She was Captured by Bulgarian Brigands

Miss Ellen H. Stone, one of the missionaries in Turkey of the American board of foreigh missions, whose capture by brig-ands was reported in press dispatches from Constantinople, is not held by the Turkish brigands, but by Bulgarians across the Turkish border.

This information came to the state department on Tuesday morning in a cable dispatch from Charles M. Dickinson, United States consul-general at Constantinople. He reports to the department that Miss Stone is held for ransom by a band of Bulgarian brigands that came across the border, captured Miss Stone and her com-panion between Bausko and Djoumania and retreated with them into Bulgaria.

Mr. Dickinson explains that, while the Bulgarian government is doing all in its power, the authorities are impotent and cannot secure the release of the missionary. They have succeeded in locating the two women, however, and learned that they are well taken care of. The brigands have renewed their promise to release Miss Stone immediately upon the payment of ransom, and Mr. Dickinson has inquired of the department whether the American board of foreign misssons will pay the ransom and secure Miss Stone's

Details of the recent capture of Miss Stone, the American missionary, and one of her helpers by brigands, in Turkey, are given in a letter just received in Boston by the American board of commissioners for foreign missions. The fact became known to one of, the missionaries of the board of Samokoo, European Turkey, to which members of the party with whom Miss Stone and her assistant, Lorenzo Snow, fifth president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, capture was made and who fled on being released by the outlaws. They could give no information as to where Miss Stone and unexpectedly at his private residence, the her companion were taken, as the two historic bee hive house, in Salt Lake City, women disappeared in the night, and the was hypostatic congestion, superinduced by aggravated bronchitis. At length a stopping place was reached. The next morning Miss Stone and Mrs. Tsilka were missed, and it was apparent that the main body of the outlaws had departed leaving only a guard, Later this guard compelled the captives to give up their watches, money and jewelry, after which they disappeared up the mountain, leaving the missionaries free.

The authorities did not learn of the cap ture until nearly 24 hours after it had taken place, and this, is thought, gave the brigands all the chance they needed to reach a secure hiding place. It is thought that they may have entered Bulgaria, and the army has been given special instructions. Mr. Smith will be the next president of the ions to guard the border closely and follow President Snow leaves a large family, up any tra up any traces of the marauders which they

Port Royal Sealed.

The Room Containing the Dead Miners Closed

The rooms in the Port Royal mine holding the remains of John Peebles has been sealed and will never be re-opened. Down in the black depths the body of John Peebles, victim of the terrible explosion of last June, will wait the resurrection. Such is the tomb of John Peebles. Peebles was among the thirteen unfortunate miners killed by the explosion. For three long months this uncertainty lingered and the wives of the dead wept with their children for the husbands and fathers who had died thirty years, commencing with 1852, he was a member of the Territorial Legislature The spirit of sup The spirit of superstition drifted into the mine and the miners became timid. They did not want to work in a place where founded and named Brigham City, in thirteen bodies were known to be. It was northern Utah, which was his home for said that strange noises had been heard northern Utah, which was his home for many years. In 1886, during the agitation from the death section. The infection of ghostly fear spread and man by man the miners left for other workings. Many of the miners are intelligent Americans. The Pittsburg Coal company at last realized the necessity of taking steps to recover the bodies. Mine Inspector Callaghan, of the Ninth district, was called to the mine. The search was made and twelve of the > Peebles still waited and wept with her children. From the stories of others, it has been gleaned that the open lamp of John Peebles started the fire. Near where he was working is a slate fall more than 200 "W feet in length and of such a depth as to render the room a very death trap. Some-Peebles. To remove the fall would take days of labor, and the work would be surrounded with extreme hazard. Inspector Dixon had exhausted all his resources. Peebles could not be reached. So a con ference of the mine officials was held and it was decided that the entrances should be sealed and the place where Peebles died should be his grave. So they sealed up the few rooms surrounding the dead.

Peter Corbett, manager of the Angora Goat company, with farms to be located in Garret county, Maryland, and in West Vir-ginia, called at the office of the state bureau of immigration in Baltimore, through whose efforts the company has located in Maryland.

J. O. McDonald agent for the National Angora Goat and cattle company, was also present and closed a contract with Manager Corbett by which Mr. McDonald is to deliver to Mr. Corbett 1,000 does and 20 bucks at the Maryland company's near Oakland. Manager Corbett stated that State Senator A. R. Unger, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., would be president of the organization and that a number of Baltimore capitalists were interested in the movement. Speaking of the enterprise, Mr Corbett said;

"We propose to enter into the raising of goats on a large scale, believing that the receipts will yield a large revenue. The goats will increase at the rate of 90 per cent a year. A full grown goat will bear six pounds of fleece for which there is always a great demand, and readily brings in the market 45 cents a pound. A kid will yield three pounds a year, which will bring the same figures in the market. The pelts are considered very valuable, as there is always a strong demand for them. The meat in many places is considered the choicest of

"In addition to the production of fleece the goats are invaluable as cleaners of land. I have had much experience in handling Angora goats, and it is low estimate to say that a flock of 1,000 goats will in five years clean up the densest entanglement that can possibly grow on 5,000 acres of land. As soon as this land, which we have secured is cleared of its undergroth by the goats we proposed to put it down in blue grass and go extensively into the breeding of fine

"Idle Tears."

