Wonderful Tom Stringer.

A Boy Who is in Some Ways as Remarkable as Helen

The boy who has nothing but poverty between him and success in life, the boy who gets up well and strong 365 days in the year, has no cause to feel that he is handicapped by his environment. Health also declares to be "no good" and he does and strength, with the full possession of not like it. He is sometimes inclined to sight and hearing and speech, are the best elements of success when they are combinorally, but his teachers have to use a good ed with the manly determination to make the most of life. Boys who are inclined to feel discouraged by reason of mere poverty when they are strong and well will find in should encourage them and that should inspire them to make the most of life.

This remarkable, deaf, dumb and blind boy has attracted world-wide attention, and he is a wonderful example of the progress made in recent years in teaching deaf, dumb and blind children. Fortunately one does not often hear of children having this triple affliction. Nor was Tommy Stringer thus afflicted when he first came into the world. He near Waynesburg, in Pennsylvania, so that now he is in his sixteenth year. When he was about two years old an acute attack of he liked nothing better than the breaking spinal meningitis deprived him of sight of an unruly colt. It is said that he once parents were very poor, and soon after in a single week. During his later years, legheny City, Pa., and here the boy, confriend, Helen Keller. She was visiting in Allegheny City when she heard of the little boy afflicted like herself, and her generous in pursuit of these Washington found his and sympathetic nature prompted her to chief recreation. do all she could for Tom's relief. It is possible that if it had not been for the interest and generosity of Helen Keller and others Tom would have been sent from the hospital to the poorhouse. Money was finally raised to send the boy to the noted kindergarten for the blind in Boston. He was about 5-years old at this time, but he was the merest baby in intelligence. It is not exaggerating his condition to say that he did not know anything. He was so weak that he could not walk, and he seemed more like a little animal than a boy. He did not know how to treme. His mind was as undeveloped as impossible to teach him anything, and he would have been left to his animal-like condition. It is due to such men as Dr. shows that he paid great attention to physical exercise. Much space is occupied with his observations on this subject. Entries and blind.

must have infinite patience and sympathy and forbearance were required in teaching poor little Tom Stringer the first principles of education. It was so hard to make a beginning. Of course the sign or finger was given a slice of bread the word 'bread' daring in his wagers on horses in whose was made in his hand by his teacher, and speed he had confidence. Of Mr. Roose-his own fingers were made to form the letters of the word in the hand of his teacher. Then other objects, like a ball, a book and a hat were put into his hands and their en to any out-door recreation, except walk-names spelled in the finger language by his ing and occasional driving, and Mr. Cleve-teacher in Tom's hands. Then he was land least of all.—Leslie's Weekly. made to spell them with his own fingers. Days and days would be spent in the spelling of a single word before Tom could spell it himself. Then very short sentences were formed, and slowly the dormant mind of the boy was aroused. Once fully aroused it proved to be a very alert mind, and while he did not have the mental alertness of her fingers, although her sense of touch is astonishing. Before Tom was 7 years of age he was beperiore Tom was 7 years of age he was beginning to read by means of raised letters used by the blind. Then he began to learn to write by means of what is called the Braille system. The modern wather the modern Braille system. The modern methods of teaching the dumb and blind were employed, and at 15 years of age Tom is as far advanced in reading, history, grammar, physiology, botany and arithmetic as the average boy of his age. He is as far beyond the kindergarten in his education, and he now attends a public school. A teacher from the kindergarten goes with him to act as his interpreter, and there is not a more industrious nor a happier boy in the school than Tom. If you think his tripple affliction has made Tom downhearted or morose you are greatly affower pot.

Tom amazed his teacher by his skill with tools. He is a born mechanic, and he is never so happy as when he is at his workbench. He can hammer and nail and saw with more swiftness and accuracy than the average man, and he is the most pains-taking workman. No half-done work for Tom. If a piece of board ought to be smooth Tom never stops planing and sandsmooth Tom never stops planing and sand-papering it until it is just as smooth as it can be. He is quick to detect the least de-library description and sand-short only forest trees, but fruit trees and flowering shrubs, are dwarfed by these fect in his work, and he will not rest until that defect is remedied. He will undo a piece of work half a dozen times and do it over again and again until it is as perfect as it can be made. He does not ask for any concessions because of his blindness. In fact he never makes any reference to the fact that he is blind, and his teachers never refer to the blind, and his teachers never refer to the fact. It was not until a year or two ago that Tom knew that he was different from other hors. He approved that that Tom knew that he was different from other boys. He supposed that no one saw or heard, but the discovery of his great unlikeness to other boys, while it sobered him for the time, did not depress or discourage him, and he has never been heard to make any complaint about it. One may see at the kindergarten a great variety of things Tom has made at his work bench. He has made boxes and coat racks and shovels and models of engines and cars, but his most pretentious and surprising achievement has been a model of a house. This model is a surprise to all who see it, so complete is it in every detail. It is composed of various kinds of wood. Tom makes his nose take the place of his eyes when he wants to distinguish one kind of wood from another. So acute is his sense. of smell that he can name any kind of wood he picks up if he has ever smelled it before.

