The Reunion of the 148th.

The Survivors of a Valiant Regiment Assembled a Bellefonte-Splendid Weather and an Interesting Program Lend to the Interest of the Gathering-An Historical Sketch of the Regiment.

The reunion of the 148th Reg. Pa. Vols. which was held in Bellefonte on Wednesday and Thursday attracted just 150 of the possibly 350 survivors of that valiant regiment to this place. Owing to the extraordinary demand on our space for this issue it is impossible to publish a full report of the proceedings, but the program published dria railroad to Morrisville, a short distance in a recent issue of the WATCHMAN was from Kelly's Ford, on the Rappahannock.

"In the month of September of this year carried out to the letter. The three great commanders of the Regiment. Gens. Brooke, Mulholland and Beaver were all here, hand-in-glove, with their old soldiers and Crossing the Rappahannock, we first push-

The exercises were held in the court house and in Gregg post rooms and in the latter place the visitors were served with an elaborate dinner on Wednesday even-a digest of the late Maj. R. H. Foster's contribution to the Linn history of Centre county. In another column will be found a complete roster of the regiment.

Early in the month of August, 1862, and partly with a view to save Centre county from the operations of the draft then pending, it was thought that a regiment of volunteers might be raised in addition to the numerous companies already in the field from the county. By energetic and unceasing efforts, before the end of the month seven companies, numbering over six hundred men, were recruited and taken to Camp Curtin, at Harrisburg. For the time being it was thought this about exhausted the material of the county. These seven companies were composed entirely of Centre county men, except a sturdy little band from the wilds of Cameron county who joined Company F at Harrisburg. Three other companies, two from Jefferson and Indiana and one from Clarion, were united to the seven, and formed the regiment known as the One Hundred and fortyeighth. The regiment was organized on the 8th day of September, 1862. tre county companies were A, B, C, D, F, G, and H; the Jefferson and Indiana and Clarion companies, E, I, and K. The regiment marched from Camp Curtin on the evening of the 8th of September, and immediately began its career of service.

"The Army of the Potomac had been withdrawn from the Peninsula, Pope had been forced back to the defenses of Washington, and Lee was about to invade Maryland. To protect the northern communications with Washington, therefore, became an urgent necessity, and the One Hundred and Forty-eighth was one of the regiments placed on duty along the railway north of Baltimore. Starting by rail from Harrisburg, the morning of the 9th found us at Cockeysville, fifteen miles from Baltimore. Camps were formed at Cockeysville, Luthersville, Gunpowder Bridge, Phœnix and Glencoe, covering about twelve miles of the railroad, with the regimental headquarters at Cockeysville. The battles of South Mountain and Antietam were in the meantime fought, and the tide of war again flowed back to Virginia. We still remained in Maryland, and under a rigid system of drills and inspections the regiment made rapid progress in dicipline, and in all the duties of the soldier in camp. "The armies in Virginia confronted each by ferry boats across the Potomac to Acquia Creek Landing, another march of twelve or fifteen miles on a cold, dreary, drizzly afternoon and night to Falmouth, and on the 18th of December we became a part of the Army of the Potomac, joining the First Brigade, First Division, Second Army Corps. From that time until the end of the war the fortunes of the regiment were identified with the operations of that army. "We marched to Chancellorsville, and in the struggle of May 1, 2 and 3, 1863, the metal of our ranks was first tested, and the of the battle was unfortunate and we tramped back, through mud and rain, to the old camp near Falmouth. The prospect was not encouraging. Among those who fell were Lieuts. William H. Bible and Frank Stevenson, both of Company C. Both were well known in the regiment and sadly missed. Lient. Bible was cast in nature's biggest mould. His tall, commanding form always attracted notice, while his many excellent traits had drawn nearly all of his brother officers towards him in ties of warm friendship. Lieut. Stevenson also had many friends, who will not soon permit the remembrance of his happy, jovial disposition to drop from memory which culminated at Gettysburg, and early in June, with the Second Corps, we started in the same direction, marching by way of Stratford, Dumfries, and Occoquan to Centreville, and from Centreville to Thoroughfare Gap, where we remained a number of days. Thence we moved by Gum Springs to the Potomac, which was crossed at Edwards Ferry, and we reached the Monocacy, near Frederick, in Maryland, on the 28th day of June. On the 29th we marched to Uniontown, and it will long be remembered by those who made it as the big march The distance was thirty-five miles and the time twelve hours. It was an exhausting Gettysburg by way of Taneytown. It is a singular fact that while approaching Gettysburg not a sound of the conflict then raging between the advance portions of the two between the advance portions of the two part of October changed its arms for the pight of armies reached our ears, and not until body of the lamented Gen. Reynolds passed us, did we know that there had been a fight that day. During the night of the 1st line, and carried it, capturing part of a Virwe bivoucked to the right of the Taneytown road, within two miles of the battle field. On the morning of the 2nd we advanced to the front, after an inspection of arms, prepared to bear our part in the great battle of the war.

"The One Hundred and Forty-eighth went through the actions of the two days went through the actions of the two days with great credit, and suffered severely in killed and wounded. The heaviest loss occurred in the evening of the 2d, while the regiment was engaged in front of Round Top. Capt. Robert M. Forster, of Company C, was killed, and Lieut. John A. Bayard, of Company H, mortally wounded.

