How to Take Stains Out of Wash Goods.

The art of taking stains out of wash goods is one in which the expert housekeeper should excel. A slight knowledge of simple chemistry is, in this connection, most valuable, and often enables one to remove unsightly spots on garments that seemed hopelessly spoiled. Calico, or the cambric goods which have generally succeeded it in use, is often faded in washing by the use of soap which contains a proportion of soda or some powerful alkali. There are certain patent starches that show by their action on delicate cadet blues and greens that they contain injurious alkali.

The expert housekeeper is often annoyed to find that color tested cambrie, which has been properly washed and dried in a darkened room as quickly as possible, has, in spite of every care, faded in spots or taken on an ugly dull hue. The intelligent woman knows that such stains come in the lavors worry. majority of cases from one of two causes. either an alkali or acid. The chief cause of alkali stains is found in the potash, soda or borax used in laundry work, and especially in the inordinate amount of such alkali found in laundry soaps. While these strong soaps are valuable in washing white clothes they are too strong to use on colored goods. Acid stains come chiefly from the perspiration of the body. The best treatment for a goods that has been faded with an alkali is to dip it carefully in a weak bath of vinegar and water, rinse it well and iron it smooth at once. It will require a little experimenting to ascertain exactly how strong an acid bath is required to neutralize any given alkali stains. It is more difficult to neutralize the acid stains because they are in spots, and the parts of the garment which have not been stained will suffer if exposed to the treatment of a moderately strong alkali soap. Where the color has been bleached out by the sun there is nothing that will restore

Iron rust stains, which seem to be one of white goods with lemon juice, salt and strong sunlight. Saturate the spots with lemon juice. Spread the salt thickly over them, after laying them where the strongest sunlight will shine upon them for at least six hours. Take up the stained goods at the end of this time and wash well. If the spots have not entirely disappeared expose them to the sun in the same manner as before. Rub the spots thoroughly with soap and water to remove the lemon juice and salt, and the last vestige of a heavy stain of this kind will disappear. Ink stains yield to milk. Soak the goods in sweet milk and set where the milk will sour. After a few hours rub out the ink stains as well as you can in the milk. If a dull vestige remains bleach it out on the grass. Obdurate black stains of ink yield to this treatment, which is so strong that it draws the color out of colored goods, and can be used only on white goods.

Almost any chemical means by which such stains as iron rust or ink are removed from goods will also remove color. It is therefore difficult, and usually useless, to treat stains of this character on colored goods. Stains of tea, which become per-manent when boiled in, are readily removed with cold water and soap, as a great many other stains are. Coffee stains and the stains of all fresh fruits may be taken out with boiling water. Pour the water through the stain, or soak it in boiling water until the spot disappears. Wine stains are removed by spreading salt over them while damp, and afterward rinsing them out with boiling water.

Found $4,000 In Buried Jug.

John Moore, a farmer living near Henansville, Miss., while demolishing an ancient dwelling on his farm, has found a jug containing nearly $4,000 in twenty dollar gold pieces. The money is thought to have been hidden during the civil war.

This Blind Boy a Musical Marvel. Professor of Music, a Church Organist, an Expert Stenographer and Typewriter, a Tuner of Pipe Organs and of Pianos.

Albert H. Dunn, who is considered a men-tal marvel in Philadelphia where he now resides, is totally blind, having been so since he was five years old.

The accident which deprived him of his sight occurred when, as a boy of five, he was watching a blacksmith at an anvil in Lock Haven.

A piece of hot steel flew from the anvil and struck him across the eyes. For a time there was some hope of saving his sight, at least in one eye, but that hope was soon gone, and he was left totally Three years afterward, he went to Philadelphia and took up the study of music un der Prof. Wood, at the Institute for the Blind, at Twentieth and Race streets, and made such progress there that he began to teach nine years ago. Mr. Dunn who now, almost totally blind is at the early age of 27, professor of music at the Pennsylvania State Military college, a church organist, piano tuner, and what he considers his gretest achieve ment, a tuner of pipe organs. This last is the talent he is proudest of because experts have claimed that no blind man could possibly do it. The construction and material of the pipes is such that the warmth of the hand will throw them out of tune, but Mr. Dunn has overcome that difficulty by feeling for them with a cone or some other instrument.

The organ is Mr. Dunn's favorite instrument. He is the organist at the First Presbyterian church at Chester, and not long ago gave a recital at the Baptist temple on Broad street.

Mr. Dunn has another distinction of which he is proud. He won a diploma from the musical de partment of the University of Pennsylva-nia after attending only three days. The composition which won this diploma for him was a 400-page cantata for male chorus and orchestra.

Mr. Dunn writes his music in the point ystem now in general use among blind. It is in this system, too, that he transcribes the music he uses in teaching. He does his writing on a new machine built something on the order of a typewrit-er, only instead of lettered keys, it has six black keys raised like the black keys of a Here, too, his mechanical genius has as serted itself, for he has made a number of improvements on the machine.

His transcription of music is so rapid as to be almost beyond belief. Jessie Bache Hayes, who reads for him, is a very rapid reader, yet Mr. Dunn can easily keep up with her. So, too, he learned stenography rapidly.

Only a few months after he started the study of the shorthand machine he could write 100 words a minute with ease. He writes with the ordinary typewriter as rapidly as can any one with good sight and he handles his machine without any assistance.

