

Pine Grove Mention.

J. C. Neidigh is laid up with a badly cut foot. A young daughter now graces the home of James Kustaborder. Mrs. Frank Swab is in Altoona visiting her sister who is suffering with cancer.

Bruce Rossman and wife, of Penn Hall, are visiting at the home of Amos Koch. Walter O'Bryan and wife are now permanently located in their Church street home.

Hon. Leonard Rhone and Mrs. Rhone spent Christmas at the home of postmaster J. G. Hess. The tall and portly form of Curt Musser, of Altoona, was seen on our streets during the holiday season.

William Blazer, the four-year-old son of Adam and Jane Blazer, died at their Boalsburg home on the morning of the 21st ult., of membranous croup. The Lutheran church at Pine Hall has recently been greatly improved. The gas generator alone, which was put in the basement to furnish the light for the church, cost $220.

A family reunion was held Christmas at the home of Lemuel Osman in honor of his daughter, Mrs. Asher Sanku and her family who are going to western Kansas shortly to make their home. Mrs. John A. Weaver and her family have gone to Altoona to make their home. They moved on Tuesday and we commend them to the good people of Altoona and wish them success and prosperity.

On account of the groom failing to put in his appearance the wedding we had arranged to take place at Home-restaurant on the 24th turned out to be a fizzle. The marriage supper was prepared and the bride ready but the last seen of the groom he was on a west bound departing train. Miss Ina Fortney and Miss Jane Curns, compositors on the Tyrone Herald force, spent part of the holidays at J. G. Fortney's. A delightful reception was given them on the evening of the 27th at which the young people made way with lots of good things besides two big gobblers which graced the festive board.

Milton Corner, of Rock Forge, and Miss Clara Kustaborder, daughter of Daniel Kustaborder, of Warriorsmark, were married Christmas morning at the Lutheran parsonage by the Rev. C. T. Aikens. After the ceremony they drove to the groom's home near Rock Forge where he is engaged in farming and where a wedding dinner was prepared for them. Anderson Wilson, a member of the 84th Regt., Penna. Vol., who served through the Civil war, died at his home near McAlveys Fort on the 21st ult. He was 61 years of age and leaves to mourn his death a wife, two sons and one daughter. He is also survived by three brothers, John E., Sanford and Sheddick. He was a member of the Lutheran church and interment was made in the Steffy burying ground.

Among the visitors in town during the holidays were Harry Holtz and Paul Fortney, of Bellefonte; Roy O. Miller, of Stoystown; Clem Fortney and wife, of Tusseyville; F. E. Sausserman, of Altoona; Samuel P. McWilliams, of Unionville; George Gardner, J. C. Ward and C. M. Fry, of Pittsburgh; Walter Woods, of Lafayette College; George Singler and wife, of Lock Haven, and William Sausserman and wife, of Altoona. The public Grange meetings that were held in this end of the county in December were fairly well attended. Here, the meeting was held in the Lutheran church. Rev. C. T. Aikens presided and made the address of welcome. Among the notables present was lecturer of State Grange Alliance and Mortimer Whitehead. Mr. Whitehead made a splendid address and kept his audience interested for one hour and a half reviewing the past achievements of the Grange and outlining its future line of action.

Another holiday season has come and gone with only the memories remaining. They are for the most part very pleasant for the end of the old century brought comfort and joy to most of our homes. The Lutheran church had special service on Christmas eve. The decorations were elaborate but commemorative of the birth of the Christ child. In the back ground gleamed a star of Bethlehem. There was also an old time fire place and the program was an exceptionally good one with a generous treat for all the scholars. The other Sabbath schools of the town were content with a goodly supply of candies, nuts and oranges.

High Valley.

Some of the Coburn gentlemen have already named the next Justice. I suppose Amos Colby and John Martin will likely be candidates. Dr. Snyder says he will have to have a chain to fasten around his satchel as a strap will hold it no longer. Mine host Simon Kling, of the Coburn hotel, wants to know what has become of the High Valley correspondent and Jacob Karstetter and Andrew Harter also are concerned. We are all right, gentlemen, only we were knocked out for awhile until a bottle of Dr. Snyder's green brier compound fixed us up.

