Asked to be Kidnaped. A Girl Employed a Detective to Abduct Her-Now the Wife of a Wealthy Boston Man.

-Elizabeth Fenner Baker, Dauphin, Pa

All I have elsewhere sought to vain.

The sensational disappearance of a young girl named Ida Swartz from a New York home about 19 years ago will be remem-bered by thousands of New Yorkers as one of the most talked-of mysteries of that The police of the entire country were baffled, and even the crack Central to human beings.

office men were wholly at a loss. A reward of $1,000 was offered for her and the Central office detectives did find out where she was long after the storm had passed over, but the real story of the alleged kidnaping has never been told till know that Ida Swartz is now the wife of a wealthy Boston man and prominent in society circles there.

Ida Swartz was actually stolen, but it was at her own request. She wanted to of Koch's aim. In dissecting diseased catescape from conditions that were bearing the three physicans connected with the her down to ruin, and she was rescued by a private detective—one of the best known inoculated with consumption germs, which men in his profession in New York then and now.

Under a pledge of secrecy as to identity, the veteran detective told the whole story recently, thus clearing up for the first time one of the historic mysteries in the police annals of New York.

About all that the police and the press could learn at the time of the alleged kidnaping was that Ida Swartz, a rather at- tive cattle, for cooking destroys the germs. tractive girl of about 18, has been living with her aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Feyh, at 22 East Seventieth street. Mrs. Feyh had scatter tubercule bacılli in coughing and been on the stage. The only other resident | this is another common source of transmisof the house, except the servants was a man named Robert Farley.

Ida's mother was dead, and her father been living with her aunt for sometime and was going to school in the city.

Mrs. Feyh had been employing a private detective to watch the movements of Far-ley, whom she suspected of fondness for a seamstress who had been working for her. The police, after the abduction, suspect ed the detective and shadowed him for weeks, but they could find nothing to prove that he knew anything of the girl's where-

The real story of the disappearance of Ida Swartz is thus told by the detective

"The affair between Mrs. Feyh and the man Farley who was living at her home, and on whose account she seemed to be jealous of the little seamstress, offered a rather peculiar mix-up, so I secured a position in the house for a sewing woman, who was really in my employ as a detective.

My assistant soon obtained the confidence the niece and found a very bad state of affairs. The niece complained of ill-treat-ment, and begged to be taken away from the house. She said that Farley was forcing his attentions on her, with the conniv-ance of her aunt, and she was terribly afraid of both of them. She was willing to do any kind of work, to go anywhere, if the could but get away.

"I was at once notified and in a few hours was ready to help the girl to escape. I had a millionaire friend within sixty miles of the city who at ouce entered heartily into my plan. This man and his wife made it one of their aims in life to aid just sucn cases, and he at once consented to take the girl into his home until further arrangements

"Through the sewing woman I left the girl know our plans, and in two days all was ready. When she started for school the next morning I met her and we went to the train. I had a man there, and she left at once with him for my friend's home.

'As soon as opportunity offered we sent the girl, in care of a trusted detective, to Drury Seminary, at Springfield, Mo., of which Professor Sheppard was then principal, where she was given every care and was soon at home and happy.
"In the meantime 1 was searching for the girl's father, and soon had him located at El Paso, Tex. My philanthropic friend arranged to see his daughter.

"This he did, and ou my advice, made Principal Sheppard her legal guardian. The girl was thus entirely freed from the authority of her aunt. The police had meantime been shadowing me day and night in the hope of catching me in communication with the girl. It was a pretty stiff battle of wits, but I had been a member of the force for years myself and I knew the game as well as they did. All mail from her went to the house of a friend in Brooklyn, and I never carried all it out of that house.

"One day, after all had been settled, I told a friend of mine at Central that I knew where the girl was. The reward of $1,000 still stood and the combination of facts excited him. I finally told him where the girl was and waited for the fun. Mrs. Feyh was at once notified and left next day for Missouri, but I had expected it and was just ahead of her. "When I went to the seminary and Ida was told who was there to see her, she ran downstairs and into my arms as if I had been her father. I told her who was coming and prepared her for her meeting.

"In a little while the bell rang and I stepped into an adjoining room. Mrs. Feyh bounced in in a pretty temper, "Get your things on at once and come with me!" she ordered as soon as she saw her niece.

"I'm going to stay here where I am very happy, aunt," said the girl. "The woman stormed and upbraided her 'You shall come!'she said. That man that stole you from me is in the Tombs in New York, and he will get twenty years in prison for taking you. His wife has been arrested, too, and I saw them both in prison just before I came away. While the woman was talking I stepped up beside her, and as she turned and saw me she collapsed. A few minutes later she left the room in a rage.