Chemically They are Just Lime and Soda from the Lachrymal Glands.

Tears have their functional duty to ac-complish, like every other fluid of the body, and the lachrymal gland is not placed behind the eye simply to fill space or to give expression to emotion. The chemical properties of tears consist of phosphate of lime and soda, making them very salty but nev-er bitter. Their action on the eye is very beneficial, and here consists their prescribed duty of the body, washing thoroughly that sensitive organ, which allows no foreign fluid to do the same work. Nothing cleanses the eye like a good, salty shower bath, and medical art has followed nature's law in this respect, advocating the invigorating solution for any distressed condition of the optics. Tears do not weaken the eyesight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tender-er orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech implying the lack of balmy tears, that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood. The reason some weep more easily than others and all more readily than the sterner sex has not its difference in the strength of the tear gland, but in the possession of a more delicate nerve system. The nerve fibers about the glands vibrate more easily, causing a downpour from the watery sac. Men are not nearly so sensitive to emotion; their sympathetic nature—the term is used in a medical sense-is less developed, and the eye gland is, therefore protected from shocks. Consequently, a man should thank the formation of his nerve nature when he contemptously scorns tears as a woman's practice. Between man and monkey there is this essential difference of tears. An ape cannot weep, not so much because its emotional powers are undeveloped as the fact that the lachrymal gland was omitted in his optical make up.

Childish Rivalry.

Johnnie, aged eight, has been in the house for a week in consequence of a head-er from his "bike." In this time he and Percy, aged six, have exhausted all their usual themes for disputes. Yesterday this was over heard in the nursery : "Mamma, did Perce ever have whooping cough?"

"Well, then, did he have it as as bad as I did ?" "No, not quite."

"There Percy." "Well, anyhow" (this from another pice). "I had measles worsen'r you, and "You didu't."

"I did. too." 'Mamma! mamma! Did Percy have measles before I did?" "Yes, he had it first, and you took it from him."

Percy now triumphed audibly and vociferously. Then Johnnie rallied and crush-Well, anyhow, I broke my collar bone, and it cost $25." Percy had no more to say. It is expected that as soon as the rain stops he will go straight out and break his collar bone.

Lightning Ride on An Auto

W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., and Fournier Go 1:06, 4-5-8ix Miles Traveled in Faster Average Time Than. is Made by Railroad Express.

An automobile running on an oval trotting track at Empire City park, New York, on Thursday, traveled one, two, three, four, five and six miles, each and all in faster time than any man, machine or beast ever went around a track before. The time for the 6 miles was 6 minutes 47 seconds. The fastest mile, the third, was done in one minute 6 4-5 seconds.

This is the fastest time than has ever been made on a straightway road by horse, bicycle or any machine except a locomotive running on rails. The only feat that com-pares with it is that of Charles Murphy, who rede a bicycle under abnormal conditions behind a locomotive trailing a car with a hood, in 57 4.5 seconds in 1899.

The automobile that performed the great feat was one of French make. It was manipulated by Henri Fournier, and his companion was William K. Vanderbilt jr., who was a guest. The rules require two men to be in the motor vehicle in any record making or endurance test. The second man is needed for ballast and usually he is a mechanic. Mr. Vanderbilt did not act as a mechanic. Fournier did it all, and the very young millionaire simply sate erect and smiled and chatted as if out for a pleasure trip while going around the one mile dirt girdle at a faster clip than he had ever traveled before unless it was behind one of the locomotives in which he holds a share of interest. About five hundred persons watched agape while the huge machine whizzed about the track with many a "flirt and flutter," half concealed each time in the dust that had rolled up behind it in the previous circuit, for so fast did the snorting motor wagon fly that after the first mile it continually reached its own dust raised in the previous lap of the huge one Official Report Shows that the Steel Trust is Doing an Enormous and a Profitable Business.

Net earnings of the United States Steel corporation for the first six months of the company's career, as announced officially on Tuesday, are $54,954,871. These figures were given out after a meeting of the company's directors, at which the usual quarterly dividends were declared on both the common and preferred stock.

The figures show an enormous business, which was not injured, apparently, by the steel strike.

President Schwab tells the story of the company's operations since April last, when the 'Billon Dollar Trust' was launched, in the following figures :

Earnings Operation. $7,35,744 9,612,349 9,349,747 9,580,151 9,810,880 9,200,000 September (estimated).

The actual financial requirements of the steel trust, which include dividends at the rate of seven per cent. on the preferred and four per cent. on the common stock, together with the interest on the bonds, are $71,021,907 for a full year. So far this year it can be seen the company has earned within $16,000,000 of this required

During July and August, the months when the steel strike was waged the fiercest, the earnings of the steet trust did not show any decrease.
