BESIDE THE HEARTH.

Beside this hearth this wintry night, The flame the shadows flinging; But all is peace and love and light With songs of your sweet singing.

The snow upon the lattice gleams, The distant hills adjorning. O'er which I drift to you in dreams, As night drifts to the morning.

I saw the Summer sweet depart Sadly, as friends sever; "But there's no snow upon the heart;" 'Tis summer there forever.

Summer, with all her gracious dew To rose and violet clinging; Sweet Summer when I sing of you, Or hear you sweeter singing.

Oh, world with all your right and wrong-Oh, wintry sky above me, Mine is the music of a song That says she lives to love me!

Philip D. Armour died at his residence on Armour visited German baths, passed the cold mouths in Southern California, and devoted himself largely to an attempt to restore health, which, however, had been broken never to be regained.

When he returned to Chicago that fall he went to Danforth lodge, the summer home of his son, and remained there until home of his son, and remained there until nearly winter. He then journeyed to Pasadena, in Southern California, for the cold months.

The death of his son, Philip D. Armong.

The death of his son, Philip D. Armour, Jr., in Southern California, on January 29, 1900, was a great shock to the health broken man. The son had gone on a visit to his father and was taken suddenly ill with pneumonia. His death followed with were incorporated under the old name of Armour & Co. This was to provide greater stability in case of death and made no change in the practical ownership of properties. Some years before, the grain department had been incorporated under the title of the Armour Elevating company. The death of Simeon B. Armour, at Kansas City, in March, 1899, caused no particular change in the Armour interests there, as they were operated by a stock company. So carefully had the plans for the future been made that the death of Mr. Armour will have little effect on the outward work-well as the plans for the future been made that the death of Mr. Armour will have little effect on the outward work-well-as and one of them as he pulled his will have little effect on the outward working of the great enterprise with which he had been so closely identified. It is believed all the Armour properties will be held intact until the grandchildren come into their own. Estimates of Mr. Armour's own estate run from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000. This, of course, does not include the $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 owned by the younger members of his family. For years every enterprise he was interested in has been making immense profits. His holdings of stock have all advanced largely during the last three years.

Philip D. Armour who was in his 69th year, made his own life on lines unique and wholly original with himself.

From a not over-rich Oneida county, N. Y., farm to the position of paying more freight and controlling more provisions than any other man in the world were the extremes of his life. The ancestral Armours were Connecticut people, but Philip Armour was not born until after the family had moved to Stockbridge, Oneida county, N. Y. His birth date was May 16, 1832.

The California gold fever struck Western New York in 1849 and young Armour was the first in Stockbridge to determine to visit the Pacific coast. He obtained the permission of his parents and at the age of 17 them in a large box or cemented pit, using

The commercial sense which always pre-dominated in his life indicated its presence as soon as he saw the gold fields of California. He made money from the start and at the end of six years he returned with a fortune. Becoming dissatisfied with the quiet life of his native town he went west again and together with a brother-in-law established a large wholesale grocery house in Milwaukee. This venture was also successful and in a year's time he purchased in Milwaukee. This venture was also successful and in a year's time he purchased the largest grain elevator in Milwaukee. This led to more elevators and railroad stock. In 1866 he went to Chicago to take charge of the Chicago branch of a New York packing house. The result was that the Chicago house ceased to be a branch, and the largest grain elevator in Milwaukee.

The property interests for which Mr. Armour stood are estimated at $150,000,000. His personal share in this property is variously estimated at from $25,000,000 to

They realized that the decline from day to day did not cease, and there could be but one end. of the winter. The pneumonia was checked, but strength was not regained. The sudden death of his son and namesake nearly a year ago, hung heavily on him during the closing months of his life. In fact, he never recovered from the shock he experienced from that event.

His treadmill of work and his firm grip on affairs were maintained until the spring of 1899. Then the machine began to show signs of breaking. Mr. Armour was reported to be a sick man, and these reports were confirmed when he sailed for Germany to take baths at Bad Nauheim.

Mississippi's Great Wall. An Interesting Prehistoric Work, the Origin of Which

One of the scientific puzzles of the State of Mississippi is the "Brandywine stone wall," says the New Orleans Picayune It In works of charity Mr. Armour's monument will be found in the Armour Institute, to which but a short time ago he gave $750,000 in one remembrance. Asked once $750,000 in one remembrance. Asked once a pencil drawing of an immense pile of C. P. A., Pittsburg, Pa. Or H. C. Townsend, G. stone in the southeastern portion of Clai- P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo. ment, he replied: "The Armour Institute."

The institute to-day represents an investment on the part of Mr. Armour and itol. In a letter which accompanied the his brother, Joseph, of $2,788,000 and a drawing Mr. Watson stated that these stones, piled high on each other, cover an area 4 miles square. Each stone is 6 feet long, 3 feet wide and 2 feet thick, and Mr. Armour married Miss Malvina they are joined together with an excellent of Cincinuati, in October, 1862. They have had two children, Philip D. Armour, Jr., who died a year ago, and J. Ogden Armour, who seems destined by character, training and circumstances to succeed his father at the head of the Armour house.

Of the five brothers who have been identified with the applyilding of the Armour house. identified with the upbuilding of the Armour enterprises, Herman O. Armour, who went to New York in 1872 to look after is traceable through Copiah. It is broad Armour, who managed the banking interworth, Kan., and also a letter to Dr. T. B. Birdsong from another distinguished source, it being known that the latter some years ago investigated the matter. Mr. Watson, however," says the Courier," has given the subject more patient thought and gone over the ground more thoroughly than any one else, and to him the Courier is indebted for the following facts:

"He calls it the Brandy wine stone wall, and says this wonderful and massive struc ture or parts of structure of masonry done from "the west side.

These walls run from northeast to southwest. They are built of white or grayish white stone of immense size weighing from 2 to 3 tons, measuring from 6 to mour, the surviving son.

Mr. Armour had lost strength steadily from day to day since the commencement of the winter. The pneumonia was checked, but strength was not regained. The

"At another place about 500 yards away from the place just mentioned is a wall jutting from under a slope for a distance of nearly 2,000 feet. This stone work is exposed in a great many places over an area of four miles.

"The sides and angles of the blocks o stones are so perfect that they resemble pressed brick. The tops of these walls are perfectly horizontal and without regard to the unevenness of the earth's surface. ess of the earth's surface The seams between the tiers are perfectly straight and each block of stone is perfectly horizontal in position, and these blocks are smoothly dressed on the edges and ends, while the broad surfaces are rough, showing a broken surface brought down to a level plane, but not dressed. They are held so firmly together by the cement that it is with great difficulty that they are broken up.

"A personal inspection of these great structures as they lie partly buried in the earth would relieve the minds of the most skeptical of all doubt of their not being the work of the hands of man.

"In all that is above mentioned in con nection with numerous cavings in of the earth's crust, which represent the existence of underground caverns, abandant evidence is found to bear out the theory of the existence of a great buried city in that local-
