FARM NOTES.

-Grow a crop of carrots and provide a suitable place in advance in which to store them for use next winter. They are not equal to some foods, but they provide suc-culent material and are relished by all

-When the limb of a tree is removed the wound should be covered. Coal tar is excellent, and will serve to prevent the entrance of spores or dirt. When small branches are removed it may not be necessary to apply the tar, but for large cuts it should never be overlooked.

-Plant more peas for a succession or late supply. Late sweet corn may be planted up to July, and beets should also again be put in for a second supply. As the crops in the garden do not produce seed, being utilized before reaching maturity, two crops may be grown of a large proportion of the varieties of vegetables.

-Tests made with alfalfa in the Eastern States show that it will grow on almost any soil that is not too wet, and that it is bet ter on very light soils than clover. It has been grown on the white sand lands of New Jersey and gave good yields. After the first year it seems to be able to take care of itself so far as climate is concerned.

-But few weeds are found on well cultikept down and not allowed to produce to effect a cure. seed they must consequently decrease in number until the farm is clear of them, and when they are seen on a farm it is evidence that the owner has not done his best

-After the day's work every night the shoulders of the work teams should be thoroughly washed and dried. It may be that you are tired and that the chores will keep you busy until late, but it will pay to leave the fields half an hour earlier and groom your team. You will have better and truer horses and better and more work out of them. Wash the inside of the col- order. lars and pound the padding into shape.

-Such crops as beans, melons, sweet corn, squash and tomatoes will not make much growth during the cool nights that prevail, while the weather conditions have been very favorable for the operations of cut-worms. Seed planted now will make hand that shows daily—aye, almost constant—vigilance, with rosy, oval nails, immaculately white as to the rest, will be an as early crops as those planted sooner, as the warm days of summer will enable the plants to grow without being kept back by cool nights. It is probable that garden crops will be later than usual this season seed is broadcasted in June and the crop harvested before the frost. It is grown as a green manurial crop or for the grain. It provides an abundant forage for bees when in blossom, though some do not claim the honey therefrom to be of the highest quali-Being of rapid growth, buckwheat crowds the weeds and prevents them from growing, and as it shades the soil it is regarded as one of the best crops that can be grown for that purpose.

-With all the remedies suggested for blight on pear trees, the difficulty still exists, and many pear orchards are destroyed every year. At one time it was believed that by keeping the orchard ground in grass the pear trees would escape, but, while the rapid growth of the trees seems favorable to attack of blight, and although should it find its way into the orchard. The spraying of trees, or treating the trees at the roots will confer benefit, but there is no sure remedy for blight.

-Thistles can be eradicated by shallow cultivation of the ground. They are propagated from the roots and from seed. Every time the plowing is deep the roots of the thistles are broken, and every piece of root detached from the main root sends out another thistle. The easiest and best method of destroying thistles is to grow some crop that requires the use of a hoe, or that needs only shallow cultivation, for if the thistles are cut down as fast as they appear above ground they will die. After the crop grown upon the land has been removed turn sheep on the land, and they will give the thistles no chance to more than ow above ground

-Soils that are unfit for cultivation car be used to advantage for poultry. A saudy location is always dry, and the fowls can find more or less green food that would be insignificant in quantity for cattle. It is safe to claim that in this section of the country there is no soil that does not contain growth of some kind, even if but scant, and as fowls prefer the young and tender plants that are just appearing above ground, whether weeds or grass, they can at least find all the green food necessary. The advantage of a sandy location, however' is its dry soil. Fewer diseases occur on sandy soils, and the fowls will require less care where they escape mud and damp-ness. With good shelter and attention in feeding the fowls a plot of sandy land can be made to pay.

