TAKING EFFECT IN SEPT. 1900, the General Courses have been extensively modified, so as to furnish a much more varied range of electives, after the Freshman year, than heretofore, including History; the English, French, German, Spanish, Latin and Greek Languages and Literating History; the English, French, German, Spanish, Latin and Greek Languages and Literating; Psychology; Ethics, Pedagogies, and Political Science. There courses are especially adapted to the wants of those who seek either the most thorough training for the Profession of Teaching, or a general College Education.

The courses in Chemistry, Civil, Electrical, Mechanical and Mining Engineering are among the very best in the United States. Graduates have no difficulty in securing and holding positions.

YOUNG WOMEN are admitted to all courses on the same terms as Young Men.

THE WINTER SESSION opens January 12th, 1902. For specimen examination papers or for catalogue giving full information repsecting courses of study, expenses, etc., and showing positions held by graduates, address

Palace of Nebuchadnezzar.

Dr. Koldevey, German Explorer, Believes He Has

Dr. Koldevey has sent to Berlin a further report about the progress of the excava-tions he and his German colleagues are carrying on at the supposed site of Nebu-chadnezzar's palace in ancient Babylon.

He says he has discovered in the south

quarter of the town a square courtyard surrounded by walls, the southern of which is a very fine piece of architecture.

The wall is faced with glazed tiles which seem to have wonderfully withstood the ravages of time, and are artistically or-namented with flowers and tracery; but many of the tiles have fallen out of their places to the ground, and they have had to be carefully pieced together. This has been successfully done and the result shows a beautiful design. The design is now on the way to Germany.

In the courtyard were also found several bricks, evidently part of the mosaic pave-ment, the design of which was composed of enamels and glass-raised work, as well as coffins, coins, fragments of stone inscrip-tions, and a broad slab on which was a picture of the Babylonian idea of hell.

Dr. Kolderey considers the recent finds as fully proving that this part of the city contained what was doubtless the finest of the Babylonian palaces and consequently the palace of Nebuchadnezzar. Meanwhile excavations are being carried on in the business quarter of Old Babylon, where in 1874 the entire business documents of the Babylonish firm "Egibi & Son"—possibly the oldest house of business "of which the world holds record," to use Tennyson's phrase-were dug out by Arabians. These documents—unpaid bills, day books, ledgers, &c—were made of hardened clay, and the wonder is that they had not crumbled away during the course of the centuries. In one case it is clear that the unpaid bills are not only of historic interest, for the Babylonian legal period of lim

Who They Are and How They Voted.

Harris and Coray Contrasted in the Search-light of Truth .- Records in the Last Legislature all that is Needed to Brand Harris a Corruptionist and Coray an Honest Man -Read the Records-They do not Lie, and Vote for an Honest Man for State Treasurer.

Apropos of the selection of Representative Coray as the fusion candidate for State Treasurer, the accompanying statement has been prepared.

Elisha A. Coray was anti-machine Republican member of the last Legislature from Luzerne county, and Frank G. Harris was a machine Republican member from Clearfield county.

Harris is the nominee of the Quay machine for State Treasurer. Coray, as above stated, is the candidate on the Union Party and Democratic fusion tickets. Coray or Harris, one or the other, will have personal charge of the State Treasury for two years, beginning the first Monday in May next. It is frequently a difficult matter for the public to obtain accurate knowledge as to the relative merits of rival candidates for office. That is not true of the cases of Coray and Harris. The records of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives of 1901 provide a basis for an absolutely reliable and unbiased comparison.

These records show which man went to Harrisburg to represent the people, and which to obey the orders of the bosses.

From these records the facts presented in the accompanying list were culled. They do not constitute a complete showing of the good bills Harris opposed and Coray supported, and the evil measures that won the approval of Harris and the negative vote of Coray.

They include, however, the majority of the more notorious propositions before the Legislature, and cover a diversity of subjects calculated to show clearly the characteristics of the two men.

Harris, it will be seen, voted for all the great "Rippers" and "grabs" by which the Quay machine fattened at the expense of the people. Coray, on the other hand, opposed each and all of those iniquitous measures.