"After the battle we remained on the field over the 4th, and then mayed around the surrender of the confidence of the con

Lee withdrew across the river, and we then marched to Harper's Ferry, passing over the old battle field of Antietam, and in a very few days we were again upon the 'sacred soil' of Virginia. We marched down Loudon valley, stopping at Suicker's, Ashby's and Manassas Gaps, without encountering the enemy. Then we reached Warrenton, and from there moved across the Orange and Alexan-

After remaining here for a week or ten days, we were relieved by a division of the Sixth Corps, and marched backed to the neighborhood of Culpeper Court House. Lee was soon discovered to be moving on the flank of the army, and on The following history of the regiment is the 13th of October we began the retro-direct of the late Mai, R. H. It was a race to Bull Run, and the army of the Potomac won. Forward again, and we were soon beyond the Rappahannock, making the fifth time that we crossed and recrossed that stream thus far in this campaign. On the 26th of November we started across the Rapidan to Mine Run. Nothing came of the movement, and the morning of the 1st of December found us back on the Culpeper side of the river. In these manœuvres no general engagement took place, but our marches and countermarches by day and night were still attended with great toil and many hardships. On the 7th we went into winter quarters near Stevensburg. Here we remained, with the exception of a day or two spent at Morton's Ford, on the Rapidan, where we made a demonstration in aid of a cavalry raid, until May, 1864. We were in comfortable cantonments, and the winter passed pleasantly enough for soldiers. The regiment received an addition to its strength of two hundred and eighty three drafted men and substitutes in fall of 1863. These, with men returned from the hospitals, gave us a regiment once more strong in num-

"May 3, 1864, we broke camp and entered upon that series of fierce and bloody struggles which marked the way from the Rapidan to the James. We crossed the river at Ely's Ford on the morning of the 4th, and at noon of that day were at Chancellorsville, the scene of our first fight just one year before, where we bivouacked on the old battle field. On the morning of the 5th we moved a few miles to the right. and took position on the left of the line of battle in what is historic as the battle of the Wilderness. In this grapple of giants we were fortunate enough to suffer no great The 5th, 6th, and 7th passed, and we then followed in the flank movements to Spottsylvania, our corps keeping position along the Brock road until everything had passed. We spent one day at Todd's Tavern, and reached the Po River on the 9th. In the action of the 10th the regiment was roughly handled, and met with severe losses in killed, wounded, and missing, the aggregate being about two hundred. On the 12th, in the famous and brilliant charge of the Second Corps, the regiment was prominent and distinguished. The action other at Fredericksburg, and in the month of December the One Hundred and Forty- began at early dawn, continued throughout most of the day, and cost us another eighth in these operations were Capt. Thomas Core, of Company K. Lieut. John A. McGuire, of Company I, and Lieut. James B. Cook, of Company H.

"From the lines around Spottsylvania

another flank movement was begun on the night of the 20th of May, and on the 23rd we reached the north bank of the North Anna River, only to find the enemy in position on the opposite side. On the 24th the Second Corps crossed over and took up a position for assault. No general attack was made, however, and during the night of the 26th we withdrew. The movement back commenced at dark, but the skirmishers were not withdrawn until day began to dawn on the morning of 27th. They were closely followed, and some of the One Hundred and Forty-eighth made a narrow escape from capture. The turning move-ment was continued to the left, and after crossing the Pamunkey River near Hanovertown, the enemy was again encountered in position at Cold Harbor, in front of the Chickahominy. This was on the 3d of June. An assault was gallantly made, but in the end it was not successful. Here Lieut. Jacob S. Lander, of Company C. was killed. The lines remained for some days in close contact, and preparations were made for siege operations, but they were soon abandoned. It was then determined to move south of the James River, and Petersburg was reached on the 16th of June. In the operations around Peters-"Lee had begun his movement north burg the regiment was constantly engaged. It took part in actions of the 16th, 18th and 22d, experienced hard fighting, and met with very serious losses. On the 22d the flank of the division was turned and a considerable number of officers and men of the regiment were taken prisoners. Capt. Jacob B. Edmonds, of Company C, was killed, and Lieut. Wesley W. Bierly, of Company A, was mortally wounded. Lieut. Bierly fell into the hands of the enemy and died in Petersburg. The regiment was also engaged at Deep Bottom, July 28th, at Strawberry Plains, August 14th, and at Ream's Station, August 25th. In the last action Lieut. David G. Ralston, another officer of Company C, was killed. "Upon the return of the regiment to the armies reached our ears, and not until about dark, when an ambulauce with the body of the lamented Gen. Reynolds passmen of the One Hundred and Forty-eighth made an assault upon a fort in the enemy's ginia regiment. The prisoners were sent to the rear, but as the assaulting party was not supported the fort could not long be held, and in falling back a considerable number were killed and wounded. It was a brilliant feat of arms, and added to the reputation of the regiment, but it may be considered doubtful whether the gain compensated for the loss. Following this, the regiment did garrison duty in Forts Samp-

field over the 4th, and then moved around at Hatcher's Run, March 25th, where Lieut
