

The high winds down this valley on Friday last were the first cold blasts of winter. A few snow flakes were in the air, the first of the season.

The election is now over, and as Paley observes, having met the enemy. We are theirs. The American people seem satisfied with the disregard of their constitution, perfectly willing to submit to imperialism, possibly a conscription to fill the depleted ranks of the army to continue a fruitless war on the opposite side of the globe, anxious for trusts and endless taxes. Well, no doubt the powers that be will give them plenty of it.

J. C. Condo, of the Penn Hall carriage works, has just erected a large and very conspicuous business sign which can be seen at a considerable distance, both up and down the pike. A day or two since, I stepped into the warehouse to take a general view of its contents, and among the bargues and sleighs I saw about as pretty a piece of work in the way of a delivery wagon as I ever beheld. It was manufactured especially for Archibald Allison, plumber and steam fitter of Bellefonte, and is certainly about as complete and handsome a wagon as was ever run in the streets of Bellefonte or elsewhere.

Several wrecks are still visible in our avenues—the result of Hallow E'en folly. Every effort should be exerted to discover and arrest the scoundrels who let the water out of the boiler at the cider press, and closed the glass gauge so that it indicated plenty of water. The engineer, as usual, built a fire and before he discovered the villainy, ruined half, if not all the flues in the boiler, causing an expense to the proprietors of possibly $30 or $40. Had the gauge indicated low instead of high water, as no doubt the dastards intended, of course the engineer would have turned a full head of water into the hot and empty boiler, and have blown himself and the building to pieces. Scoundrelism of this character should be punished and not allowed to go by default.

Pine Grove Mention.

Robt. Strayer is slowly recovering from a long attack of fever.

John Bowersox, of Milroy, and his amiable wife have been visiting Centre county friends this week.

Insurance agent W. H. Musser, of Bellefonte, spent Sunday here in the interest of his patrons.

W. H. Smith, the hustling furniture dealer at Spring Mills, is at the bedside of his brother Lowell, who is not improving.

Cap't. W. A. Tanager's hunting game came in the other day with fourteen cotton tails and several pheasants in his bags.

Miss Gertrude Meyers with two of her friends drove up from Boalsburg Sunday to enjoy the day with friends at Fairbrook.

Plasterers are at work on the new house of Stephenson and McLane. Snook and Otto have the job from W. B. Ward, who is the contractor.

A. M. Brown shipped a car load of fine horses and a car load of cows to the Eastern market yesterday. He is a hustler in on the first floor.

Our furniture man J. E. Heberling is handling the lines over a new span of bay steppers, which get up and dust when they want to.

Mrs. Elsie Lytle, of Centre Hill, while visiting at the home of her brother-in-law, G. E. Corl, at Pine Hall, took sick and has been confined to bed for some days.

Our old friend J. D. Tanager is again a citizen of the borough. His brother-in-law, Daniel Garner, will succeed him as a tiller of the soil on the William Garner farm.

John Reed's flitting passed through town last week en route to Rock Springs. There he will occupy the Wm. Gates property. Mr. Reed will be employed by Mr. Brown this winter lumbering.

Our town authorities are arranging to lay new pipes to their mountain spring, so that our people will have an abundant supply of pure, good water. Many of the pipes are on the ground already.

Mrs. Martha Slagle, of Altoona, who has been visiting her parental home at Rock Springs, has been laid up for several days with laryngitis which has marred the pleasure of her visit somewhat.

John Sausserman and Morris Smith captured over the side of the road Tuesday night while they were out in quest of election news. The buggy was badly wrecked and Sausserman's left arm sprained, and then they didn't get the news they wanted after all.

Charley Snyder, junior, came home to cast his first vote against trusts and monopolies and will remain at home to assist his father in taking care of their broad and fertile acres. Next season they will occupy the old Snyder homestead farm and the venerable Charles Snyder will retire to enjoy in ease the rewards of his long and industrious career.

Miss Julia Irvin and William Gates both of Rock Springs were united in marriage on the evening of the 5th at the Presbyterian parsonage by the Rev. H. C. Love. After congratulations the newly married couple accompanied by T. M. Gates and wife drove to the bride's home and there they escaped the boys. They, however, got in their good work election night when they made the whole country resound with their serenade. The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Susan Irvin and is an excellent young lady. The groom is the youngest son of William Gates and is thoroughly capable of furnishing a living for his family.

Our free rural delivery seems to be an assured fact. Route agent J. B. Taylor, of Washington, D. C., was here on Tuesday last to inspect the proposed route and intends reporting it favorably to the Department at Washington. The distributing office of the district will be at Pennsylvania Furnace. From there the route will be by the Glade road to J. B. Mitchell's, thence across to the White Hall road and back to Pennsylvania Furnace by Tadpole. The route has been approved and all that remains now is for some good reliable person to apply for the job, the salary of which has been fixed at $500 per year with the possibility of an increase after July 4th, 1901. W. E. McWilliams seems to be the man for the place.

Phillipsburg.

The election passed off very quietly and orderly.

Crist North, proprietor of the Lloyd house, is ill at this writing.

Miss Lillian Hoover, teacher in the Hawk Run schools, spent Sunday in town.

W. M. Cramer, assistant train master of the N. Y. C., circulated among friends last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. VanDaniker have returned from an extensive visit with friends in Pittsburgh.

Miss Annie Beck, formerly a teacher in the public schools in this place, is visiting friends in town.

The scarcity of cars for the past month has created a feeling akin to apathy among our labor circles.

Barney Press, the bustling clerk at Ratowsky's store, made a flying trip to Pittsburgh last week.

Miss Jennie Morrison attended the Blackburn-Holiday nuptials in Bellefonte last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. R. B. Shiry, of Spruce street, attended the funeral of her brother-in-law John A. Woolridge, of Woodland last Friday.

M. E. Klare, station agent at Munson, has taken possession of his residence, on the corner of Spruce and Seventh streets.

The new Methodist church will be rededicated on Dec. 9th. Bishop Fowler will preach in the morning, and on the following Monday will deliver a lecture on Abraham Lincoln in the church.

The Coalvale store, located on Presqueville street, under the new management of W. F. Wittenberg & Co., will be removed to Hawk Run. Mr. Miller, the present manager, will, it is said, continue in that capacity.

The first union meeting of the series of meetings to be held this week, was held in the lecture room of the Methodist church Monday evening and was largely attended. Rev. H. F. Means, of the Presbyterian church, delivered a sermon from the text "Treasures of the Impenitent," which was of manifold interest. These meetings are held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The churches, in their united efforts, are striving to win the young men from the pathway of iniquity. If a reformation is to take place the church people must lay a hold of the work. Rev. Means, in his remarks, referred to the "personal accountability," of all praying people in this work.