Harris helped to pass the Gang's $4,000,000 Capitol job, but refused to vote that the public schools should be paid at once the $1,000,000, of which Governor Stone had deprived them by his unwarranted veto. Coray voted against the Capitol steal and for the schools

Harrs, who now asks the wage-earners of the State to vote him into a fat office, was a notorious "dodger" on all the bills affecting labor's interests. It is shown here how he refrained from voting on any of the measures to relieve the condition of the anthracite miners. Harris knew he was to be the machine's nominee for State Treasurer, and he feared to antagonize the labor vote by openly opposing these bills. But he was still more afraid of the influence of the great corporations which demanded the death of these and other similar measures.

So Harris took to the "fence" and declined to vote on the laborers bills, Coray, on the contrary, consistently voted for and publicly advocated every bill for the benefit of the workingman.

Harris' vote assisted the Quay machine to violate its ballot reform pledges and to perpetuate the present system of fraudulent voting. Coray worked earnestly for ballot reform.

Harris voted to burden the taxpayers with the expenses of needless courts which Coray opposed. Harris helped kill the bill that Coray and others tried to pass, to compel State officials to draw their annual reports so as to show the people what has been done with their money. Harris voted to throttle the newspapers, while Coray stood for the freedom of the

These are only a few of the more striking illustrations, but they serve to show that Harris voted as the machine bosses directed and that Coray voted for the best interests of the people and according to the dictates of his conscience.

Lost Child Found

Believed That Kidnappers Took A York County Girl.

Catherine, 23 months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beck, of Logansville, near York who it is thought was kidnapped was found three-quarters of a mile her home Saturday morning. The little girl, whose cries were heard by a boy, was discovered behind a pile of rails in Samuel Hartman's woods. Ever since the child disappeared on Thursday searching parties have been scouring the country, and only yesterday Hartman's woods were gone through.

The theory that the child was stolen is $30 a month, nearly all her time would have been occupied and she would have been away from home." now fully believed, and that the party finding the chase too hot took her to the woods last night. Committed Without Bail. The Alleged Abductors of Miss Goodrich Given a PHILADELPHIA. October 14.—Howard K. Sloan, D. K. Finlay, Oscar Dunlap and Henry E. Wallace, the four men accused of abducting Mabel Goodrich, the proprietress of a disreputable house and robbing her of money and diamonds valued at $2.500, were given a final hearing to-day and committed without bail for trial. The charges against Sloan, Finlay and Dunlap are conspiracy, assault and battery and kidnaping. Wallace is charged with aiding and abetting the kidnapers.

The testimony presented to-day was in corroboration of the story told by the Goodrich woman at the preliminary hearing. Typewritten statements by Sloan, Finlay and Dunlap were offered in evidence but were not read in court, and the police authorities declined to make public their contents. Counsel for the defendants announced that no witnesses for the defense would be called until the case came up for Twelve Thousand Dollars.

David M. Wolf, bookkeeper and general clerk in the First National bank, of Tyrone, has confessed to emblezzling $12,000 of the bank's funds. This announcement was made on Wednesday, by D. H. Kloss, a cashier of the bank. While Wolf was on a vacation last week the cashier examined his books, and, it is alleged, found many fictitions credits. When the bookeeper returned on Saturday he was asked for an explanation, and at once admitted his guilt. Later he made a full confession of all his peculations, which had been going on several years. Wolf was bonded for $10,000 by a surety company of New York. He is a native of Martinsburg, Blair county, aged 31, and has a wife and two children. He stood well in the community, and was not known to have expensive habits. The bank has taken no action against him. Great Steamer Launched.

Girl Poisoned By Eating Cloves. Her Life Saved With Difficulty By Use of Oxygen.

Miss Anna Van Zuiden, of Sioux City, Ia., 20 years old, likes cloves and ate a large quantity of them Saturday. She was awakened in the night by a feeling of suffocation. A physician found her lips and tongue turning blue and her pulse going up, while her extremities were cold and powerless. She rapidly grew worse, despite his efforts, and he called two other physicians in consultation. The girl was eventually saved by administering oxygen.

The only explanation the doctors could give for the attack was that cloves contain one of the phenol or coal tar com-pounds, the action of which is similar to that of carbolic acid.
