

FARM NOTES.

Salt should be always accessible. Clean and thoroughly air stables before milking. Never mix fresh warm milk with that which has been cooled.

All persons who milk the cows should have the finger nails cut closely. Keep the stable and dairyroom in good condition, fresh air and clean.

Milk with dry hands. Never allow the hands to come in contact with the milk. Use no dry, dusty feed just previous to milking; if fodder is dusty sprinkle it before it is fed.

Middlings make a good food for poultry, but if wet up alone it is too sticky. The better plan is to mix with bran or corn and wet with milk or scalding water.

Whitewash is better than paint on the poultry houses, for the reason that it costs less and has a purifying influence. It may be applied as often as once a month to advantage.

A neighbor turned his cattle into an orchard with fallen apples—a bad place for cows. One cow became badly choked with an apple. A neighbor happened to have a piece of rubber hose, about three feet long, rather stiff.

A little bed of parsley is not as common as it should be in country gardens. If it is lacking this year, there is all the more reason to plan a sowing for next season. It must be remembered, lest discouragement result, that parsley requires plenty of time to germinate, four weeks being an ordinary period before the little seedlings show, and it may be six weeks before the leisurely parsley makes up its mind to appear above ground.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Very fashionable people are now using extremely large letters to mark their household linen—about six inches high being the prescribed size.

Forest colors—that is dark brown or a rich leaf green, are the craze of the hour as house decorative schemes. Constant worry and prolonged grief hasten gray hairs. The use of curling-irons, long kept up, also hastens the ravages of time.

Salt water used as a gargle will strengthen the throat and harden the gums; used as a wash it will strengthen weak eyes; used in the bath it is a tonic; as a lotion for the hair it will prevent its falling.

Yellow teeth, it is said, are usually indicative of bodily vigor, and very rarely white ones of a more fragile constitution. There is only one general rule to offer respecting the care of the teeth, and that is that they be kept immaculately clean and in perfect health.

In the styles for the coming season it is said that the attention will center on waists, sleeves, coats and the like, while the skirts will have little that is new in its make-up. That being so, the skirt of the present certainly deserves some attention, both for what it is and for what it promises to be.

The sleeve is large. That is, it may be large, the cut depending upon the nature of the garment. Not large, have a mind, please, like the sleeve of a few years back, when that particular part of every gown worn by every woman without exception assumed grotesque proportions.

The winter skirt has a narrow front gore, a very narrow score, that looks to be just half of what should be required. There is also a fancy for the nine-gored skirt, as this is very flaring around the feet when cut with the requisite slant on each edge.

Black is being worn more this winter than in many seasons past. When black is becoming it is very much so, but to the average woman there is no beautifying power in its unrelieved sombreness.

At last the vogue of the Eton jacket as an outer garment has waned, and now we have coats with basques or the three-quarter length model.

New flannel waists are out in green and blue and other dark rich plaids. These are made in regular tailor fashion, as the plain shirtwaists should be, without a tuck or frill and with plain cuffs made to wear with cuff links. New shirtwaists of this style button down the front with large white pearl buttons.

G. W. Did Not Do It.

But the Cherry Trees Were Ruined All the Same.

Fence posts and old used railroad ties when fast in the ground would seem to be unoffensive enough, and that they should have caused the death of the cherry trees near by tells like a fairy tale, but it is what they did.

Examination shows the posts to have been possessed of the fungus—probably they were killed by it before being cut. Put in to the ground the mycelium or growing thread or spawn of the fungus left the dead wood and traveled to the living trees on each side, entering them from wounds in the roots, these wounds caused, maybe, by insects or by moles or possibly by the cultivator when working the ground above them.

Last winter one of these trees that, although dead, was left standing as a support for a hop vine planted at its base was a mass of the most beautiful fungus growth, any clump of it being worthy to serve as a sculptor's model.

Remedy there is none. When fungus appears in the seams of the bark or in the crotch of limbs, or as toadstools about the base, the enemy is in possession and the ear of the tree is out down and dug out and burned, root and branch, and the soil thoroughly dressed with sulphur, the fewer the chances for the dissemination of the destroying element.

Miss Thaw Gets Almost a Million. Pittsburgh Young Woman Comes into Possession of Very Valuable Inheritance. Estate Is Divided into Four Parts, With Large Cash Deposit Shown.

A document was filed in the orphan's court of Allegheny county last week which is notable by reason of its showing that Elizabeth Hird Thaw, now of age, is entitled to an estate of almost $1,000,000 left her by her father, William Thaw, of that city.

The income account shows that $200,000 was paid to Elizabeth D. Thaw under the terms of the will of the decedent. Mrs. Thaw maintained and educated Miss Thaw until she became of age. She recently attained her majority and the estate was turned over to her. The report as filed was contained in many typewritten pages and the cost of the filing alone was $54.

OUT OF DEATH'S JAWS.—"When death seemed very near from a severe stomach and liver trouble that I had suffered with for years," writes P. Mose, Durham, N. C., "Dr. King's New Life Pills saved my life and gave perfect health." Best pills on earth and only 25c at Green's Pharmacy.