-Farmers who at one time abandoned sheep are again bringing them on the farms. They are also learning that there is more money in mutton than in wool. A few sheep can be kept with but little expense on any farm. They are dainty feeders, so far as cleanliness of food is concerned, but they will consume a great variety of foods and will accept kinds that some animals cool it will slip out. On the pasture they are industrious in seeking as delicacies young weeds and other growth that would take possession of the field but for them, also making the land more fertile with their droppings, which are uniformly scattered and trampled in. A dozen sheep on a farm should cost the farmer almost nothing for food.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Shirtwaist neckwear is just now botherng womankind. Here are a few of the pretty fixings that are being worn.

Linen collars with black ties, tied in the tiniest bows. The new point is the really diminutive size of the bow.

Choker and tie of white lawn, with little turnover collar, both collar and tie having narrow hemstitched edges in color. These tied in a butterfly bow in front, are decided-ly dainty and will undoubtedly have great Addison regarded cleanliness as the fos-ter-mother of beauty, declaring that "Beauty commonly produces love; but cleanliness preserves it." Consequently we will take it for granted that our girls are exquisitely clean.

The hair demands careful attention. Brush it every night with a perfectly clean brush; shampoo it twice a month. Singe the ends every three months, and have the scalp massaged occasionally.

The throat and neck are especially lovely possibilities in a girl. Steam, carolene and exercise will make the scrawny neck as-sume plump proportions, while the last named and massage will reduce undue tissue quickly.

The arms-Pretty arms are talents. We can do much to delight other eyes if our arms are lovely. Exercising the biceps for ten minutes each day, and scrubbing them with a nail brush from top to wrist will do wonders in keeping them in

The hands-Poets have always stolen woman's hands as themes of beauty. They are-if beautiful. An ill-kept, be-ringed hand is the maximum of ugliness. A hand that shows daily—aye, almost conmaculately white as to the rest, will be an eloquent witness of beauty's daintiness.

The form is quite too long a story for a paragraph or two, but one can but urge our girls to avoid leanness as carefully as obesity. They should do this intelligently

The calvx fits as tightly and closely as possible around the hips, and the petals swing out from just above the knees, swirling widely around the feet. This arrangement renders it very troublesome to hold up a skirt effectually, and yet it is almost impossible to walk in it without lifting it, except by a slow, gliding move-ment, pushing the skirt before one's feet, as it were. Besides the inconvenience of this sliding manner of progression, considerations of hygiene and cleanliness, forbid trailing a wide skirt in the streets. Only on a well-kept lawn or in the house can the newest cut of jupon be worn with any pro-priety and comfort, sweeping its full width around the wearer.

> Feathers and down are expensive, but if you know a bank where the cat-tail grow, you know a bank where the cat-tail grow, you can make down pillows galore for the mere making. You must know that the fluff of the ripe cat-tail, which may be gathered in August, makes a pillow equaled only by down itself. So be provident this year, and if you live near a lake or pond, get you a harvest of cat-tails for future use. You will find them the most inexpensive and satisfactory material you can employ for the purpose. If it should be your fate to live in a section of the country where cat-tails do not grow, then substi tute the silk from milk-weed pods. Gather the pods in the fall of the year, hang them away in paper bags to dry and they will burst open before the winter is over and can be made up into pillows in the early spring.

When stiff add a cup of sugar, a teaspoonful of essence of almond and fold in lightly a cup of flour sifted three times with a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Black velvet ribbon is wonderfully popular on all the millinery of the day, and, as it is exceedingly becoming, you may welcome the news gladly. The authorities are trying very hard to induce us to patronize the hat that bears a perfectly flat, plate-like crown, is tied at the back with a black velvet bow, and boasts as its only trimming a bandeau beneath the

The Origin of Oil.

-Kerosene from Menhaden.

