The Democratic State Ticket.

For Justice of the Supreme Court HARMAN YERKES, of Bucks County.

For State Treasurer A. J. PALM, of Crawford County.

Democratic County Ticket.

For Prothonotary—M. I. GARDNER. For District Attorney—N. B. SPANGLER.

Don't Be too Certain.

Because the Republicans played high jinks and fought like Kilkenny cats at their county convention is no excuse for Democrats becoming negligent about the work of the campaign. Under any circumstances this county is close, politically. A full vote and united effort of both parties would not show a Democratic majority of over three hundred; in fact, the chances would be that it would be considerably less than that number. If three hundred Democrats were to remain away from the polls, it is almost certain that a Republican majority would be secured. This would mean less than six Democrats to an election precinct.

Last fall we lost the members of the Legislature because of the stay-at-home Democrats. Most of those remained away from the polls, because they were not impressed with the necessity of their vote. This fall we are having a much less exciting campaign and unless a lot of quiet work is done on the part of the Democratic people we may wake up with another disappointing defeat. It does not do to rely upon Republican troubles for Democratic victories. We have the votes to carry the county and they should be gotten to the election, whether the Republicans are united or divided. If we make use of our own strength we are certain of victory and this is the only way of being certain of it.

The WATCHMAN earnestly appeals to each Democrat to do his full duty in this matter. If that is done there will be no question about results.

—There is a good bit being said nowadays about anarchy and freedom of the press and free speech. The reds can be proved without striking at the latter, but once make an attack upon the press or the right of free speech and our pure Democracy will be assailed and anarchy in its worst phase will be the consequence.

—Young men who voted on age last year should bear in mind that it will be necessary for them to pay taxes before they will be able to vote this fall, and Saturday, October 5th, will be the last day on which taxes for such purposes may be paid.

Palm for the Fusion Program.

Democratic Nominee Leaves No Doubt He Will Resign from State Ticket. Believes a Majority of the Party Workers and Committeemen Favor the Scheme.

Representative A. J. Palm will resign from the Democratic State ticket. He believes it to be his duty as a Democrat and as a citizen who favors an overthrow of the State machine. He will ask the State central committee to accept his resignation so that a fusion may be effected with the Union party. Elisha A. Coray, of Luzerne, will then unquestionably be substituted. Mr. Palm believes Mr. Coray will succeed him within a week, says a majority of the people generally and of the Democrats favor fusion and confidently predicts the election of a fusion ticket.

When fusion was first discussed Mr. Palm was not without his misgivings as to its desirability this year. He was doubtful as to its expediency until he met the representatives of Democracy from over the State at the notification gathering last Wednesday. It was observed that he mingled among them throughout the day and now admits that he gathered up the sentiment of as many of them as possible.

Now he believes the preponderance of sentiment among the Democrats is in favor of fusion, and while reiterating the statement in his speech, that he was willing to withdraw, he expresses the belief that a majority of the State central committeemen favor it, says he favors it, and believes every loyal Democrat will accept the will of the majority.

Mr. Palm subjected to an interview here yesterday, which he afterward approved. He was asked whether he thought there would be fusion with the Union party and replied: "I don't think there is any doubt of it. The Democratic papers of the State, as a rule, favor fusion as the only hope of defeating the machine candidates this fall. Much as the people are disgusted with last winter's disgraceful proceedings in the Legislature and the still more disgraceful exhibition of deliberately endorsing that Legislature's infamy by the State convention."

"How does the State central committee stand on the question?" he was asked. "I think a large majority favors fusion, and while some of the members, as well as some leaders who are not members, oppose it, as good Democrats believing in majority rule they will not fight fusion after it is once agreed upon." "When will the matter likely be settled?" "Well, I cannot say as to that," he replied, "but I suppose it will be some time next week, the sooner the better for the election is but five weeks off." In reply to a question as to what he thought the chances a fusion ticket would have for success, he replied: "I think there is a good chance. Causes produce effects. There are certainly causes enough to overthrow the corrupt gang that has control of the State. Independent Republicans and Republicans too, who believe in honest government will vote their honest convictions this fall. The fusion ticket will be elected beyond a doubt."