Commercial agents passing down the valley homeward bound, report traffic on the road, previous to holidays, as having been very lively, but since then distressingly quiet and dull. Edwin Ruhl has removed the old sign board and replaced it with a new one very nicely lettered informing the traveling public that he is now proprietor of the Spring Mills hotel. Our merchants report a good trade during December, and for the year a satisfactory volume of business. But as yet the net profits have not been calculated and they are not prepared to say whether the year's work has made them millionaires, or proved only labor lost.

The Evangelical Association located here will have very interesting services on Sunday evening next. The occasion being the dedication of the organ and bell. Rev. Newheart, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Dursler, of Brush valley, will have charge of the ceremony. Protracted meetings will also be inaugurated.

Had the editors of the WATCHMAN heard the flattering comments made by about every body in this neighborhood, when speaking of the holiday edition of that journal, it would have made them blush. In fact, your humble servant almost blushed for you. That it was a superb edition is not denied, and the universal verdict here is that it is the handsomest issue of a newspaper ever circulated in this valley, if not in the State.

The entertainment in the M. E. church of our village on Christmas eve proved a very interesting occasion. The interior of the church was handsomely decorated with wreaths, garlands and festoons. The platform was likewise handsomely set with plants and flowers. The program was quite lengthy and diversified. The singing and music especially fine, Miss Ida Condo, organist, executed some choice selections in a charming and skillful manner, applause could hardly be suppressed. The recitations and dialogues by the children were exceedingly well rendered and the extreme "little people" did remarkably well. The distribution of gifts—candies and oranges—completed the program. The committee of arrangements deserve the highest praise for the successful manner in which they conducted this beautiful entertainment. The church was thronged to its utmost capacity.

The holidays here were of an unusually lively character. All the stores were artistically decked in Yuletide attire, business quite active and everybody seemed gay and happy. Of course on Christmas day, turkey dinners, mince pies, candies, oranges and the exchange of presents was the general program in about every household. Late in the afternoon a violent snow squall whitened the fields and roads, so the old and dubious adage of a green Christmas was avoided, and the fat grave yard postponed.

The old year with all its pleasures, cares and trouble was thrown off unceremoniously and the new year and century ushered in amid the din of trumpet tones and pealing bells. On the evening previous gay and lively watch parties were held by numerous families and when the clock ceased striking midnight, Happy New Year was sounded far and wide. During the day boys dressed in all sorts of absurd costumes paraded our avenues to the amusement of the children, and to all "lookers on here in Vienna." We had quite a number of dinner parties and several large receptions, so the day and evening passed off in our village with much-remembered zest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Condo, of Penn Hall, entertained quite a large and select party at their residence on Tuesday morning last. The occasion being the marriage of their daughter Miss Carrie to Harry Meyer, also of Penn Hall, Rev. Brown, of the Salem Reformed church, performing the ceremony. After a sumptuous dinner, the bridal party were escorted to the station by a large band of fantasists, attired in the most ridiculous costumes imaginable. Though they behaved in some respects, they made the entire drive—fully a quarter of a mile—hideous with their noise. The vilest kind of instruments such as old tin pans, old tin horns and villainous fiddles were brought into requisition to swell the din and racket. The bridal party endeavored to elude their ways were so noisy and consequently the party were forced to submit to the inevitable. At the station the motley group opened ranks and the bridal party entered the cars amid a perfect tornado of rice and well wishes from a very large number of their friends who had collected at the station to see them safely off on their honeymoon. Of course congratulations were showered upon them as plentifully as blackberries in summer-time.

McCORMICK-CORLE.—The marriage of Miss Cora Agnes McCormick, eldest daughter of Hon. John T. McCormick, and Peter Milford Corl, on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at the McCormick home near State College, was a social event long to be remembered. The roomy mansion was filled with guests and the parlors and dining room were artistically beautified with palms, evergreens and cut flowers. The bay window of the east room had been made a perfect bower and there Rev. C. T. Aikens awaited the bridal party. The march from Lohengrin was rendered by Mrs. Aikens and to its sweet music the bride and groom and their attendant entered the room and took their places before the minister. The bridal gown was a beautiful creation of white silk, lace and chiffon. She carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden-hair fern and Mr. Corl is to be congratulated for securing a honeymoon so popular and accomplished.

After the ceremony and congratulations a regal wedding feast was served. The presents were handsome and many. The groom is the 4th son of Peter Corl and amply qualified to provide a comfortable and prosperous home for his bride.
