Making Characters-NOT MONEY

When Williamsport Dickinson Seminary was founded, money making was not in the thought of its promotors. To give young men and women thorough intellectual and moral training at the lowest possible cost was its paramount aim. It remains its paramount aim. Buildings have been added, equipment increased, the faculty enlarged, but the school is true to its first principles.

> — Apropos of the turf in France the late Tom Lane, an English jockey, who was for many years the idol of the racing public he e, and who was always regarded as a perfect model of what a jockey should be, has left a fortune of at least a million francs, and he had lived at the rate of from 75,000 to 100,000 francs a year for many years. Yet there was never a whisper of scandal connected with his career of twen-ty years on the French turf, and so highly was he thought of by the great patrons of the sport that several of the highest aristocrats in France sent their family doctor to him when the news from Chantilly was alighted astride the bull's back with trepublished that he was very ill.

Lane was a horseman of exceptional ability, a rider of the Fred Archer type and he had a reputation of being absolutely coolheaded in the most exciting struggles. Yet he told a friend of mine that he was probably "the most nervous jockey on record," and that he could always feel his heart thumping while at the starting post before a big race. He won the Grand Prix five or six times, the last time in 1899, just before he retired, and I fancy at one time or an other put every race of importance on the French turf calendar to his credit.

Lane was a quiet man, devoted to his home and family and he managed his affairs like an old-fashioned English lawyer of the most methodical habits. It is said at Chantilly, the great race horse training town of France, where there is more English heard spoken than French, that Lane was never heard to use an oath and he was regarded as the very pink of propriety by everyone, from the smallest stable boy to the greatest owners of the big establishments that flourish there.

New Orleans several years ago permitted romen residents who owned real estate to vote on a bond issue either in person, or by proxy. The Alabama plan makes no provisions for proxies.

It was fortunate for New Orleans that women property owners were allowed to vote at its bond election, for they support-ed the bonds almost solidly and had much to do with setting that city on the line of very valuable improvements. -Alabama

General Greely, it is expected, will testitify that eight days before Schley found the Spanish fleet in Santiago harbor Sampson was in possession of absolute information that it was there, and that for some reason he refused to communicate the fact to his brother officer. As chief signal officer General Greely had perfected arrangements by which the time of the arrival of Cervera's fleet at any Cu-ban port would be known almost instantly at Washington. On May 19 the ships sailed into Santiago and Cervera cabled his arrival to Madrid. Colonel Allen, in charge of the signal operations at Cuba, was immediately appraised of the fact and cabled the news to General Greely. Burned Her Boy's Tongue.

Elizabeth Blizzard, colored, was convicted in Baltimore Md., Saturday of having thrust a redhot iron poker into the mouth of her 7-year-old son Daniel, because the little fellow had been guilty of telling a falsehood. According to her own admission the woman deliberately heated the implement over a coal oil lamp, and forcing the boy's mouth open, held it against his tongue for several seconds, burning him frightfully. She was sent to jail for six months and fined $50. The boy will probably recover.

When we come to consider the fact that a mile a minute is very fast time for a locomotive engine, and that most railway trains on most occasions do not make more than half this speed, it is rather remark-able that a horse has been found which can rot a mile in about two minutes. This, however, is the record of Cresceus. The Ohio champion has reduced his own world's record. There is believed to be limit to the locomotive's capacity for speed. Is there any for the horse?
