Revealed in Sleep.

Crimes Confessed by their Perpetrators While Slumbering. Darmatic Episode That Follawed a Wedding In a Prussian Town-A Doze That Brought Retribution. Overheard In a Lodging House.

Criminologists say that the greatest terror that afflicts that fraction of humanity suffering from an uneasy conscience is not dread of the police by any means nor awe of any other acknowledged enemy of law defiers. What the criminal dreads is sleep. Sleep is, it appears, the friend of the righteous only. To men with the knowl-edge of dark deeds stored within them sleep is the most treacherous of foes. The countless poems that have been written in praise of it very naturally appear as so much cold blooded mockery to such as are in hourly dread of betraying themselves under its influence. An untold number of crimes have been confessed by their perpetrators during sleep. Is it any wonder that those conscious of irregularities of conduct prefer to remain awake?

Perhaps the entire history of crime rontains no more dramatic episode than that which occurred some years since in a Prussian township. The husband of a certain attractive young woman had van-ished in a mysterious manner from his home, and all attempts to trace his whereabouts failed completely. Mean-time a neighbor called Schmidt, who had been devoted to the young wife before her marriage, reappeared on the scene and paid her assiduous attentions. So successfully did he press his suit that within a year of his rival's disappearance the woman consented to marry him, and they were united at the parish church.

Now comes the extraordinary sequel. On the second night following the wed-ding the newly made bride lay awake, unable to slumber. Presently there came a gurgling cry from the sleeping form beside her, and a moment later the man in a loud voice proclaimed that he had killed the missing husband and had buried the body in a neighboring wood. This statement the sleeper reiterated several times, naming the exact spot where the corpse lay interred.

The wife, well nigh mad with terror, drank in the confession and next morning carried the remarkable story to the police was removed to his home and attended by Dr. Oscar King, dean of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago. The place named by the sleeper was searched, and, sure enough, the body The nurderer was at once arrested and brought to his trial, where he was found mately Chapman recovered, but he remains guilty and sentenced to death. He went to the scaffold cool and cynical, having been sent there by his own confession, made during sleep. Somewhat similar in several details was the case of an Austrian peasant who murd red his friend in order that he might woo the latter's sweetheart, a girl of unusual beauty. All attempts to trace the missing man had failed, and doubtless the affair would have remained a mystery again removed, which pressed against the to the end of time had not the criminal brain, and since then Chapman has been signed his own death warrant by confessing the crime while dozing by the fire in a friend's cottage. One of Barnum's Schemes "One of P. T. Barnum's most successful feats of bamboozlement," said a New Yorker, "was played upon the Canadian customs authorities. The veteran show-man's tours were always planned far in advance, and one winter he made up his mind to take his great circus and menag-erie through Canada during the summer after the next. This gave him about two years in which to mature his plans. "One important item of a showman's expenses consists of his advertising pla cards, and Mr. Barnum was always lavish with these gaudy prints. He was aware that the Canadian government imposed a high duty on this class of imports, and yet he wanted to paint Canada red, yellow, blue and green with a lavish ness that no showman had ever displayed there before. "Now, there was no printing house anywhere in Canada that could begin to turn out the kind of work that Mr. Barnum required either in size, color or fin ish. Nevertheless his immense posters came under the same classification as much smaller lithographs and printed colored matter did, and he knew that the Dominion custom authorities would not abate one jot of the full toll, but would rather rejoice at the opportunity to mulct the foreigner who would convey so much money out of a country. "So Barnum studied the question awhile and finally sent on at once a great | chine. lot of circus posters of the most gorgeous designs whereon yellow lions and clawed striped tigers and brown bears fought with blue hippopotamuses till gore flowed into beautiful crimson backgrounds. No agent appeared when the posters were de-tained by the Canadian customs officers to pay the duty. They were accordingly held for twelve months, then duly advertised for sale for three months more and finally put up at auction with a lot of other unclaimed parcels and were designated in the catalogue merely as 'colored prints.

"Nobody took any interest in them when the auctioneer called for a bid, and finally the whole batch was knocked down for a song to a secret agent of the circus who had been sent up by Mr. Barnum for that express purpose.'

Select Their Own Coffins.

The undertaker nodded in a friendly manner. "You look healthy enough," he said.

"I am healthy," laughed the caller. "Ah," said he, "then you didn't come to pick out a coffin for yourself?"

"Hardly," was the startled reply. "Do people come here for that purpose?" "Lots of 'em," said he. "A good many more people pick out their own coffins now than when I first started in business. Then it was a novelty for a man to come in and ask to be shown a comfortable coffin that would fit him, but now such re-quests are common. Often people in seemingly good health undertake such a quest. They seem to regard the selection of a casket of equal importance with the making of a will and do not deem it advisable to wait until sickness comes before making preparations for the inevita-

Had Him Fast.

If Paris is prolific in producing thieves it also is most fruitful in expedients for catching them. Dr. Rousseau, a dentist, living in the Rue des Martyres, adopted a novel and amusing method. Dr. Rousseau and his wife were walking on the boulevards when a young man snatched a handbag containing jewelry and money which madame was carrying.

