Description of Galveston.

-Baltimore America

Information as to Its Peculiar Location and Form

"Galveston is situated on an island extending east and west for twenty-seven miles, and is seven miles in its greatest width, north and south. No city could be in greater danger with such a horrible visitation as has now come to Galveston. In no part of the city, with its 68,000 population, is it more than six feet above the sea level. The flat condition only points to the desperate situation of the people at such a time as this, but their danger may be considered emphasized when it is known that exactly where the city is built the island is only one and a quarter miles wide.

On the bay, or north side of the city, is the commercial section, with wharve stretching along for nearly two miles, lined with sheds and large storage houses. Then in that portion of Galveston there are three elevators; one of 1,500,000 bushels capacity, one of 1,000,000, and the third of 750,000. The island from the north side is connected with the mainland by railroad bridges and the longest wagon bridge in the world, the latter nearly two miles in length.

'In 1872 the entire east end of the city was swept away by the tidal wave that fol- price would break the bargain. lowed a terrific storm that swept the gulf coast for three full days. Then the east-ern land, on which buildings stood, was harbor, has since been built, and on its parapets are mounted some of the heaviest coast ordinance used by the government. By the force of the storm of 1872 six entire blocks of the city were swept away.

"It is on the south side of the island, beginning within fifty yards of the medium gulf tide that the wealthy residence portion of the city is located, and this was the first part of the city to be stricken by the full force of the storm's flood. All of the eastern end of the city must certainly the eastern end of the city must certainly the content of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the full force of the city to be stricken by the city to be str be washed away, and in this quarter, between Broadway and I street, some of the handsomest and most expensive residence establishments are located. There was located one home which alone cost the owner over $1,000,000. Most of the residences are of frame, but there are many of stone and brick. In the extreme eastern end of the city there are many of what we call 'raised cottages.' They are built on piling, and stand from eight to ten feet from the ground as a precaution from floods, it being possible for the water to sweep under

"The only protection that has ever been provided for the gulf side of the city has been two stone breakwaters, but many times, with ordinary storms coming in from the gulf, the high tide water has been hurled over the low stone walls right to the very doors of the residences. Virginia Point, six miles from Galveston, in ordinary conditions of the atmosphere, the city can be plainly seen. If it is true that Galveston cannot now be seen from the Point, then the condition of the people in the city must be indescribably horrible." When asked as to the wealth of some of the principal business quarters of Galvesten. Mr. Clarkson said : "Many millions of dollars are invested in wholesale and retail business of the city. On Strand street alone there are ten blocks of business establishments that represent an invested capital of $127,000,000. Market street is the heavy retail street, and there, in the heart of the flooded district, the losses can not but reach away into the millions. The fact, as indicated by the dispatches, that water is standing six feet deep in Tremont hotel furnishes startling evidence to me that Galveston has indeed been dreadfully visited. The hotel is in almost exactly the center of the city. Two years ago Galvestion did the heaviest shipping business in cotten and grain of any southern city. When I was home two ship loads of cattle were then leaving port on an average every week."

Was James Howard Goebel's Assassin?—Startling

The first sensational testimony in the trial of James Howard, charged with having fired the shot that killed Wm. Goebel, was given on Monday by Bowman Gaines, a local liveryman, and James Stubble-field, former deputy sheriff of Clay county. Gaines identified Howard as the man ty. Gaines identified Howard as the man who ran out from the rear of the state house grounds and jumped over the fence immediately after the shooting. He was positive in his identification of the prisoner as the man, and said the latter then wore a mustache and was followed by a man who was tall and slender. A boy who was nearby at the time will also be introduced as a twitness corroborating Gaines.

The most important witness from the prosecution's standing was James Stubble-field, a one-legged and one-armed exdeputy sheriff of Clay county. He testi-fied that Howard exultingly told him that he fired the shot that took Goebel's life. Stubblefield lost his limbs as a result of the Clay county feuds last year. His testimony in detail was that Howard stopped at his house in February last. Shortly after he entered Stubblefield says he remarked to him:

"Jim, you all have been having trouble down at Frankfort."

"Yes," responded Howard, according to the witness, "we have raised and cleaned the platter," and added, "I never sight down my gun barrel but what I get meat or money and this time I got both."

500 men could not take him to Frankfort for trial. Stubblefield said he did not tell the story of Howard's confession to him until he heard that Howard and his friends were planning to kill him.

