We were then informed that our captors were General Funston, Captains Newton and Hazzard, and Lieutenants Hazzard

The next morning, March 24th, I had a conference with General Funston, in which I was told by him that on the next day there would arrive in the bay of Palanan a warhip which would take us to Manila. In the conrse of the day he informed me of the plan which had resulted in our cap-ture—a fate which I had believed would never befall me. It appears that my messenger, Private Segismundo, fell into the which he carried suggested to the general which he carried suggested to the general the plan which was subsequently carried out so brilliantly. The letter which I had received on the 20th, and which I supposed had come from General Lakuna, was a forgery executed with the greatest clever-ness. It was complete in all its details, even bearing the seal of Lakuna, and there its authenticity. I had not the slighest doubt from that time up to the instant of the commencement of the attack which ended in my capture. It was a bold plan, executed with skill and cleverness in the face of difficulties which, to most men, would have seemed insurmountable.

built of bamboo and thatched with nip situated on the banks of the river which bears the same name, and some six miles distant from the seashore. It is in one of the most isolated places in the province of Isabela, in northern Luzon. There are no ways of communication with the outside world except rough trails or footpaths that lead over the mountains west, to Ilagan, or south to Casiguran, and its peaceful population of some twelve hundred souls has heard very little of the tide of war which for four years has deso-lated our country. Nevertheless when I first went there with my companions and our little band of followers, in the month of September, 1900, I was received with enthusiasism by these simple, hospitable people, and everything that they had was placed at my disposal. I was accompanied by Dr. Santiago Barcelonia and Colonel Simon Villa, my chief-of-staff. We had some seventeen soldiers, who had followed ns in all our wanderings over the moun-tains and through the forests of northern Luzon. Barracks were furnished for these soldiers, and a house was set apart for the residence of myself and my companions.

We lived here quietly for several weeks, enjoying the few diversions in the way of amusement that the village could offer. There was a fairly capable band of music, and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons it was accustomed to give concerts in the plaza in front of house, followed sometimes by a dance in the parish house, next to the church, for the young people of the village.

Making Converts in India.

Bishop Potter has something to say in the August Century of the difficulty of Christian converts in India:

Our popular impression of the influence, e. g., of Christian institutions and especially of Christian missions is, I am disposed to think, erroneous. Said a member of the Oxford Mission in Calcutta, with a fine courage for which one could not sufficiently honor him. "We have been here three years before we made one convert"; but he added "When one remembers what but he added "When one remembers what his departure from his old fellowships cost him, one need not wonder." Nor indeed, can any one who understands what an ab solute expulsion from all earlier ties, fellowships and recognitions on the part of kindred or friends such a step involves. But, on the other hand, one who understands what has been going on all the time since England entered India will understand that slowly but surely old traditions have been weakened and old lines of separation disappearing, so that, step by step, the dawn of a better and a brighter day is drawing near. I should be violating personal confidences if I should furnish the evidence of this which came to me in private conversation with Brahmans of high rank and official station; but I violate no confidence in saying that, among the most thoughtful and clear-sighted of these, it is coming to be more and more clearly perceived that the task is a hope-less one which claims to be able to hold the minds and faith of a people who read and think to the outworn shibboleths of a corrupt and sensuous paganism. And meanwhile the work which Christian missionaries of many names but of one noble aim are doing in all these lands, in schools, in homes, in hospitals, in nurseries, in colleges, and in the hearts and lives of

From the above there appears to be little relation between the density of population and the rate of increase, some of the most densely settled countries apparently having as great a rate of increase as the most sparsely populated ones. Thus England and Wales, Belgium and the Netherlands, which are the most densely settled por-tions of the civilized world, are exceeded in rate of increase only by Germany and Denmark among European nations; while, on the other hand, France, which is not a

Some of the Big Gold Nuggets.

Among the historical big gold nuggets found in various parts of the world, there has been some wonderful lumps. In Cabarrus county, North Carolina, one was found in 1810 which weighed 37 pounds troy. In 1845, the gold fields of Zlatoust, in the Ural gave a nugget of 96 pounds, troy. The Victoria, (Australia) weights, of which only 9 ounces were foreign rock; and the Ballarat, (Australia) nugget was 39 pounds heavier yet. The largest nug-get ever found was dug in Australia—the "Sarah Sands," named for a far-off loved one. It reached the astonishing weight of 233 pounds and four ounces troy.

