THE SECRET.

It wasn't the sun and it wasn't the sky. Nor the glad little birds that sung, Nor the whispering winds that went loitering by, And because they both were young,

That life seemed wrapped in a silver haze Like the breast of a brooding dove, But because they had plucked on the world's highways

The marvelous bloom of love, sweetheart-The marveious bloom of love.

For the sun went down and the air turned chill, And the winter winds blew cold, And the birds in their leafy homes were still.

And the lovers glad grew old! But still were their grateful hearts perfumed Through poverty, pain and truth, By the fragrance sweet of the flower that Trials of a Little Circus Girl. She Had to Smile and Throw Kisses and Turn Horseback Somersaults with Nosebleed.

The little girl who does the back somersault on the big white horse in the middle ring at the circus was walking behind the entrance gate at the eastern end of the Garden waiting for her act to be called, says Lindley Dennison in the New York Sun. Her feet were thrust into thick-soled, rosin-dusted ring sandals. She had a brand-new ballet skirt, which stuck out as crinkly and straight as though it had been cut from white tissue paper, and down on the shawl which she held about her bare shoulders her hair hung in two long braids with pink ribbons at the ends.

"No, it's not Dolly," she said very gravely. "It's Dallie. It is only Dolly on the bills." And then, while she held the shawl with one hand, she counted out with the forefinger of the other the six letters. "Like this," she said, "D-a-l·l-i-e. Dallie Julian."

And the fine gentleman in the top hat and dress coat, who was going to lead her out to the ring, and the two lady riders who, though twice as old and experienced as the little girl, had to take second places in the side rings, and the stable-men, and the khaki-coated arena attendants listened approvingly as the little girl with the braids thus explained how her name was spelled and regarded her with the solemnity due to the "Only Principal Somersault Rider of Her Sex Now Before the Public." For the back somersault on a horse's back is a very hard thing to do, and the little girl with the braids is the first female rider who has done it successfully, so the circus people say, since Dolly Somebody-else did it eighteen years ago. And so, though she has just passed fifteen, and does not come up to a man's shoulder, and has such red cheeks that she doesn't need but the least bit of rouge even under the limelight, she is a very important person indeed.

Suddenly the little girl leaned forward, saying quite despairingly: "Oh, dear me, this is twice to day."

The immaculate gentleman in evening clothes whipped out a handkerchief from his coat, one of the lady riders drew another from the bosom of her low-cut gown, and they held them out solicitously to the little girl with the braids.

'What's up? What's wrong?" said the canvasmen and the boys holding the heads of the big white horses. The immaculate gentleman turned around.

"Dallie's got the nosebleed" he said. over to spare her spotless new skirt and was laughing in despair as she held the handkerchief to her face and everybody was gathering round and saying sorrowfully, "O-o-o-o!" the great entrance gates swung open and the band in the gallery changed its tune. The audience saw a smiling little lady trip into the arena with her skirts bobbing up and down, and saw her smile and throw kisses to the gallery as the fat white horse went clupety-clup around the ring, and they wondered very much why she should choose to carry that handkerchief in her hand. But behind the entrance gates were the French acrobats who do stunts in their evening clothes, and the man who rides on one wheel up and down the spiral tower, and there was a crowd of canvasmen and stable boys who were looking with quite another sort of interest through peep-holes in the fence. They knew it is no fun turning somersaults when one has a nosebleed, and particularly that it isn't an easy thing to do on a horse's back, where, if you "take off" a few inches too far forward of the horse's haunches, you'll lose your spring, and if and barges for the river trade. The blast you start a few inches too far back the horse will go from underneath you and you'll land on the ground.

Round and round the sleepy horse ambled while the band in the gallery boomed, and still the little girl stood straight and mo-tionless, with her hand held most curiously to her face. All at once she took it down and her fists clenched. Up and over she went and down light as a thistle on the horse's broad back. A round of applause came down from all over the house, the fat borse slowed up, and the immaculate gentleman handed the Queen of the Arena and the riding star of the show to the ground. A moment more and the entrance gates had closed behind her again, and, smiling and flushed, she was slipping her feet into the thicksoled ring saudals. A crimson drop showed on her bare throat. There was a curious pinkish place on the white horse's mane just where her hand had gripped it. The little girl looked herself over critically.

"It never touched my dress!" she said, and she gave to the immaculate gentleman in the top hat two very damp and very sorry-looking handkerchiefs which been wadded up in her hand.

Cow Sold for $3,010.

The highest price ever paid for thorough-bred cattle at the South Omaha (Neb) Stock Yards was bid for a herd of Angus-Aberdeens. The six year old cow Blackbird was sold to Canton Brothers & Steven son, of Holstein, Ia., for $3,010, and a calf at her side brought $1,000. Forty four head brought an average of $234.

Mr. William Valance, east Lamb street, night watchman, says: "For 2 years or more off and on, I had trouble with my back and pains in the upper part of my spine accompanied by a disagreeable feeling in my head and acute lameness right over my kidneys. At first I thought it was my liver but later found it arose from the kidneys not acting properly. I read of the many cures that had been made in Bellefonte by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. They stopped the annoyance from the kidneys and removed the lameness and aching in my back. They did me any amount of good and I do not hesitate to recommend them."