At the United States Geological Survey the recent discoveries of oil in Texas, Wyoming and California are regarded with complaisance not only because they will add millions to the visible wealth of the country, but because they furnish additional fields for investigation into the source and origin of the various grades of "oil" says the Baltimore Sun. With all the study and original research which have been going on for many years in connection with petroleum there is much ignorance on the subject. Where it can be found, whence it comes and its origin are all unanswered questions. When a gusher is struck it spouts a black fluid known as "oil." This may be a compound of 50 or 100 different oils, which have to be separated as far as possible before being marketed. The qualities and characteristics of ed. The qualities and characteristics of oil vary not only in the different wells, but often in the same well, the yield from one a pill box that cost $1.37. stratum being different from that of another lower down. The oil of the United States is entirely different from that found in Russia, Java or Peru, which fact substantiates the theory that the several oils have different origins.

One of the theories as to the source of oil is that it comes from the fat of animals or fish which had been squeezed out or distilled through countless ages to be collect-

Experimenting on this line in an effort to verify the theory Warren and Storer took menhaden oil and, through distillation, produced a kerosene, which they marketed without its artificial nature being discovered. In 1888 Engler distilled under pressure half a ton of menhaden oil, from which he obtained petroleum distillates. The distillate was brown but fluorescent. Sixty per cent consisted of saturated hydrocarbons, from which he isolated and identified a number of oils usually contained in the products of certain oil fields. He also purified the product and made good kerosene oil. Not satisfied with this he went farther and showed that other fats, as olein, will yield petroleum, so that fish oils are not essential.

Another theory that the oil is from vegetable matter is apparently sustained in the case of the Russian fields, where the oils contain a substance similar to the distillation products of coal tar, such as benzole. The theory has been advanced as to the origin of the Pennsylvania oil fields that the petroleums of Pennsylvania owe their origin to the effect of heat upon the underlying lime stones and shales of the Silurian age. It is claimed that the same force age. It is claimed that the same rouge which caused the Appalachian chain to uplift, passing through the lime stones and shales of the Silurian age at a modified temperature, distilled the oil already contained in these shales and conglomerate sands of the Devonian age, where it was condensed and filtered, and found its home in the open, porous conglomerates which characterize the Catskill, Portage and Chemung periods of the Devonian age.

It, therefore, seems to be an open question as to whether oil is of mineral, vegetable or animal origin, and it will doubtless remain open for some time to come.

The doctor from Algona said that newspapers are run for revenue only. What in thunder do doctors run for, anyway? Do they run for glory? One good, healthy doc-tor's bill would run this office for six months.

A doctor goes to college for three or four years and gets a diploma and a string of words the devil himself cannot pronounce, cultivates a look of gravity that he pawns off for wisdom, gets a box of pills, a cayuse and a meat saw and sticks his shingle out a full-fledged doctor. He will then doctor you until you die at a stipulated price per visit, and puts them in as thick as your pocketbook will permit.

An editor never gets his education finished. He learns as long as he lives and studies all his life. He eats bran mash and liver; he takes his pay in turnips and hay, and keep the doctor in town by refraining from printing the truth about him. We would like to live in Algona and run a newspaper six months and see if the doctor would change his mind about running If we didn't get some glory out of it we would agree to take one of his pills, after first saying our prayers. If the editor makes a mistake he has to apologize for it, but if the doctor makes a mistake he buries If we make one there is a law suit, tall swearing and a smell of sulphur, but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and a smell of varnish. The doctor can use a word a foot long, but if the editor uses it he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he will charge the man for the visit. If the editor calls on another man's wife he gets a charge of buckshot. Any medical college can make a doctor. You can't make an editor. He has to be born one. The editor works to keep from starving, while the doctor works to ward off the gout. The editor helps men to live better, and the doctor assists them to die easy

The doctor pulls a sick man's leg, the editor is glad if he can collect his bills at all. Revenue only? We are living for fun, and to spite the doctors.—Medical -Booker Washington says that during the earlier days of freedom almost every negro who learned to read would receive "a call to preach" within a few days after he began reading. He tells of a colored man in Alabama who one hot day in July, while he was at work in a cotton field, suddenly stopped, and looking towards the skies, said: "O Lawd, de cotton am so grassy, de work am so hard and the sun is so hot, I b'lieve dis darky am called to preach!"
