

Habersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Williams are making a visit to friends at Beech Creek.

Our burg has the honor of being the home of five of the nine instructors of Walker Twp. for this term of school.

Mrs. Kate McEwen has moved her household effects to Lock Haven. where her son John is employed as a jeweler.

E. J. Markle returned home after having spent nine weeks with friends in Kansas, Iowa and western Pennsylvania.

Miss Anna Boyer, a pleasant visitor at the home of John Gentzel for some time, has returned to Spring Mills.

Miss Sophia McEwen is seriously ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Carner. Faint hopes are entertained of her recovery.

H. H. Noll has blacked the appearance of his house and lawn with green by giving both a coat of paint, which adds greatly to the appearance of his home.

The schools opened Monday with Prof. Weaver, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall college, as instructor of the High school and A. Cobb, of Zion, a teacher of ability, as instructor of the preparatory school. That success may attend their efforts it is the wish of all.

Perhaps the most remarkable scientific discovery made in a long time—so far at least as its wonderful possibilities are concerned—is that of radium. Apparently this substance has from the beginning been giving off particles at the rate of sixty to ninety thousand miles per second, without diminution of its own force—and will continue to do so forever. It supplies light without heat. A ray of this light conducts electricity. It converts oxygen into ozone and colors glass permanently brown. These are a few of the properties of this remarkable substance. In the Cosmopolitas for September a brief article is published under the title "A New Field for Speculation," and announcement is made of a prize of three hundred dollars for the best paper on this subject.

Justin Harvey Smith, the author of the papers on "The Prologue of the American Revolution," which are to appear in The Century during the year 1903, has been Professor of Modern History at Dartmouth since the chair was established in 1897. Professor Smith is a graduate of Dartmouth in the class of '77, and he is said to be the fourth who has received a perfect mark there, Rufus Choate and the late Chief Justice Field, of Massachusetts being two of the others. Professor Smith was at one time a partner in a large publishing house and was for several years at the head of its literary department, but in 1897 he dropped business and after further travel and study abroad brought out "The Troubadour at Home," a reconstruction of the personalities of the medieval Provençal poets.