"She had just ridden 1,500 miles, and in thirty minutes she was on her way back to a prominent and wealthy Boston business man and has a large coterie of smart friends She had a most attractive personality, even as a comparative child, and as she grew older she developed into a beautiful woman. I do not know her husband's name. "The reward, by the way, was never

Mrs. Feyh died several years ago, leaving a fortune of about $250,000. Her silver and jewelry were sold at auction soon after her death, as she left no will. The sale netted about $12,000. Much of her jewelry had been presents from wealthy clubmen of the city. The most valuable piece was a diamond necklace, containing forty-seven stones, which ranged in size from half a carat to six carats. The handsome trinket was sold for $2,775 to Joseph M. Leavy. -N. Cows can Give Man Consumption. Noted Specialists do not Indorse Koch's Theory that Animal Tuberculosis is not Transmissible to Human Beings.

The fact that three Philadelphia physicians have been inoculated with tuberculosis germs while handling the carcasses of diseased cows, does not incline scientists there to indorse Prof. Koch's theory that animal tuberculosis cannot be transmitted the subject of animal tuberculosis are Dr. country was scoured by scores of the best detectives in New York without success.

Mazyck P. Ravenel, of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Leonard Pearson, State veterinarian. Both these men have conducted experiments with tuberculosis cattle and both are satisfied that consumption can be transmitted from animal to now, and there are few people living who man, and vice versa. They have both written extensively on the subject. Discussing Koch's theory recently Dr. Pearson said: "Indirectly our investigation of the subject has proved the fallacy became introduced into cuts on the hands of those conducting the experiments. Fortunately serious consequences were averted by prompt cauterization of the affected parts, but I do not think any man who has ever studied the subject in a laboratory will agree with Koch.

"There is little danger of contracting the disease through eating the meat of consump-They can be transmitted, however, through the medium of milk or butter. Cows also

She had there are cases on record of cattle becoming infected with tuberculosis from phthisical attendants. Germs taken from the body of a child which died of consumption were introduced into the system of a cow, which soon shared the child's fate.

Many instances of accidental inoculation are cited by Dr. Ravenel, the majority of the victims being men employed in handling meats. He also attributes the death of Thomas Wally, principal of the Royal Veterinary college of Edinburg, to infection gaining entrance through a wound received while making an autopsy on a tuberculous cow. Dr. Ravenel repoats many cases of infection through drinking the milk of diseased cows.

In summing up the evidence on the case Dr. Ravenel said :-'The evidence at hand forces us to conclude that human and bovine tuberculosis are but slightly different manifestations of one and the same disease, and that they are intercommunicable. # A Cleansing Bark.

The Efficacious Scap Bark Comes from a Tree in

Those of us who are in the habit of buying soap bark at the apothecary's when we have a dress to clean will perhaps like to know something of this interesting and efficacious cleanser.

The small, thin bits as we get them are the inner layers of the bark of the quillaja saponaria, a middle-sized tree found, in Chile. In Chile it is commonly used as a soap, and has been for loug years, no doubt it was in use by the native Indians when Magellan discovered them and their forbidding country about 300 years ago. Quillaja comes from a Chilean name meaning "to wash"—the bark of the tree contains saponim, an alkaline compound which makes it useful, as a soap.

An ounce of the soap bark (it costs about five cents), if put to simmer in two quarts of water until the two quarts have been reduced to one quart, is ready for use. It may be bottled for future need.

Colored goods are cleaned by placing it on a board and rubbing the soiled parts with a cloth wet in the soap bark infusion. The cloth should be the same material as the garment that is to be cleaned, so that no change of color results. There must be no rinsing!

It is better not to iron, either, if the wrinkles may be smoothed out with the

To clean black goods add two tablespoons of ammonia to a pint of the infusion. This soap bark has the advantage of being perfectly safe. It will make one sneeze a good bit, however, if the dust flies when emptying it into the water. It works wonders in cleaning, though.

Egg Skin May Save Woman's Life. Remarkable Attempt at Grafting now being Conducted in Baltimore.

Baltimore physicians are interested in the result of an operation performed Satur-day at the Maryland General Hospital, which if successful, will demonstrate the utility of the membrane of the egg as a substitute for human tissue in skin grafting operations.

Professor John D. Blake, assisted by Drs. Ulrich and Parlett, of the hospital staff, performed the operation upon a middle-aged German woman from whose right thigh sixteen square inches of skin had been torn. The fine inner membrane that surrounds the yelk of an egg was cut into strips and laid upon the raw flesh. They immediately adhered. Two strips of skin were also placed upon the wound. Over the whole were placed narrow strips of adhesive plas-ter, and on top of this absorbent cotton and bandages. The physicians expect good

Irvine Beaten By Bishop

Famous Church Scandal at Huntingdon Again Aired-Unfrocked Minister Loses,

Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talhot, Episcopa bishop of Pennsylvania, Wednesday at Harrisburg again scores on Rev. Dr. N. T. W. Irvine, a former member of his clerical flock on duty at Huntingdon, whom he unfrocked for various things alleged to have been unbecoming to a minister.