He can take a rough piece of board and such rapid progress in speaking orally as Helen Keller has, because he has no interest in articulate speech. The finger language is far more agreeable to him, and he would never use any other method of speech if he were not compelled to do so He has also been taught to read the speech of others by placing his wonderfully sensitive fingers on their lips, but this method would not readily understand many of his words, but some of them are distinct, and the story of Tommy Stringer much that his teachers have no difficulty in understanding all that Tom says .- Philadelphia

Recreations of Presidents.

While Mr. Roosevelt is doubtless the occupied the President's chair, he by no Washington, had any "weakness" it was and hearing and the power of speech. His rode ten different horses into Alexandria Tommy's terrible illness he lost his mother. His father then succeeded in having the afflicted boy put into a hospital in Alfirst thing upon rising in the morning, and always saw that they had their breakfast the following greatly reduced rates : From Chi trary to the ordinary rules of hospitals, re- before he had his own. He always had a cago to Butte, Helena and Anaconda, $30.00 mained for three years, and here it was that fine pack of hounds, too, and was quite as fond of hunting as his present successors at the capitol. Foxes and stags were the orhe made the acquaintance of his devoted fond of hunting as his present successors at dinary game in Virginia in those days, and Thomas Jefferson was another true Virginian in respect to his love for fine horses, Pittsburg Pa. of which he owned many. When he was President he made a practice of horseback riding almost every afternoon, no matter what the weather might be, and he kept up this custom until within a few days of his death. John Quincy Adams' Puritan ancestry and training did not prevent him from entertaining a great fondness for horse racing, and it is said that he used to walk out to Holmstead race course, two miles from Washington, and back again whenever a good program was announced. make any effort to do anything for himself, Franklin Pierce was a good horseman and and his condition was pitable in the ex- always well mounted. Harrison and Taylor were devoted to open-air exercise, and the mind of the baby a day old, and fifty both of them for years almost lived in the years ago it would have been regarded as saddle. The same might be said, with some modification, of Tyler and Polk.

As for John Quincy Adams, his diary about his riding horses and the benefits periments in gardening and horticulture in a manner which indicates that he fully realized the benefits and enjoyments as well as the necessity of out-door exercise. Andrew Jackson was not only one of the

The first word he ever learned was the best horsemen of his day, but he was an word "bread," and he was nearly a year learning that one word. Every time he daring rider to hounds, and was equally son, Cleveland, and McKinley-it cannot be said that anyone of them was much giv-

The Dwarfing of Trees. Japanese Arboriculturists Are Peculiarly Successful in the Art-

The dwarf trees of Japan have been a never-ending source of wonder to Euro-Helen Keller, he showed that he had at least the mental capacity of the average boy, and that he had more mechanical skill than most boys. If ever there was a nimble-fingered boy that boy is Tommy Stringer. In this respect he is superior to Helen Keller, who is rather awkward with her fingers, although her sense of touch is astonishing.

Before Tom was 7 years of age he was be-downhearted or morose you are greatly mistaken. He is as merry a boy as I know of, and he gets more out of life than most boys of his age.

The Japanese dwarf all kinds of trees and make them live to a great age. Some of these dwarfs, like the Chabo Hiba are boys of his age.

Tom amazed his teacher by his skill with of these dwarfs, like the Chabo Hiba are well known and their owners have docu-

Lost His Religion.

After living together happily for twenty nine years, William Kiefer and wife, of Tarentum, Westmoreland county, quarrel-ed about religion. William struck his wife fine of $25 and costs.

It Was a Cherry Seed.

After suffering for twenty-five years from what was believed to be catarrh, Mrs. Jos. D. Parker, of Hughesville, obtained unex-pected relief in a strange manner. While sneezing something dropped out of her nose and fell on the floor. It proved to be a cherry seed, which must have lodged in her nose when she was a small girl.

"I never was so happy," said the new benedict. "I tell you marriage has made a different man of me." "I'm glad to hear it," said his rival,

-A wealthy young man, on his way convert into a rack or a fancy shelf without the least assistance from anyone.

Like Helen Keller Tom has been taught to articulate, but he has not made nearly utation for globe-trotting. Said the beginner : "No doubt the American abroad can make his way about on a very small stock of foreign language?" "Only one phrase is really necessary," replied Mr. Crawford. "What is that?" "How much?"

> A LEGACY OF THE GRIP.-Is often a run-down system. Weakness, nervous-ness, lack of appetite, energy and ambi-tion, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the splendid tonic, blood purifier and regulator of Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. HEARKEN YE.

TO THE VOICE OF BELLEFONTE PEOPLE

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness that come from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one Belletonte citizen says:

Mrs. J. Cowher, of Bishop street, says:

"I was very bad with my back and head.
I suffered pain in both and was very restless nights besides being so tired all the time that I could hardly keep myself about. I was very lame across my kidneys and bending over or being on my feet much was extremely painful? Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills and seeing them so highly recommended for these troubles I procured them from F. Potts Green's drug store They gave me positive relief, caused me to sleep well, stopped the pains, removed the lameness and invigorated me generally."

THEY CRUSH THE POWERS.

This is written in mid-October. The lnng, oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading leaf withering tree and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the sea son. Fog, Frost, rain, snow,-they are coming. You remember last winter; of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. Ah! the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rougn grasp it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in cribs and cradles. Coughs that began before Thanksgiving Day are racking and tearing them still; yes and growing worse as they dig deeper into the poor, tired throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Renson's Porous Plasters. For the soothing and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful, They conquer the complaints