The Candidates Notified.

A Most Auspicious Gathering of Democrats Assembled to Notify Yerkes and Palm.—Speeches Full of Pure Democracy—A Reminder of Old Times that Was Significant.

HARRISBURG, Pa., September 30.—No political event of recent years has had as inspiring an influence on the Democratic mind of this State as the notification meeting held at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, on Wednesday of last week. It worked like a charm. Old party leaders and young party husters mingled together before, during and after that meeting and satisfaction beamed from their faces. There was inspiration in the air, hope in the hearts of those present and confidence everywhere. It reminded me for all the world of the times when Wallace, Randall, Buckalew, Bigler, James P. Barr, B. F. Meyers, Robert Allen, Judge Church, Hopkins, Gibson and hosts of others, intellectual giants and political gladiators used to assemble in convention and contend with each other for control.

It doesn't seem so long ago but it is twenty-two years since one of those battles royal resulted in the nomination of that splendid specimen of political leader Andrew H. Dill over the equally capable and hardly less aggressive James A. Hopkins. Wallace was president of the convention and Lew Cassidy, Malcolm Hay, George Allen, Senator Peale and Senator Bob Allen were leaders in the contention on the floor, James P. Barr the veteran and able editor of the Pittsburgh Post was premier in the cabinet of the Hopkin's forces and Wallace, B. F. Meyers, Bob Allen Peale, John Fertig McGrath and Barger, of Philadelphia, were directing the movements of the pawns in behalf of Dill. The convention lasted two days and there was little time spent in sleep from the beginning to the end of the deliberations.

Another of these conventions was that which met in this city in 1886 when Chancellor F. Black defeated William A. Wallace for the gubernatorial nomination. The preliminary canvass was intensely active and energetic. This was about the first time that the late W. L. Scott, of Erie, asserted himself positively in the party parliament. Until about the day of the convention Scott was an unknown quantity. Wallace was openly in the fight for Black and he made the pretenses of being the representative of President Cleveland in the contest. But everybody knew that Scott was closer to Cleveland than any other Pennsylvanian. Both sides wanted his friendship but it was not known which side he was on until the night before the meeting when he came in a magnificent private car and made his way to the Black headquarters. After that there was no doubt of the result. The uncertain fellows all drifted to Black.

Probably the last of these great battles was at the convention at Scranton in which Pattison defeated Wallace for the nomination for Governor. Both sides were confident and it is small wonder for the issue was determined by the decision of the credentials committee on a contest for the seats of the Blair county delegation. The notification meeting in Philadelphia on Wednesday brought these great events of the past to mind. It was not because of a bitter contention in the meeting for there was none. It was for the reason, however, that the same hopefulness, the exact confidence, the similar earnestness was noticeable on every face. In fact a number of the distinguished leaders of those days were present on this occasion and that splendid representative of pure Democracy John Denton Hancock, of Franklin, the "uncle of great men" observed, the old war horses infested the affair with a peculiar interest.

There was an analogy, moreover, in the intellectuality of those who actively participated in the proceedings. The speech of Hon. Lucian W. Doty, of Westmoreland county notifying the candidates of the nomination or which with singular unanimity had been bestowed on them was up to the highest standard of the best days of Pennsylvania Democracy. It was classical in the purity and force of its diction and one might well have imagined that it was the voice of the late Judge Black that was expressing in the most English and kindly message of the Democrats of the State to those upon whom a great honor had been conferred. Nor were the responses of the candidates less worthy of consideration. Referring to a similar event in which he participated nineteen years ago the distinguished jurist, Hon. Harman Yerkes, said: "then as now true Democracy feared not to taint its loyalty to party principles by waging the battle for better government hand in hand with sincere and independent Republicans against the selfish oligarchy, fortified behind an immense party majority, which through two decades of unbridled political license has abused the confidence of a great party."