Irvine charges that he was deposed because he refused to accept into the fold, a Mrs. Elliot, of Huntingdon, a divorced woman, and that she and the bishop conspired against him in a way that led to his finding nimself outside of the pulpit. He made charges of conspiracy against Bishop Talbot and Bishop Dudley, of Kentucky.

At the request of Drs. Harris and Odell, of Philadelphia, the presenters, acting on behalf of Mr. Irvine, appointed a board of inquiry, nine of the members of the sixteen appointed meeting in Harrisburg last July and hearing evidence, after which, by a vote of five to four, they decided that the charges were not sufficient to haul Bishop Talbot before the board of bishops.

This did not satisfy Dr. Irvine and his presenters, and they looked for more evidence, and claimed to have found it in the form of an affidavit made by a man named Dewees. Bishop Dudley called the board to meet in Harrisburg.

The Dewees affidavit was read, and it was to the effect that at the residence of Mrs. Elliot, in Huntingdon, Bishop Talbot referring to a suit brought in court against him by Irvine, had said to the witness: 'Keep the divorce question out of the case for that would be Irvine's strong point,' and also said injurious things about Irvine.

The board decided that this was not new vidence under the laws of the State of Penn sylvania, the rules of evidence of which govern the board. A resolution to that effect was adopted, as was also one that, in the judgment of the board, no further proceedings by way of presentment on the charges preferred against the bishop should be countenanced, which was a hint to the bishop that the board thought the case ought to end.

Thanksgiving Day. Proclamation By President Roosevelt Designat-

ing November 27th. President Roosevelt has issued the follow ng Thanksgiving proclamation: According to the yearly custom of our people, it falls upon the President at this season to appoint a day of festival and thanksgiving to God.

Over a century and a quarter has passed since this country took its place among the nations of the earth, and during that time we have had, on the whole, more to be thankful for than has fallen to the lot of many other people. Generation after generation has grown to manhood and passed away. Each has had to bear its peculiar burdens, each to face its special crisis, and each has known years of grim trial, when the country was menaced by malice, domestic or foreign levy, when the hand of the Lord was heavy upon it in drought or flood or pestilence, when in bodily distress and anguish of soul it paid the penalty of folly and a froward heart.

Nevertheless, decade by decade, we have struggled onward and upward; we now abundantly enjoy material well being, and under the favor of the Most High we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting. The year that has just closed has been one of peace and overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now en-thanks to the Giver of Good; and we seek to praise Him not by words only, but by deeds, by the way in which we do our duty to ourselves and to our fellowmen.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the 27th of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for the manifold blessings of the past year.

Tetanus Germ Gives Way to New Remedy

According to a report made by Dr. Joseph F. McKaig, of Washington, D. C., an 8-year-old boy may be classed among the very few cases recorded of persons recovering who have been afflicted with lock-jaw. The lad is named Howard Payne, and he resides with his parents in West Washington. About two months ago he stepped on a piece of broken glass, sustaining an ugly cut in his right heel. The wound was bandaged, and, although the boy complained of feeling sick, but little was thought of the wound until lockjaw appeared. Dr. McKaig was called in, and confirmed the suspecions of the boys' parents. The phy-sician immediately took the lad under treatment, injecting phenol in the spine five or six times aday. The treatment was kept up for several weeks, it is said, with the result that the boy has been entirely restored to his normal condition.

Dr. McKaig regards young Payne's case as a most remarkable one. Ninety-nine per cent of the people who are affected with lockjaw, he said, fail to recover. Dr. Mc-Kaig regards the boy's cure as a great victory for the phenol method, and says that, although it is not as well-known as the anti toxin cure, it is used by Italian investiga-

No Overcrowding Here.

There are more than 20,000,000 acres of the finest arable land in the world in Manitoba, says a Winnipeg dispatch in the London "Express." There are perhaps 20,000,000 acres more of prairie grass, which needs little or no cultivation to feed cattle on. In Assiniboia, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Athabasca there are immense tracts of agricultural country sufficient to supply the United Kingdom with the corn and cattle required. Including Manitoba, they are estimated to comprise over 80,000,000 acres of farm land. Of this vast territory not more than 13,000,000 or 14,000,000 acres are occupied. Manitoba and Assinibola have already done much to justify Canada's title to be the granary of the empire.

Burted on Horseback.

Lord Dacre, who died fighting for the Laucastrians at Towton, England, in 1461, directed that if he were killed in the battle his favorite war horse should be buried in the same grave with him. According to his wishes, when his interment took place in Saxon churchyard after the battle a tremendous grave was dug and in it the warrior was buried, seated upright on his horse. For centuries reflections were cast upon the accuracy of this tradition, but a few years ago, while excavations for new graves were being made, the report was verified by the discovery of the skeletons of horse and rider.—Chicago News.