The defense subjected the witness to a severe cross-examination, but failed to confuse him to any extent.

J. L. Jones, of Knox county, was intro-duced by the prosecution, and told of al-leged remarks by Howard indicating connection with the murder, but his testimony was entirely broken down by the defence, who not only showed him to have served two terms in the penitentiary, but that he had been promised compensation for his labor in looking up testimony.

He said Colonel T. C. Campbell had promised him a reasonable sum of money for his services, but that Campbell said he only wanted the truth, and did not want anything but the truth, brought out. Jones is the uncle of Howard's wife.

During all the testimony Howard did not display any change of feeling. During the damaging testimony of Stubblefield, which, from the manner it was given, must have made a strong impression on the jury, Howard smiled and prompted his attorneys.

Vanderbilt's Revenge.

le Sacrificed $60,000 to Get Even With Horsema

"Ever hear the story why the late W. H. Vanderbilt paid odd change for Maud S—that is, why the sum was $21,000 instead of, say $20,000 or $25,000?" inquired a well known horseman. "There is an interesting story back of that which has never been printed, and as I had it from Mr. Would offer more than the mercantile value of the gem for the sake of being its posall right.

"The sum which Mr. Vanderbilt was to pay Captain George E. Stone of Cincinnati, for Maud S, was an even $20,000. Before the mare was delivered Captain Stone is supposed to have rued his bargain. Any-how, he wrote to Mr. Vanderbilt that he had promised to give Bair, the trainer of Maud S, $1,000 as an honorarium, and he what he was to pay. The presumption is that Stone thought this marking up of the

The work of replacing it has since been going on, and Fort Point, which guards the entrance to the and knew a good piece of horse flesh when he saw it, and when he sent Captain Stone his check for the mare it was for $21,000

"That's part of the story but only the least interesting. Afterward, when Captain Stone headed a syndicate to buy Maud S back from Mr. Vanderbilt and was willing to pay $100,000 for her, but the big railroad man remembered the $1,000 trans-

"Of course when Mr. Vanderbilt sold her to Robert Bonner for $40,000, when he had been offered $100,000, there was a good deal said about his desire to get the phenomenal trotter in the hands of a man who would take good care of her. The fact is that Mr. Vanderbilt was willing to sacrifice $60,000 to even up matters with Mr. Stone. And if this was expensive revenge for Mr. Vanderbilt it was even more expensive for Stone, for if he could have repurchased Maud S at that time he could have cleaned up $250,000 with her."

Says We Will be Indians.

Prof. Starr Declares Americans are to be Like

The American people will revert to the aboriginal type if a prediction comes true as made by Prof. Frederick Starr, of the department of anthropology in the University of Chicago. His theory is that racial differences are due to physical and climate conditions of the different continents, and that the same conditions which made Indians of the earliest inhabitants of made Indiaus of the earliest inhabitants of America will produce a like result among the present inhabitants. Professor Starr bases the theory upon a careful investigation. He has minutely examined and measured features of more than 5,000 children of Pennsylvania Dutch parentage and has found in most cases a lengthening of the face and broadening of the cheek bones, in accordance with the characteristic features of Indian races.

Cutting a Big Diamond Here.

This South African Stone Will be About 110 Carats When It's Finished.

Probably the largest diamond ever imported into this country is being cut at present in the factory of the diamond importing house of Stern Brothers & Co., 65 Nassau street. The stone in the rough condition in which it was brought to this country last June weighed just 221 carats, which is considerably in excess of the weight of several of the world's famous gems. It was purchased from the DeBeers syndicate in London by Mr. Stern and had been taken out of the Kimberley mines during the siege. In addition to its weight the stone was remarkable in the eyes of diamond dealers because even in the rough it was absolutely flawless-a condition in which a diamond is seldom found. It was entirely white in color. It will lose weight heavily in the cutting and will weigh about 110 carats. The value of the stone when finished for another month. A grinding wheel making 2,400 revolutions a minute is used to cut the diamond and is directed by an expert workman who will work nine hours a day on the stone until it is finished.

Diamond dealers all over the country are greatly interested in the big gem and its future. Mr. Goldsmith of Stern Broth-ers & Co., who is directing the work of cutting, said yesterday that the firm had not yet decided just what will be done with the stone when it is finished. It is doubtful if it is offered for sale in the open of people in the world any one of whom