His ability to get around by himself is remarkable. His memory, especially for music, is mar-

Indigestion Results from Worry. One of Many Forms

Worry is but one of the many forms of fear, so that worry tends to the production of indigestion. Indigestion tends to put the body of the subject in a condition that favors worry. There is thus established a vicious circle which tends to perpetuate itself, each element augmenting the other It is necessary to secure a cheerful, wholesome atmosphere for the dyspeptic. He should eat his meals at a table where there is good fellowship and where funny stories are told. He should himself make a great effort to contribute his share of this at the table, even if it be necessary, as it was in one case under my care, for him to solemnly and seriously collect funny paragraphs from the press, and at first interject them spasmodically during lulls in the conversation at the table. The effort made was adequate to the obstacles to be overcome. He succeeded, and the spectacle of that man trying to be funny at the table when he felt thoroughly discouraged and blue is one we shall never forget. Laughing is in itself also a useful exereise from the standpoint of digestion. It stirs up all the abdominal organs, it increases the circulation of the blood, it increases peristalis, it increases the secretion of gastric juices. Five minutes' deliberate laughing after each meal would be an exthe most indelible, are easily drawn out of cellent prescription for some people.-London Family Doctor.

> Making a Fortune from Immense Apple Orchards in Illinois.

Four well known Illinois politicians who last year bought several hundred acres of orchard land in Clay county, Ill., will make a good sized fortune this year out of the apple orchards. The lucky men are Senator "Len" Small, of Kankakee; Senator H. M. Dunlap, of Savoy; Senator Jas. D. Putnam, of Elmwood, and Representa-tive Edward C. Curtis, of Kankakee. In February 1901, the four politicians formed a company and purchased 390 acres of or-chard land in Clay county for a consideration of $19,500. Senator Dunlap, for the company, has just negotiated the sale of the apples from 270 of the 390 acres for $11,500 to Shoup, of St. Louis, one of the largest and best known apple buyers in the whole country. In the deal the apples are sold as they hung upon the trees.

Tried for Witchcraft.

Mrs. Sarah McBride, aged 60, of Carlisle, was tried in the Cumberland county court on Wednesday for witchcraft. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Zug claimed that they paid Mrs. McBride over $500, in return for which she gave them information concerning the location of a $30,000 treasure hidden in their yard.

Zug dug for the money, but did not find it. A number of witnesses testified they paid money to Mrs. McBride to have witches removed. Mrs. McBride denied these stories, claiming that she only told fortunes by cards for pastime.

Pennypacker Self-Condemned.

The light has been turned on and the people of Pennsylvania may now Quay's latest confidence game. No fair-minded and patriotic citizen, no matter what his partisan or factional views, can read the remarkable story given in our news columns without surprise, indignation and shame. Here is calmly presented the cold facts that show Samuel W. Pennypacker to be utterly unworthy the confidence and state he has so deeply discredited. Here is an indictment against which no successful defense can be made. It is shown, beyond all doubt, that again the autocratic head of the odious machine has put forth a candidate for governor who is the boss' very own. It must be clear to every voter that if this masquerading pretender would thus serve his would-be master before and after election as a candidate, if elected he would be under his absolute and degraded control. If this is done in the green tree, what would be done in the dry?

If it be true, as has been so loudly claimed, that ex-Judge Pennypacker represents personal and family honor, professional and official probity, elevated public spirit, the case becomes all the more enigmatical from the standpoint of the good citizen who abhors the ways of political outlaws. It is pertinently asked, how could a man imbued with right ideas, enamored of pure ideals, desirous of maintaining the honor of the commonwealth, deliberately and ostentatiously become the public apologist for and defender and eulogist of Quayism and all that it stands for, and this, too, while holding a place supposed to be wholly removed from the influence of partisan politics? Ex-Judge Pennypacker not only sees none of the multiplied and mountainous sins of Quayism; he even has the audacity to speak admiringly of him as "Pennsylvania's most distinguished statesman, whose fame is assured as one who has served his country well." What a monstrous injustice to the long historic line of eminent publicists and pure patriots, from Benjamin Franklin to "Pig Iron" Kelley and the intrepid Randall, not one of whom would have been guilty of any of the manifold offenses against civic righteousness which have darkened the career of this political free-booter during the past 30 years. Such an unpardonable insult to the intelligence, patriotism vania never was put forth. It should and will be resented at every fireside where there is abiding reverence for truth, patriotism and justice.

The machine candidate stands hopelessly self-condemned. According to his own words and acts, Pennypackerism and Quayism mean one and the same thing. Thus the supreme issue is presented. A vote for Pennypacker will justly be taken as meaning a vote of unqualified endorsement of Quayism, a declaration for its indefinite continuance in state, municipal and local government in Pennsylvania. There is no escape from this conclu-

The successful fight of 1890 began in Reading. All the indications are that history will repeat itself this year. The Democratic lines are in splendid shape at the opening of the great reform battle of 1902.

Man Killed Near Montandon.

Michael Beaver, aged 58 years, was instantly killed on the railroad near Montandon Tuesday night, in full view of his son Norman, who was fireman on the loco-motive that hurled his father to death. The latter was walking on the tracks when the freight train came along at good speed. His son, who was leaning from the cab window, did not recognize him at first. The fireman shouted to the engineer that there was a man ahead. The engineman, when the warning was given, also noticed him and reversed the engine as well as applying the air brakes. As the headlight layed on the pedestrian, his identity was disclosed to the startled fireman. He rang the bell violently and shouted to him to jump aside. The rumbling sound of the engine drowned his voice and the distracted fireman saw his father struck and hurled high in the air. The fireman was the first to reach him and found he was dead.
