

Wealth in the Jersey Swamps.

VINELAND, N. J., November 3.—With his assertion that there is enough peat in the Maurice river swamp to supply all South Jersey with fuel for generations to come Morris C. Lockwood also announces that he has discovered a process by which peat can be easily and cheaply converted into fuel briquettes. Mr. Lockwood says the briquettes he has made are better and cleaner fuel than coal.

The discoverer of the process declares that he makes of peat paving stones, shingles as hard as metal, building rocks and household ornaments. By Lockwood's process peat is made into briquettes for fuel purposes by mixing it with a cheap chemical and pressing the mixture in a machine he has invented. He says that he will force a reduction in the price of coal. The output of similar kinds of briquettes in Europe amounted to 20,000,000 tons in 1900.

ALSO MAKES GAS. The inventor says that he can also make fine illuminating gas from peat. He has in his laboratory specimens of carbon, lampblack, metal polish, tooth powder and gunpowder he has made from peat. The building materials he has formed from the "muck" are colored in various tones.

"The public has little idea what properties are contained in peat, or 'muck,'" says Lockwood. Untold wealth lies stored in South Jersey's many swamps and peat bogs. The fuel that can be made from the peat is the best obtainable. The briquettes make it easily handled. "Owners of peat bogs can become wealthy by starting the peat briquette industry."

It is said that the low price of coal hitherto has made the manufacture of peat briquettes impracticable.

CHARCOAL UNDERGROUND. In his investigations Lockwood has made a discovery which may be of special interest to geologists and antiquarians. While excavating in a peat bog at a depth of fifteen feet Lockwood came upon a sub-stratum of charcoal. Whether the charcoal found was formed by a chemical process in nature's underground laboratory or was deposited there by forest fires when the bottom of the bog was the earth's surface is the subject for speculation only.

Mrs. Annie Black, whose home is near Yellow Springs, was present at the re-dedication of the Reformed church at Boalsburg on Sunday. She is quite alert and hearty for one of eighty years and greatly enjoyed the services which were in charge of her son Rev. A. A. Black. Before returning home she will visit her son Frank, just north of town. She is accompanied by her daughter Miss Caroline Black.

The Modoc hunting party consisting of a dozen nimrods started for their camp in the Allegheny mountains on Tuesday morning. From the amount of grub they shipped it looks as though they intended to stay all winter. They were also well supplied with fire water to use in case of snake bites, chills or emergency and had with them almost every kind of a shooting iron ever manufactured. They came home last year as record breakers and expect to break their own record this year.

Buried on Horseback.

Lord Daer, who died fighting for the Lancastrians at Towton, England, in 1461, directed that if he were killed in the battle his favorite war horse should be buried in the same grave with him. According to the wishes, when his interment took place in Saxon churchyard after the battle a tremendous grave was dug and in it the warrior was buried, seated upright on his horse. For centuries reflections were cast upon the accuracy of this tradition, but a few years ago, while excavations for new graves were being made, the report was verified by the discovery of the skeletons of horse and rider.—Chicago News.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

A FEAST OF GOOD THINGS.—St. Nicholas in 1903 promises to go far beyond past successes. Professor John Bach McMaster recently wrote to the editors of St. Nicholas: "Thank you very heartily for the pleasure and profit St. Nicholas brings to my boys."

Boys—and girls—are very much alike the world over. The delight and help that St. Nicholas gives to Professor McMaster's boys, and thousands of other girls and boys, it holds for every girl and boy who can understand English.

Since the first number of St. Nicholas was published, nearly thirty years ago, many weekly and monthly publications for children have come and gone; but St. Nicholas still holds its place, the unrivaled "prince of periodicals for young folks." It was never more enjoyed by its readers than now, for in addition to the usual serial stories, short articles, etc., there is a department called "The St. Nicholas League," in which the children themselves have an opportunity to take part. There are said to be nearly fifty thousand children now belonging to the League, and prizes are given out each month for the best stories, poems, drawings and photographs sent in by the young members. Any reader of St. Nicholas may become a member.

St. Nicholas announces for 1903 "The Story of King Arthur," written and illustrated by Howard Pyle, a companion story to his famous "Robin Hood," but which readers of the manuscript think surpasses that in the strength and interest of the narrative and beauty of the illustrations. Two short stories by Miss Alcott, written for her own little nieces and never before published, will soon appear in St. Nicholas, with other stories and articles by the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," by Ruth McEnany Stuart, Frank R. Stockton, Clara Morris, and scores of other well-known writers. St. Nicholas makes a specialty of papers of information, richly illustrated articles on practical subjects, like the Navy Yard, the Assay office, etc.

The publishers announce that new subscribers who begin with January may receive the November and December numbers free, and so begin the volume and get the commencement of all the serials. The publishers are the Century Co., Union Square, New York.

A LIBRARY FOR FOUR DOLLARS. Best pictures, Best Fiction, Best History for price of a Century subscription.

Four dollars is a small sum with which to supply a family for a year with the best pictures and literature. "The high-water mark of color reproduction," as Howard Pyle characterizes the exquisite color reproductions of his paintings in the December Century; history, current topics of vital interest, the best verse and fiction of the day.

The most striking successes of the Century magazine have been made in the field of history, writes the famous Century War Papers, Nicolai and Hay's Life of Lincoln, etc.; and it is to return to the field of historical literature this year. A striking series of illustrated articles on the early campaigns of the Revolution, written by Prof. Justin Harvey Smith of Dartmouth College, will be one of the features, especially covering the picturesque march of Arnold through the Maine woods. Important articles on the "Trusts" will be printed from time to time—on attacking or defending, but simply telling the inside history of the great trusts and how they are conducted.

Richard Whiteing, the author of that popular book "No. 5 John Street," is to write one of the serials for the Century in 1903, "The Yellow Van," the story of an American "school ma'am" who marries an English duke. Another serial, by the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the most popular book of the year, will begin to appear in the December Century. Papers by "Mr. Dooley," giving his unique "Opinions" on literature; new light on the lives of Edgar Allan Poe and Shakespeare; richly illustrated articles on the great exchanges of the world, and the best short stories that can be procured from month to month. The bound volumes should have permanent places in every library. Big returns, all this, on the small investment of four dollars.