The dentist was unable to catch the thief, but had time to distinguish his features, though he never expected to see him again. By a curious coincidence, however, the thief came to the dentist's a day or two later to have his teeth attended to.

Dr. Rousseau, concealing his astonishment, asked him to take a seat, as it would be necessary to take an impression of the jaw, and this he immediately proceeded to do. When the dentist considered that the plaster was sufficiently solid, he calmly explained to the helpless thief that he was at his mercy and had better follow him quietly to the police sta-affects my head and makes it pain."

A very sad story comes from Westport, Clinton county, Saturday Joseph P. De-Hass, his 14 year old son Roy. and Messrs Calhoun and Summerson started on a hunting trip up Two Mile run. When about three miles west of Westport the men struck a trail. They placed Roy on guard while the men started out in different directions.

About an hour later Roy saw an object in the bushes a short distance away. Thinking it was a bear, he put up his gun. Just as he pulled the trigger, the object rose and Roy saw the face of his father. It was too late, however, for Roy to hold the trigger and the father received the entire load in his face.

Roy hastily ran to his father, but found him unconscious. He took off his coat, rolled it up and placed it under his father's stood by him calling to him to head. He induce his parent to speak to him, but he received no response.

The boy then climbed a tree and yelled many times with the view of attracting the attention of the other two men. About 3 hours after the accident occurred the men heard the boy's cries and came towards him. By the time they reached the spot they found the boy crazed with grief. He gave way in a collapse and for a short time his condition was such that the men feared that he, too, would die. They finally succeeded in restoring the son and in getting him on his feet.

Messrs Calhoun and Summerson then picked up the dead body and carried it to the home at Westport.

Mr. DeHass was 45 years old. He leaves a wife and six children, one of the latter being Mrs. Claire Berry, of Beech Creek. He was also a brother of John and William DeHass, of Beech Creek, and of Mrs. Bossert. of Mill Hall.-Lock Haven Democrat.

Have you ever played "cards in the hat?" Take an old high hat-or a deep bowl or basket about the size of a hat will do-place it upon the floor, stand at a point about ten feet from it-the distance is optional-and hold in your hands a pack of ordinary playing cards. From the top of the pack take one card and toss it, or try to, into the hat. In like manner toss the others until the pack is gone. A card resting upon the rim of the hat counts half; those going in, one point each. Great skill may be required after practice, and when several are playing it is real sport.

One Way of Making a Brother Get Up in the Morning.

Roy Myers, aged twelve years, was shot in the leg Saturday by his elder brother at their home at Markleysburg, Fayette county. Roy was called early in the morning by his brother, and because he did not respond the brother fired a bullet at him, the lead entering the leg between the knee and ankle. The bone was badly shattered, and the attending physician—Lewis T. Mitchell—is of the opinion that the mem-her will have to be amputated.

Less tragic in tone, but sufficiently interesting, was the case which occurred, not so very long ago, in an American sleeping car, when a detective, who chanced to be occupying a certain lower berth, heard the sleeper above him burst forth into a long winded confession regarding several jewel robberies wherein he had taken part. Much impressed by the slumbering fellow's words, the official kept an eye on him. Further inquiries proved that the confession had been an exact record of what had taken place. Many years ago a Liverpool common lodging house was the scene of a sleeping criminal's confession. The room was oc-cupied by himself and one other, a young sailor, who was on his "beam ends" well nigh penniless for want of a ship. While the sailor was lying awake, contemplating his dire position, he suddenly heard a curious and ghastly laugh issue from his room companion's lips. The laugh was followed by a long and rambling description of a murder he had committed in a suburb of Liverpool. and so horrible were the details uttered by the unconscious tongue that the sailor came near to fainting with terror. However, he mastered his emotion and, having assumed some clothing, crept down stairs and informed the landlord of what had occurred. The latter at once fetched a policeman, who accompanied him to the bedroom, where the constable immediately recognized the sleeper as the man "wanted" for the crime in question. was, of course, arrested, and at the trial which followed he was found guilty and sentenced to death. As for the sailor, he came in for a considerable reward from the murdered man's relatives.

Perhaps one of the most extraordinary cases of a crime revealed during sleep was that of a Polish peddler who had killed a merchant on the road to Cdessa and robbed him of a huge sum. The confession was made while the criminal was dozing on a sledge and was, of course, overheard by the driver thereof. The barrenness of the snowclad landscape and the speed at which the sled was traveling added to the weirdness of the confession, and as a result of the same and of investigations which followed it the peddler was convicted and condemned to lifelong imprisonment.-Pearson's Weekly.

Sulphur.

Sulphur occurs very widely distributed in the mineral kingdom, partly free and partly combined with other elements. The free sulphur is either found pure in regularly formed crystals or intimately mixed with earthly matters. In its native state sulphur is largely found in Sicily and Ita ly and as a general rule in abundant volcanic districts. The brittleness of sulphur renders the cleavage imperfect. Sulphuric acid is an important combination and a very dangerous one in inexperienced hands. Sulphur combined with a number of elements, such as iron, copper, lead, etc., furnishes the sulphides. In the vegetable kingdom sulphur is a small constituent of the albuminous bodies and of certain volatile irritant oils; moreover, the vegetable juices contain it in the form of certain sulphates.