It was a magnificent scene that was presented as the enthusiasm of the audience burst forth in response to that sentiment. In the patriotic vein he continued at intervals compelled the most enthusiastic applause. But it was not until near the close of his address that the depths of enthusiasm were sounded. "My only pledge," he declared, "is that if elected I will devote all my strength and ability to a faithful discharge of the duties of my office. I will obey and uphold the constitution," and the full significance of that pledge was appreciated by every man in the hall. The instrument which should be held sacred by every public official has neither been obeyed nor upheld in recent years and as every man felt, that with Yerkes the pledge will be held inviolate to the last hour of his life, there was such a storm of approval as had never before shaken the old building in which it was uttered.

Representative Palm of Crawford county was no less happy in accepting the nomination for State Treasurer. "Let us hope," he said, "that the time may soon come when the honor of a nomination to a high office in Pennsylvania shall not depend entirely on the size of the salary attached and the chances of being able to secure it, but rather on the motive which animates those who aspire to it." What a grand consummation that will be when the sordid impulses that makes public trust a species of merchandise in which men trade as hawksters deal in wares in the market places. "The issue in the coming campaign is so plain," continued Mr. Palm, "that a wayfaring man though a fool need not misunderstand it." The platform upon which we stand denounces extravagance, bribery, perjury, legislative robbery and political corruption of every sort. The platform of our opponents declares itself amuse at the efforts of honest citizens to make fraud, perjury and bribery odious in the public sight. Is it any wonder that such speeches under such circumstances inspired enthusiasm and created hope?

The meeting was splendid in every particular. It not only brought together a distinguished lot of Democrats but it inspired them with good fellowship when they got together. The day before a wonderful political incident was developed representatives of a citizenship in every section of the State had assembled the day previously in the same city and setting aside prejudices had nominated a ticket the head of which was the distinguished jurist who the Democrats had previously honored. The night before the streets had been literally ablaze with marching and musical bands testifying to their abhorrence of the abuses which have been during recent years perpetrated by an atrocious political machine. The very air was surcharged with opposition to corruption in politics and venality in public life. Under such circumstances the vast number of patriotic and unselfish citizens representing the best hopes and aspirations of the people of the State gathered together in the interest of good government and an untarnished judiciary and it is natural that there should be an abundance of hope and a plethora of good feeling.

It was an inspiring moment and when Chairman Doty declared that anarchy is not the greatest danger which confronts the people of Pennsylvania but the ballot box stuffers purchased and the purchasable legislators are a greater menace he said that every man within the sound of his voice knew to be gospel truth. But there is hope when men understand and understanding have courage to act and the meeting on Wednesday revealed the fact that such is true. Mr. Palm fittingly responded to the sentiment expressed by Judge Doty when he said "the wretches who resort to assassination for their methods are so abhorrent to every right minded man as to bring punishment swift and unfeeling. It is another form of violence against the State that is more dangerous because more insidious. The lawlessness that stifles ballot boxes, buys legislatures, steals the public streets under the guise of the law, defies honest public sentiment and monopolizes the public resources for selfish ends is the form of anarchy from which Pennsylvania is most in danger."

Were Taken Unawares.

Company C, Ninth Infantry, Taken Off Their Guard. Many Killed in Their Tents. The Attacking Party of Filipinos Numbered 400 and of These the Americans Succeeded in Killing About 140. None of the Officers Escaped.

MANILA, Sept. 30.—General Hughes, from the Island of Samar, reports the arrival of Sergeant Markley and one private at Tannan from the fight at Balangaga, where forty men of company C, Ninth infantry, were killed by insurgents who attacked the troops while at breakfast Saturday last. The man who reports the loss says that the officers of the company, who were at first reported to have escaped, were killed with the men of the company. The troops were attacked while unprepared by 400 bolomen, of whom the Americans killed about 140. Many of the soldiers were killed in their quarters before they had time to grasp their rifles.

