the others at the sides. The floor will be level about half way back, then elevation will be made gradually to a 22 inch height at the back. The pulpit is to be made a few inches higher and the entire east end of the church is to be torn out and rebuilt on the line, making the pulpit alcove and the others to the right and left of it 7 feet deeper. In the corner now occupied by the choir box the new pipe organ will be placed. In the opposite alcove a stair way will lead to the lecture room below, thus giving a much needed exit or entrance to the pulpit.

It had been the intention to change the ceiling somewhat, but it has been about decided to abandon that idea as only the most radical and expensive change would make any material improvement

The new pews will be quartered oak, arranged slightly circular, and probably finished in Old English or Flemish style. Shades of green or red seem to be most favored for the cushions, carpets, new windows and interior decorations. Whatever colors are selected it will be done with the idea of carrying out an harmonious and artistic scheme, so that when the church is reopened it will be one of the most impressive to be found anywhere.