Specimens of the Hospitality of Southern Mountaineer

The latchstring hangs outside every cabin door if the men folk are at home, but you must shout "Hello !" always outside the fence.

"We uns is pore," you will be told.
"but y'u're welcome ef y'u kin put up with what we have."

After a stay of a week at a mountain cabin a young "furriner" asked what his bill was. The old mountaineer waved his bill was. The old mountaineer waved his hand. "Nothin" he said, "cept come ag'n!"

A belated traveler asked to stay all night at a cabin. The mountaineer answered that his wife was sick, and they were "sorter out of fixin's to eat, but he reckoned he mought step over to a neigh-bor's and borrow some." He did step over, and he was gone three hours. He brought back a little bag of meal, and they had corn, bread and potatoes for supper and for breakfast, cooked by the mountaineer. The stranger asked how far his next neighbor lived. "A leetle the rise of six miles, I reckon," was the an-

"Oh, jes' over the mountain thar."

He had stepped six miles over the mountain and back for that little bag of meal, and he would allow his guest to pay nothing next morning.

I have slept with nine others in a single room. The host gave up his bed to two of our party, and he and his wife slept with the rest of us on the floor. He gave us supper, kept us all night, sent us away next morning with a parting drink of moonshine applejack, of his own brewing, by the way, and would suffer no one to pay a cent for his entertainment. That man was a desperado, an outlaw, a moonshiner, and was running from the sheriff at that very time.

Two outlaw sons were supposed to have been killed by officers. I offered aid to the father to have them decently clothed and buried, but the old man, who was as densely settled country, according to bad as his sons, declined it.—"The South-European standards, is not increasing in mountaineer," by John Fox, Jr., in Scribner's.

Who has not read the story by Benjamin Franklin of the boy who spent all his cash for a whistle. He was so pleased with a whistle that another lad had that he gave up his all to become its owner, only to find in the end that he had made a very foolish and sorrowful trade. From that story came the apt sentence we often hear: "He paid too much for his whistle."

Just what the United States paid for a "whistle" we find in the following statement of the account of the United States

Mho has not read the story by Benjamin The question is so frequently asked by business men, "Does Advertising Pay?"

John Wanamaker pays over $1,000 a day just for advertising his Philadelphia store. He uses a page advertisement in five different daily papers of Philadelphia. They are as follows: Press, $60,000; Ledger, $60,000; Times, $50,000; and the Evening Telegraph, $50,000. Up to a year ago, Mr. Wanamaker was using a page in the Record at the rate of $87,500 a year, which would have made ment of the account of the United States $87,500 a year, which would have made with the Philippine islands, as it was stated by the New York Evening Post. $87,500 a year, which would have made an annual expenditure of $382,500. When he wanted to renew his advertising contract with the Record, the publishers asked $25,000 more or a total of $112,500.

Mr. Wanamaker refused to pay the amount thinking no one else would pay that sum for the page. The proposition was made to Lit Brothers, who accepted the contract without a moment's hesitation and they are now paying the enormous sum of $112-500 for the use of a page in the Record for one year. The circulation of the Record now runs about 190,000 copies a day.

If advertising does not pay how can these firms spend fortunes every year for a single page of a newspaper?

But seeing that the firing continued, and that the bullets from the rifles of the attacking party were directed against me as well as against the soldiers of my guard, I for the first time realized that the newcomers were enemies. I hurriedly left the window and ran into another room in the hope of finding some means of escape, but saw at once that the house was already surrounded, Then I seized a revolver, intending to defend myself, but Dr. Barcelona threw both arms around me, crying out,

When the firing commenced, Tal Placido threw himself down on the floor to avoid the bullets, but now he got up and told us that we were prisoners of the Americans, who he said, were on the other side of the river with four hundred American soldiers, and would soon be here. Just at this time several of Tal Placido's soldiers came into myself. A little later five Americans, all armed with carbines, came into the room where we were. They came up to us, and one of them asked "Which of you is Aguinaldo?" As soon as I had been identified by the Americans I was placed, with Dr. Barcelona and Colonel Villa, in one of the rooms of the house, and guards were posted at all the windows and doors, under

The season is regarded by many persons as more unhealthy than that which immediately precedes or succeeds it, and as being a time when mankind is more liable to attacks from disease through exposure or imprudence in general habits than in any other. The heat, while the dog days last, is usually more sultry and oppressive than any other in the summer. Then, too, the meat and vegetables are supposed to be in more danger of spoiling from the effects
