should be freshly prepared for very young plants in order that they may not be check-ed by the change. It is best to take up the soil with the roots of each plant, if possible, by making the bed damp before removing the plants. Very early in the season some gardeners begin with the hotbeds and then transplant to cold frames, especially with lettuce and early cabbage, which are gotten into market before the outdoor crops come in. Cold frames permit of but limited space, and not a large number of plants can be grown with their use, but the high prices obtained for the early lots pay well for the work, which is done at a time when regular gardening is not pressing. Some growers begin in the fall, growing lettuce during the winter, while several other vegetables are also forced into

-I breed Black Minorcas for a number of reasons, among which are utility, beauty and commercial value. I placed utility first because my experience has demonstraand commercial value. I placed utility first because my experience has demonstrated that there are a few better utility fowls than the Black Minorca, especially as now bred. First, they certainly excel in egg production any other fowl, as they lay as many eggs as and a much larger egg than the Leghorn. The size and beauty of the Minorca egg are certainly very attractive to the eye, and their large size makes them the last one I shall make. I am not anxious for notoriety, and trust that I will be allowed to live in peace and quiet-ness in the future."

Mrs. Walden looks the picture of health and shows no trace of her long imprisonment. She still retains the beautiful features of the eye, and their large size makes them white and has a soft, creepy effect. This is governed somewhat by the degree of hunger, but no sheep will fatten upon feed which it consumes reluctantly. Hence, for best results, feed free from all objectionable taints should be provided. The too common practice of the rangeman of feeding his flocks on the ground is not to be commended. The slats for the rack are 2½ inches apart. For outdoor use in a wet climate the rack should be roofed. This is done by nailing three pairs of rafters of the desired pitch on the top of the frame, to which, on one on the top of the frame, to which, on one side, one-half inch shiplap, or weather-boarding, is nailed lengthwise. The other side of the roof should be attached with hinges, so it can be lifted up when feed is to be placed in the rack. A one-half by 2 inch strip should be nailed to the eaves so as to form a sort of eaves trough to prevent water from dripping on the sheep while feeding.

When fed in large flocks, the sheep should be driven from the feedyard during the time the racks are being filled. This will overcome the tendency to overcrowding and prevent injury to the sheep from the wagon and team. The quantity of this feed to be fed should be governed largely by the appetite of the flock, but it is not usually advisable to feed over the control of the flock. by the appetite of the flock, but it is not usually advisable to feed over three pounds of silage per head daily. For sheep weighing 125 pounds about 2.5 pounds of silage and 1.5 pounds of hay will be ample, and if one-half pound of grain or bran be fed slightly less hay will suffice. This will depend largely upon the condition of the

Nothing keeps the man so content as the maintenance of his dignity as head of the house. No matter how simple the home, the wise wife makes her husband feel that there he is master, that his convenience and happiness are there of chief account. He may be hustled about in his contact with life outside but let him feel that he is a person whose importance and abilities are believed in. Many a man of genuine authority outside his home has lost heart and poise because authority was denied him at home. Many a man of small account among his fellows has gained strength and power from the atmosphere thrown about him in his home. To feel himself deferred to and considered is tonic to the weak soul. And the wise wife studies her husband and plans to make for him just that home atmosphere that most thoroughly will tend to the support of his personality.

Deafness and catarrh have made me a great sufferer for years. Hawking, spitting, dropping in the throat, besides all kinds of head noises, such as whistling, buzzing and shricking which almost set me wild at times, and various other miserable symptoms almost made me dispair of ever being relieved, I grew very deafcould not hear the trains which passed by. I spent a great deal of money for various remedies and cures, but noticed little benefit. The New Treatment gave me some hope, and since taking it the result is more than I ever hoped for, for today, after 8 years' deafness, I can now hear the trains once more, which was the first great in dication I had of what the New Treatment is doing for me. I am rapidly recovering and highly recommend the New Treatment to all sufferers.