General Hughes is going to the scene of the disaster and will personally command the troops. A new branch of the Katipunan has been discovered at Tarlac, capital of the province of that name. The object of the society is the slaughter of the whites, Marcellino Marivil, president of Banoang, is the chief of the branch which includes a number of the native constabulary who were recently armed. One policeman admits that he was taxed a dollar and was ordered to make bolts. A regular collection has been made by the organization from the natives, either by persuasion or threats, and an uprising had been planned for an early date.

Conditions in Tayanas (Tayabas?) and Batangas are not reassuring. The worst form of guerilla warfare prevails there. The insurgent forces are distributed, under cover, along every road and trail, and wait for travelers in ambush. The insurgent leader Caballero (who formerly belonged to General Cailles' command, but who refused to surrender with Cailles) is retreating to the mountains. The main forces of the insurgents are scattered in bands over the province, where they dig up rifles when there is an opportunity to use them.

Owing to the distance from Manila of the scene of the massacre of company C, the officials of the War Department do not expect a response to their order for a full list of the casualties before long. However, they feel assured that the officers of the ill-fated company certainly perished. NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Two dispatches were received today at the residence in this city of David J. Connell, the father of Captain Thomas W. Connell, of the Ninth United States infantry. One was from the War Department at Washington, saying that Captain Connell had been killed in action. The other was from Quartermaster Ransing of Captain Connell's regiment, under a Manila date, and contained the same information. The news of Captain Connell's death, following the report that he was safe, came as a heavy blow to his family, and his mother was completely prostrated by it.

Believed the Natives.

Capt. Company C, Ninth Infantry Was Very Confident.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—The following cablegram was received at the War Department this afternoon from General Chaffee: MANILA, October 1st, 1:23 p. m.—Adjutant General Washington: With reference to your telegram of 30th ult., will cable names of the missing enlisted men as soon as ascertained. The company was rushed about six o'clock in the morning by a large body of bolomen, about 400. General Hughes thinks the surprise was due to the confidence of the commanding officer in aspects of friendship from the natives. Results of the investigation will be cabled as soon as obtained. CHAFFEE.

This message is in response to one sent to General Chaffee by General Corbin on Sunday, immediately upon receipt of the news of the disaster to the company.

Harrowing Details.

The Slaughter of the Men of Company C by the Filipinos.

MANILA, October 3.—The latest advices from the island of Samar give harrowing details of the slaughter of the members of company C, Ninth United States infantry, last Saturday, at Balangaga. It seems that the president of the town, claiming to be friendly, led the assault in person. On hearing of the slaughter, Colonel Isaac D. DeRussay, of the Eleventh infantry, started for the scene immediately with a battalion. The body of Captain Connell had been tied at the heels, saturated with kerosene and partly burned. Forty-five bodies had been burned in a trench, leaving seven unaccounted for. The charred remains of many were recovered. In numerous instances the bodies had been mutilated.

Big Boom on Army Recruiting.

All Branches of Service Readily Securing Men for Philippines.

Major H. B. Moon, in charge of the Pennsylvania recruiting district for the regular army, with headquarters at Broad and Filbert streets, Philadelphia reports that an unusual number of recruiting applicants who desire service in the Philippines are now being received at the different offices throughout the State. September was an unusually good month for recruits had been issued, except for the regular service. The new recruits are coming for the most part from the interior of the State and from volunteers who had served in the Philippines and who desire to go back again. Many of those seeking enlistment believe the islands hold out alluring prospects and that by way of the army is the best way to enter the country and secure a foothold.

Beginning yesterday morning Major Moon inserted an advertisement for the artillery branch of the service, which is now being filled up. Those entering this branch of the service are being rendezvoused at Fort Slocum, New York. Major Moon has also sent Captain Loyd, of the Fifteenth Infantry, to Williamsport, where he has opened a central station and two sub-stations. Two sub-stations are also now running in connection with the recruiting offices in Pittsburg, Harrisburg, Scranton and Philadelphia.

The August government report, just received, shows that 213 men enlisted in Pennsylvania during that month, which was slow, and that they came from the farms, the workshops and other callings. The total enlistment for that month in the army throughout the State was 3677. Kentucky led in enlistment, many of her mountaineers desiring service in the Philippines.

