U. S. Collier Adrift at Ocean's Mercy. First Officer Tells Details of the Accident to the Alexander Propeller Drops off. Adamson, After Adventures at Sea, Reaches Breakwater and Hastens to Washington. J. Adamson, first officer of the United States collier Alexander, who reached the Delaware breakwater Sunday on the steamship Adam Schley, bringing news of the disabling of his vessel at sea, yesterday told some of the details of the accident.

The Alexander is now drifting helplessly on the ocean with the propeller disabled with a state of the propeller disabled with the propeller disabled with the propeller disabled and with a large crew on board. Adamson has bastened to Washington with the information of the ship's condition. The collier was bound from San Juan for Norfolk. On February 10th the propeller worked loose and dropped from the shaft The position of the vessel at the time was latitude 26.44, longitude 71.18, or four hundred miles from Nassau, the nearest port. STARTS OUT FOR HELP. Soon after the mishap First Officer Adamson and four seamen left the disabled craft in a small boat, with the attention of storm blew them far out of their course, and two days later they were picked up by the schooner D. H. Rivers, en route from ed 43 | Port Spain to Savannah. Anxious to reach some port from which assistance could be sent as quickly as possible to the Alexander, a close watch was kept for passing steamships, and when the Schley hove in sight the following day Adamson was transferred to her. The four seamen remained on board the schooner. When Adamson left the Alexander it was drifting northwest, and making about two and one-half knots. COLLIER GOES ON SEARCH. The Alexander is an English-built steamship, having been constructed at Stocktonon-Tees in 1894. It had put into San Juan for coal while on her way from San Francisco to Norfolk. The collier Lebanon was sent out from Norfolk in search of the Alexander as soon as Adamson made known the facts in the case to the Navy Department. Cortelyou Named for Cabinet Office. The number of deaths this week is therefore likely to be larger than heretofore.' The Cornell authorities will install a filtration plant at once costing $150,000. Already eight hundred students of the University have gone to their homes.

A SOURCE OF TAXATION THAT HAS BEEN OVER-LOOKED .- It is probable that if those of our councilmen who have been so anxious to increase the water taxes on a few of our citizens had looked over the field a little more carefully, they would have discovered interests that have all along been exemptfrom taxation and from which other municipalities have for years been receivmaking Nassau, to seek assistance, but a ling a fair remuneration for the privileges granted them.

The streets of Bellefonte are lined with telephone and electric light poles. They occupy space that the citizens are deprived of and disfigure the town in a way that no individual tax-payer would be permitted to do. The town, itself, and individual citizens pay heavy tolls for what these corporations furnish, and why they should not assist in defraving the expenses of a borough that has given them the privilege they enjoy, is one of the things that thoughtful councilmen should consider.

Other boroughs tax these corporations just as they tax their citizens and why Bellefonte should not do the same is left for those in authority to say.

For some years it has been a question whether a borough has a right to tax telephone, electric light, street railway and other corporations for the poles and wires they erect within the municipal limits. A de- sister, Mrs. Goss, in Bellefonte. cision of the Supreme court, in a Bedford county case, has settled this however:

This contention began in 1898 when the borough of Bedford passed an ordinance imposing license fees of $1 per pole and 50 cents upon each mile of wire maintained by all electric light, telegraph and telephone companies within the limits of that borough. The payment of these fees was resisted by the several companies and suits were brought and the companies compelled to pay but have been paying under protest during the past few years, hoping that a case might be secured in which the courts would declare ordinances of like nature void. Under the provisions of this ordihave secured $400 and $500 each from a of doors. source from which they had never secured anything.

The borough of Man's Choice in October. 1900, had an ordinance prepared and it was passed by council imposing a license fee of $1 a pole and 50 cents for each mile of wire The Bureau of Corporations, which is an entirely new institution, will be organized telegraph, telephone and electric light poles and wires within the limits of the bor- most frozen by the time he got here. ough and providing for a system of inspection on the part of the authorities and an said companies made themselves liable to ship. pay a penalty of $1 per pole. It was this action which was attacked by the Western Union Telegraph company and only 23 years of age and was a model young payment of the license fees was refused. Suit was then brought, from this judgment an appeal was taken and the case was tried in the courts of Bedford county, January 28th last and after hearing the case his honor, Judge Bailey, took the case from the jury and directed a verdict for the amount passed several sleepless nights.