Captain J. E. Mahone, of the marine service, who is working throughout the State also reports a lively enlistment, mostly from the interior, for Philippine service during August. His best stations during September were those at Pittsburg, Mead and Washington, Pa.

Cumberland County to Celebrate Her Sesqui-Centennial.

It has been determined to hold a Sesqui-Centennial celebration at Carlisle, on the 23rd and 24th days of October, 1901, mainly for the purpose of collecting and preserving the history that belongs to a large part of the territory of Pennsylvania.

Cumberland county was stricken from Lancaster on the 27th day of January, 1750, and comprised all the province west of the Susquehanna river except the present counties of York and Adams.

The early records of the courts of Cumberland county are replete with much that is of value and interest to the counties of the Commonwealth and that were from time to time formed from it, and is proposed, with the co-operation of the people of these counties, to collect and have ready for this celebration all this data, but which is outside of this vast amount of history that can only be obtained through individuals, documents etc., in their possession.

The object of this celebration thereof is to induce every person in the territory designated, or elsewhere, to contribute all of their records, papers, manuscripts or in anything of historical value for exhibit and inspection during the celebration.

A committee of gentlemen has been formed to marshal this material and in due time write up and publish it in book form. Your hearty co-operation is respectfully invited and everything sent in will be carefully kept, subject to the order of the sender and your personal presence at the celebration is most urgently requested.

If you think favorably of this matter and desire to render aid, will you kindly communicate with the undersigned and indicate as nearly as possible the nature of the assistance you can render.

Family history, old documents and books, historical arms and uniforms, furniture, pictures, colonial, Revolutionary or historical anecdotes, in short anything of historical value is desired.

Any further information touching this matter will be cheerfully given by JOHN R. MILLER, Chairman of the County Committee, Carlisle, Pa.

Miss Stone's Capture

Had Been Holding Her Usual Summer School for Bible Workers in Macedonia.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 30.—A detailed account of the capture of Miss Helen Stone, a missionary, by brigands in Turkey, has been received in a letter from Mrs. H. C. Haskell, of Samokov, Bulgaria, to a relative here. Her letter says Miss Stone had been holding her usual Summer school for Bible workers at Banskio Macedonia.

On Sept. 3 a party of six students from the Collegiate institute at Samobor, three of whom were Bulgarian, were with Miss Tskila, who had spent several years in America; Mrs. Coshora and Miss Stone started for Djumak, twelve hours' travel. From there they were to go to their different homes.

At 4:30 that afternoon, they were resting in the mountains, Miss Stone and Mrs. Tskila being on horse back and the rest on foot. They were surrounded by four men. They ordered the party to march and drove them up the steep mountain side. After going an hour's distance, the brigands stopped and demanded their money. They took what gold they had, but returned the silver.

"When this was done, one of them said to Miss Stone: 'We want you,' and ordered her and Mrs. Tskila to go with them. She made no remonstrance."

First Witness for Schley.

Interesting Turn Given to Proceedings of Court of Inquiry Tuesday Afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—An interesting turn was given to the Schley court of inquiry to-day by the introduction of the first witness in Admiral Schley's behalf. This was William J. Doyle, watch-officer on board the flagship Brooklyn. He was under examination by Mr. Rayner, in the interest of the Admiral when the court adjourned for the day.

Before undergoing examination at Mr. Rayner's hand, Lieutenant Doyle explained his part in the battle of July 3rd and his original entry in the ship's log concerning the famous loop and the alteration of that entry because he subsequently discovered that his first entry had been an error. Lieutenant Commander Sharp, who commanded the Vixen during the Spanish war, also gave his testimony during the day, giving special attention to notes of the battle of July 3rd, made by Lieutenant Harlow of his ship.

Just before the adjournment for the day the court announced its decision not to allow any question concerning the blockade of Santiago after July 1st, when Commander-in-Chief Admiral Sampson arrived there.
